CHIEF'S NARROW ESCAPE

Doane's Rig Crashes into Coal Wagon While Speeding to a Fire.

DRIVER HURLED OUT

Fireman Kiederling Thrown From His Seat to the Road But Is Only Slightly Hurt.

In responding to a still alarm for a grass fire on Denmark road at 5:45 last evening, Chief Doane's rig collided with a coal wagon being backed out of David Dunavan's yard on East Second street, near Richmond. Daniel Keiderling, the chief's driver, was hurled from his seat to the roadway but escaped with only a severe abrasion of the right leg and torn clothing. Chief Doane was severely jolted but remained in the wagon, afterward jumping out and assisting Keiderling to his feet.

Though the crash was a hard one, the fire rig was but slightly damaged. The hind tire on the left side was torn off and the cross bar of the shafts was broken, otherwise there were only a few scratches on the wheels. The coal wagon, which belongs to Robert L. Cline, was turned halfway around by the force of the collision but it was practically unharmed. The horse became twisted in his harness and it was probably a fortunate thing as it bound him up so that he could hardly move. "Billy," the chief's horse, displayed the same intelligence as he has shown in various other matters and remained perfectly still. When examined afterward he was found to be without a scratch.

The chief and Keiderling returned to headquarters and on Dr. Pittis' recommendation, the latter was sent home. The injury to his leg is not serious but it will be very sore for several days.

In speaking of the accident, Chief Doane said that he was proceeding up East Second street and just beyond Washington told Keiderling to catch up to No. 2 hose wagon, just ahead, in order that he might give some instructions to Captain Daley. The chief took a careful view of the road in front of him and saw nothing in the way. His rig had just pulled alongside of the other vehicle on the left, when the coal wagon loomed in front of them. They were upon it almost before Keiderling could pull on his reins, the driver, a colored man, having backed it very suddenly. The bells of both fire rigs were ringing as usual and their lamps were lighted, so that the man could not have failed to see them had he taken the precaution to look up and down the street before he came out. He was unaware of their approach until just before the crash.

The still alarm was sent in by a woman living on Denmark road who found that the grass would set fire to some nearby houses. Capt. Daley continued with No. 2 wagon after the crash and found the flames extending over a large area but too far away to cause any serious trouble. He was unable to get the wagon through because of sewer excavations but with a couple of men beat out the fire in the worst parts. A man in the neighborhood declared the blaze had been started by people living in that section and that there was no cause for alarm.

Fire Caused Wilbur Blaze.

Lewis Spence, electrical inspector of the Board of Underwriters middle department, in company with Chief Doane, yesterday, made a thorough inspection of Freeholder S. P. Wilbur's home, damaged by fire Tuesday night. At its conclusion Mr. Spence declared without hesitation that the blaze was started by electric light wires. He found that they had not been soldered at the joints but were covered with tape. This dried in time and smoldering from the heat of the current, caused sparks to drop down, thus causing a fire. Mr. Wilbur will have the house repaired as soon as the insurance is adjusted.

LANTERN BETRAYS A RECKLESS AUTOMOBILIST

DROPS FROM MACHINE AFTER CRASH AND FLIGHT IS VAIN.

Tripped up by his own recklessness, the owner or chauffeur of automobile 5,963 N. J., will have to explain to W. E. Lowe, of Park avenue, or the courts, a smashup he brought about Thanksgiving Day night, and pay for the damage he did. Mr. Lowe doesn't know the owner of car 5,963—yet. He got the number by an odd chance.

The auto hit Mr. Lowe's closed carriage. The rig driven by Harvey Barber, colored, was turning from Ninth street to Park avenue, when the machine, going swiftly, shot toward it on the avenue. The chauffeur made no effort to slow up, and his attempt to clear the carriage by a sharp turn failed. The auto struck a front wheel, glanced along the shafts and ripped the harness to pieces, and pretty nearly scared the horse to death. The rig was thrown against the curb. Instead of stopping, the chauffeur put on speed and disappeared in the darkness.

Barber got down from his seat to look over his carriage and quiet the horse. His eye was caught by something in the roadway and he went out to look at it. The object was an auto lamp, still warm and undoubtedly one that had been torn from the speeding machine as it struck the carriage. The number was on it. The language the chauffeur used when he discovered the lantern missing must have been scandalous.

GOSPEL WORK AMONG NEW JERSEY FOREIGNERS

DR. McLANAHAN TELLS TO CRESCENT AVENUE CHURCH ASSOCIATION.

Uplift work among the immigrants in this State was the theme of an interesting address by Dr. Samuel McLanahan, chairman of the Synodical Committee on Home Missions for New Jersey, before the Young People's Association at the Crescent Avenue church last night. Dr. McLanahan is an authority on the subject he chose, and spoke as one who knew the field and its needs. He is the author of "Our People's of Foreign Speech."

Most of the imigrants in New Jersey, Dr. McLanahan pointed out, were from Central Europe—Italians, Poles and the like—among whom the need of the Gospel was keenest. Churches were being established for them, but there was a very wide field for more work.

Suggesting methods of approaching and handling the problem, Dr. McLanahan said that classes for the study of English might be started at any Sunday-school in places where there is a foreign population. Religious literature in their own language might be sent to the foreigners, by which they could be prepared for teaching in English.

Dr. McLanahan laid emphasis on this character of the work, and the requisites for a successful prosecution of it. Complete sympathy with the foreigners must be in the hearts of the worker before any advance could be made.

Then follow the hospital with 100 votes, Hope chapel with 58 votes, St. Mary's Alliance with 15 votes, Mission chapel with 13 votes and Warren chapel with 11 votes.

PLANK BREAKS; ROOFER KNOCKED SENSELESS

WORKMEN FALL WITH PART OF SCAFFOLD AT P. S. C. BARN.

A new spruce plank in a scaffold beneath the roof of the car barn being built for the P. S. C. at Dewey Park broke this morning, and Joseph Morstein and Edward Connor, of Elizabeth, fell the sixteen feet between floor and ceiling with it. Morstein was rendered unconscious and Connor was badly bruised.

The men were at work hammering on roofing iron for the Elizabeth Cornice Works. The plank broke without warning, and from no apparent cause. Morstein struck his head against a rail as he landed in a heap on the ground, and when his fellows went to pick him up he was senseless and bleeding from a cut in his scalp. Connor was able to care for himself but he was put on a car with Morstein and hurried to the trolley station here. Morstein regained his senses after a few minutes, and both men were taken to Dr. Albert Pittis' office on East Front street. The physician dressed their hurts and they were sent home.

DIRTY DISHWATER FOR PERSISTENT COLLECTOR

SELIM MILLER, PEDDLER TELLS OF HIS TRIBULATIONS IN CITY COURT.

Some of the difficulties of collecting money on the installment plan were disclosed in the city court this morning, when Selim Miller, a peddler, appeared against Mrs. Elizabeth Apgar, to press a charge of disorderly conduct made two weeks ago.

Miller told the court that when he went to the back door of the Apgar house, Rock avenue, on November 19, to collect $1.80 owing him for napkins and a tablecloth, Mrs. Apgar refused to pay and emphasized her refusal by throwing a pail of dishwater over him. Selim said the dishwater not only spoiled his clothes but ruined two beautiful white petticoats in his pack.

Mrs. Apgar acknowledged throwing a cup of dishwater. She said she was under agreement to pay the peddler twenty-five cents a week, but that she was very short the week of the 10th and asked for an extension. The peddler persisted in knocking at the door, she said, and she threw the dish water to discourage him.

Judge Runyon told the peddler that it looked as if he was trying to make a collection agency of the court, but as he believed the peace of both principals would be conserved by it he would dismiss the charge if Mrs. Apgar agreed to pay the $1.80. She promised to pay on Monday.

PYTHIANS WILL ASK TO HAVE DISTRICTS MERGED

LODGES IN THIS CITY, SOMERVILLE AND BOUND BROOK BELIEVE IT BENEFICIAL

For the purpose of discussing the consolidation of districts 14 and 20, Knights of Pythias members from this city, Somerville and Bound Brook, met in the rooms of Perseverance Lodge in the Babcock building, last night. The matter was gone over thoroughly and there was a strong sentiment in favor of the change. As a result a resolution was adopted which will be presented to the Grand Lodge at the next session, asking that the two districts be merged. There is no doubt but what the request will be granted.

At the present time, District No. 14 comprises only Perseverance and Unity lodges, of Plainfield, while Somerset Lodge, No. 256, of Bound Brook, and Lodge of the Castle, No. 82, of Somerville, constitute District No. 20. Each has its deputy and district officers but with the change only one set will be needed. The four lodges have always exchanged social visits and the union will make the fraternal ties stronger than ever.

Among those at the meeting last night were Grand Chancellor Wilson, Grand Master of Exchequer John Patrick, Grand Outer Guard Harry Keeler, Grand Inner Guard Harry Rector. Horace J. Martin was in charge.

MRS. YERKES PASSES FOUR SCORE YEARS

MEMBERS OF HER LATE HUSBAND'S FLOCK BRING HER A TOKEN OF ESTEEM

The eightieth birthday of Mrs. David J. Yerkes, of Grove street, was marked yesterday by more than eighty testimonials of love in the shape of letters and remembrances from friends and members of the congregation of the First Baptist church, who hold her in very tender regard, not only for her own worth but in memory of her husband's faithful service to the church for more than forty years.

Last night there was an informal gathering of the family to celebrate the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Yerkes, and unexpectedly a number of the members from the church, including Mr. and Mrs. C. W. McCutchen, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Knox, Mr. and Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph, Alexander Gilbert and Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Chambliss, called and offered their congratulations.

During the festivities Dr. Chambliss read an original poem in honor of Mrs. Yerkes, after which he presented to her a small gold casket containing $80 in gold. The presentation was entirely a surprise to Mrs. Yerkes as was also the coming of the company of friends, and she was overcome with feelings of appreciation.

Among the others present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. McGee, Mrs. Hannah Flanders, Mrs. Paige, Miss Ida Yerkes, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Yerkes, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Connor, Mrs. Susan Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Wilson, all members of the family.

Mrs. Yerkes was born in a small village near Saratoga, eighty years ago yesterday. In October, 1863, she came to Plainfield with her husband, Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, who in the previous August had received a call to become the pastor of the First Baptist church, where he preached for nearly fifty years. Since 1863 Mrs. Yerkes has always recided in this city. She has five daughters and one son. Her health is exceptionally good and she was able to enter heartily into the festivities of the occasion yesterday.

H. C. RANDOLPH IS DEAD

Retired Farmer, Well-Known in Vicinity, Passes Away at Daughter's Home.

WAS IN HIS 75th YEAR

Many Years Ago He was the Only Milk Dealer in Plainfield—Funeral on Tuesday Afternoon.

Henry Clay Randolph, a life-long resident if this vicinity and one of the best known of the older men in the city, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. Frank French, of Washington avenue, at 3:15 this morning. He had been suffering more or less for the past three or four years with heart trouble and Bright's disease but had been confined to his room only during the last two weeks. In a way, his death was unexpected, as he had been quite strong and no especially alarming symptoms were noticed until last night. At 3 o'clock the nurse realized that the end was not far off and summoned the family, the members reaching his bedside just before he breathed his last.

Mr. Randolph was born on Rahway road, January 8, 1832, on what was then and is still known as the Randolph farm. It came into the possession of his father, John Randolph, when he was married in 1810 and eventually became the property of the son. Henry Clay Randolph remained on it and superintended its cultivation until eight years ago, when he sold it to Mrs. S. A. Sabacher, the present occupant.

Though the farm is two miles out of the city and located in Fanwood township, Mr. Randolph was always looked upon as a Plainfielder as nearly all his business was transacted here. His place became noted for its luscious strawberries and many local business men of today worked for him when they were boys picking the fruit. He was also the first nearby farmer to deliver milk in the city and for many years was regarded as the leading dealer. Just before selling the property all the soil under cultivation was devoted to the raising of garden truck and his wagons delivered consignments to the local stores every morning during the season. On leaving the farm, he made his home with Mrs. French and remained there until his death. He had a severe illness last spring but rallied and afterward enjoyed a trip to Florida for recuperation.

Mr. Randolph had nine brothers and sisters and of these only one, Mrs. Fanny Pound, of Elizabeth, is now living. Another sister, Mrs. Eden Boise, died about a year ago. Mr. Randolph married Miss Alma C. Horton, daughter of Stephen Q. Horton, who came to this city from Morris county, and she survives. She also makes her home with Mrs. French, who is the only child. Mr. Randolph was a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, having joined fifty years ago when it was known as the Second Presbyterian church and its house of worship was on East Front street, where Whitney's carpet store is now.

The funeral will be held at Mrs. French's home Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 and interment will beat Hillside.

POSTPONES SENTENCE ON ILLARIO WOMAN.

Judge Garretson Gives Her Counsel Until December 26 to Fight for New Trial.

Justice Garretson deferred sentence today at Somerville on Florina Illario, who was convicted of manslaughter for shooting Alex Pi Paolo on June 2, until December 26, in order to give her counsel, Clark & Case, time to argue their rule for a new trial.

The fact that the constables who had the members of the jury in charge during the course of the trial took them to the scene of the crime without an order from the court is believed to form a strong point in favor of a second trial.

A petition, largely signed by Somerville business men, asks that the prisoner be not sent to the State prison. Many think that a short term in the county jail will serve the ends of justice owing to the [illegible] of the deceased.

THE HALL OF FAME.

Queen Alexandra and the Duchess of Portland have brought before English-women the cruelty they are guilty of in wearing aigrets.

One of the smart old gentlemen of Auguste, Me., is George Stevens, who is eighty-three years old. A bit of work he did a few years ago was to level the gravel which was hauled upon a road by six teams, thirty-six double horse loads in all.

W. L. Sclater has been appointed director of the museum of Colorado college at Colorado Springs. For four years he was deputy superintendent of the Indian museum in Calcutta and for ten years was director of the South African museum at Cape Town.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

The reader who begins "The Lions of the Lord" will certainly finish it. There's a tragedy at the close, the memorable tragedy of Joel Rae's life, but there's also one of the prettiest of love-story happy endings, in which a dashing cowboy plays Young Lochinvar in a way to make you want to jump up and whoop hurrahs for him. The plot is admirably constructed and there is real vitality in the people.—St. Louis Republic.

Certainly much has been written regarding the Mormons, but no writer has before turned out a book which so cleverly combines historical record with well-written fiction.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Mr. Wilson, who achieved a "ten strike" in his first novel, "The Spenders," has done even better in his second effort, and "The Lions of the Lord" is one of the most talked about books. It is a strong, original, dramatic story, of a fast dying civilization, the picture of a passing epoch, and in the pages of the book strange phases of an almost impossible phase of American life are set forth with all the fascination of a magic hand.—St. Paul Dispatch.

"Lions of the Lord" is a story that deserves to be taken seriously, to be respected and recommended, not only for what Mr. Wilson set out to do in it, but for what he has actually achieved in its pages.—New York Mail and Express.

This wonderful story of the Mormons by Harry Leon Wilson will be run in this paper as a serial. The opening chapters will appear in a short time. Watch for it.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Henry W. Savage's handsome production of "The Student King," Reginald DeKoven's light opera is the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and night. The company numbers eighty people and an orchestra of twenty.

Kathryn Purnell, who first came into prominence four years ago as leading woman at Proctor's theatre in New York, is the announced star for New Plainfield theatre, matinee and night, Monday, December 3d, in a new version of Daudet's famous story "Sapho." The version used by Miss Purnell is said to be free from all the objectionable features that could possibly offend the most exacting. The management promises an elaborate scenic dress, and a capable company in the presentation and from all reports patrons can look for a most satisfactory production of Daudet's story.

Though Lincoln J. Carter's successful drama, "Her Only Sin," is by no means a scenic production in the usual sense of the word, in that it depends for its strength on tons of scenery and properties, yet the background against which the story is laid is unusually picturesque. The action of the piece changes from England to Belgium, and then back to bonnie Scotland. The scenes showing the famous bell tower in Burges and a flower embowered lodge in Scotland, are two of the most artistic sets of theatrical decorate art exhibited on the road this season. "Her Only Sin" will be at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night.

The dramatic incident of the coming week in which chief interest will center will be the first revelation to our theatre-goers of the splendors of Rowland & Clifford's production of "Dora Thorne," a dramatization of Bertha M. Clay's famous novel. The piece has been declared a drama of more than usual effectiveness and power; and as a production is said to surpass anything Rowland & Clifford have as yet achieved. "Dora Thorne" is justly entitled to rank as one of the season's popular successes. It will be seen with the original cast and scenic environments next Thursday afternoon and night at the New Plainfield theatre.

To those whose appetite is dulled by a satiety of dramatic entertainments, a pleasant relief is promised in the semi-annual visit of Lyman H. Howe's ever welcome Lifeorama in Plainfield at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night. Unlike a great many attractions Mr. Howe can always be relied on for a programme to enthuse the most jaded patron. His moving pictures invariably are faultless marvels of the photographer's skill. They are further enhanced by vocal, musical and mechanical sound effects that impart a realism for which the exhibition has become widely known. Unlike the other exhibitions of its kind, there are no imperfect films or pictures to weary the eye.

Clergymen of all denominations will join with the laity in admiration of the character of Father Daly, the clerical role in which Daniel Sully appears in his most pronounced success, "The Matchmaker;" this shepherd of a wild and wayward flock meets with trials and tribulations, the cares and anxieties, the crosses, disappointments and malicious opposition that are familiar to all those who devote their lives to the spiritual welfare of their fellow-men. He bears the burden, however, in a light-hearted manner and is always ready with a laugh and a joke to lighten the burdens of others. The bright and original manner in which so tender a subject is dealt with by the author has been a revelation to those who have had the opportunity of seeing the play, being such a decided departure from the ever-run of present day "dramas." Mr. Sully will appear as Father Daly in "The Matchmaker" at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night, under the auspices of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus.

Mr. Daniel Sully as Father Daly, in "The Watchmaker," Next Saturday Afternoon and Evening.

The Christmas Committee of the Park Avenue Baptist church, has arranged for the programmes this year. The religious exercises will be held Sunday afternoon, December 23, and the Sunday-school festival on Thursday night, December 27. Superintendent George E. Hall will have charge.

"The Junior Teacher's Opportunity, with a Class, with a Department," will be the subject of a talk to be given by Miss Edith Cairns, of the First Baptist church Sunday-school, at a meeting of Sunday-school workers in the chapel of the Reformed church, Somerville, Wednesday afternoon and evening, December 5. The meeting is held for the purpose of showing a practical application of the modern Sunday-school methods as taught at the recent State convention held in Somerville.

Rt. Rev. Dr. Ethelbert Talbot, bishop of the diocese of Central Pennsylvania, will talk to men at St. John's church, Somerville, next Thursday evening. As Bishop of Idaho, Dr. Talbot was one of the picturesque leaders of the west in the days of the cowboys and the early mining camps. He was known to almost every bronco buster of the northwest, and there was hardly a great ranch where he had not rounded up the boys for occasional services and preaching. In the mining towns he was no less popular. A big man physically, with moral courage to match his physique and also a "good mixer," he was always welcome. When he arrived at a town, saloons and dance houses closed up, and the whole community turned out to hear him. It was Bill Bunkerly, a noted gambler and touch gulch miner, who said of him: "He's full jeweled and eighteen karats fine. He's the biggest and best parson that ever wore black clothes and the whitest man in these mountains." To his influence is due in large measure the gradual cleaning up of the mining towns of the West. Owen Wistar, in "The Virginian" and in "Linn McLean" shows something of the affection and respect with which he was regarded by his people of the plains, whom he loved no less than they loved him.

John Fritts, of this city, has been spending several days with relatives at Somerville.

A familiar burden in every home.
The burden of a "bad back."
A lame, a weak or an aching back
Tells you of kidney ills.
Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you.
Here is Plainfield testimony to prove it:

Rhoda A. Martin, of 24 Jackson avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I had pain in my back and loins for about a year or more, no doubt caused by my kidneys being out of order. I felt it more in the morning, just after getting up or if I did any stooping or lifting. Notwithstanding the fact that I took all kinds of medicines I never found anything which helped me until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at L. W. Randolph's drug store. They not only removed the pain, but they strengthened me in other ways." (Statement made in January, 1901).

Statement Confirmed.

On July 22, 1905, Mrs. Martin's daughter said: "The testimonial given for publication four years ago was true in regard to the benefit my mother derived from Doan's Kidney Pills, and today she is as ready and willing to repeat what she therein said as she was after using your medicine."

The stands are always masses of color, for the blue overcoats of the naval officers, together with the dark caps and olive drab coats of the army men form a pleasing background for the many flags which are continually waving and for the women's outer garments of many colors, while the solid masses of blue and gray on those stands where the cadets are seated in the cheering sections rest the eye passing on to the next kaleidoscopic division.

The Carlisle Indian football team has made a record this year of which it may feel proud and future performances of this team is likely to be watched with more than ordinary interest. On Thanksgiving Day the red skins defeated Virginia by the close score of 18 to 17. When it is considered that the Indians have defeated this year Pennsylvania, Swathmore, Minnesota and held Harvard down to a score of 5, their work can truly be called remarkable. Besides they defeated many smaller teams.

Harry DeMeza and Harry Blimm were among the Plainfielders who witnessed the tie game played on Thursday between Pennsylvania and Cornell on Franklin Field, Philadelphia. They both cheered for Pennsylvania.

From among the most important college teams Yale probably feels the happiest over the season's work, and Princeton perhaps feels the most down-hearted, because she failed to defeat the team from New Haven. A tie game left little comfort for the Tigers, but they are determined to do better next year.

...S $1,000,000 FEE

...gest Fee Ever Paid a Lawyer For Settling a Single Dispute.

FOR STEEL MERGER

Some Other Practitioners Who Received Large Sums—W. D. Guthrie Got $800,000.

New York, Dec. 1.—One of the largest single fees ever paid to a lawyer was the $1,000,000 which James B. Dill, of New Jersey, received for settling the disputes which arose between Andrew Carnegie and Henry C. Frick over the transfer of the properties merged in the United States Steel Corporation, says the New York Sun. Mr. Dill, however, as observed by the Van Norden Magazine, has now given up his stupendous corporation fees for the small annual salary of a judge.

A fee only $200,000 less than Mr. Dill's was paid to a New York lawyer, William D. Guthrie, who received $800,000 for breaking the will of Henry B. Plaut, owner of the Plaut system of steamships, railways and hotels. The Plant estate was valued at $24,000,000, the widow's share of which was $8,000,000, and this having been tied up in trust she engaged the lawyer to bring suit for its release. His fee represented 10 per cent. of her share.

Joseph H. Choate, before his appointment as Ambassador to Great Britain, received $200,000 for a single argument before the United States Supreme Court, the effect of which was that the income tax law was declared unconstitutional. As Ambassador at London Mr. Choate's salary was $18,000.

Among other large fees of lawyers may be mentioned $100,000 received by John E. Parsons, of New York, for drawing a single deed, $10,000 charged by D. B. Hill for making a single argument in the Molineux case, $100,000 formerly received yearly by Chauncey M. Depew from the New York Central Railroad Company and $20,000 as a retainer from the Equitable Life; more than $200,000 a year until recently earned by W. Bourke Cockran from consultation practice, and the many thousands of dollars paid to Samuel Untermeyer as counsel in the shipyard litigation and in recent insurance cases.

The fee of $30,000 and traveling expenses which was paid to Dr. Adolph Lorenz, of Vienna, to treat Lolita Armour for congenital hip dislocation was much less than has frequently been paid abroad by royalty. King Edward, when Prince of Wales, once paid a physician $50,000 for four weeks' services.

The fee of $1,000 which a New York dentist charged Prince Louis, of Battenberg, when the latter visited this country with his fleet a year ago, was much commented upon. For a dentist's fee the sum was undoubtedly large, but as compared with some physician's fees it looks insignificant.

Probably the record for large fees of this class is held by Dr. Walter C. Browning, of Philadelphia, who sent to the executors of the estate of Senator C. L. Magee a bill for $190,000. Explaining his charge Mr. Browning said that his ordinary charge for consultation in his office is $20 an hour, and outside the office $40 an hour. These rates, he said, Senator Magee had voluntarily agreed to double.

Other Big Fees.

Baltimore, the seat of Johns Hopkins University, noted for its output of physicians, has contributed largely to the list of big fees for doctors. Prof. Howard A. Kelly, of Johns Hopkins Hospital, received $21,000 for twenty-one days' treatment of the wife of a mine owner.

Prof. A. McLane Tiffany, of the same city, was paid $10,000 for performing an operation on a New York patient, and Prof. J. W. Chambers received $5,000 for operating on a deputy warden who had been stabbed by a prisoner. A Chicago physician, Dr. C. T. Parks, charged $10,000 for a single operation.

In New York city there probably are four or five physicians whose practice, mostly with the wealthy, represents an annual income of $100,000 or more. Five or six others earn from $50,000 to $60,000, and about 200 make from $10,000 to $40,000.

The high water mark for presidents of railroad companies is about $50,000 at the present time, although L. F. Loree received $100,000 as president of the Rock Island system. In cases of some of these officials, however, the salary as president does not represent the total of their pay. Samuel Spencer receives not only $50,000 a year as president of the Southern Railroad, but has other emoluments from offices held in similar lines.

A remark credited to Milton H. Smith when he was president of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad is that no railroad president can earn for his company more than $25,000 a year, and it is said that he refused a larger salary than that for himself. Charles M. Hays, who went from the Southern Pacific to the Grand Trunk and who initiated the Grand Trunk-Pacific project, one of the greatest enterprises in railroad building on the continent, receives $25,000 a year.

The salaries of president of banks, even those in the largest cities, are as a rule very much less than the salaries of railroad presidents. James Stillman, president of the National City Bank, of New York, is paid only $25,000 a year.

The salary of Henry O. Havemeyer as head of the American Sugar Refining Company is $75,000 a year. William E. Corey, president of the United States Steel Corporation, receives $100,000 a year, and the chairman of the board of directors gets the same amount.

In contrast are the government salaries—$50,000 to the President, $8,000 to a Cabinet officer, $13,500 to Admiral Dewey, $1,000 to General Chaffee, Chief of Staff; $3,000 to a captain in the navy. Chief Justice Fuller had a raise last year and now receives $13,000.

The church pays its leading men no better than the State. A recent Congregational year book gave no instance of a preacher's salary above $5,000.

An Episcopalian bishop may receive from $3,000 to $12,500. Famous city parishes in relatively few cases pay clergymen as high as $10,000 a year, but the demands of charity upon such clergymen are heavy.

...IT WOULD MEAN.

...he handwriting is on the ...al wall is now freely admitted ...t by a few bosses who know that ...r political life depends upon their ...ping promises and their ability to ...liver the goods." If John F. Dry... is elected United States Senator ...next Governor of New Jersey will ... Democrat. In discussing the ...ct the Philadelphia Evening ...aph said last night:

...cause of the Senatorial fight in ...rsey, the Republican machine ...of the southern section of the ...em to be in a rather deplor... ...ht owing to their efforts to ...he re-election of Senator ... The opposition to the ...ator is widespread, and at ...t election North Jersey, and ...y Essex county, his home, ... Democrats to the Assembly, ...proceeding which political wise...acres look upon as a repudiation by the people of that gentleman's political aspirations and public achievements.

"The return of Mr. Dryden to the Senate under these conditions, it is urged, will rather tend to lend color to the charge that the Republican machine of the State is largely controlled in favor of corporate and special interests, and that the bosses are more susceptible to such interests than they are to the wishes of the people, which in this case have been rather emphatically expressed. * * *

"Meanwhile the warring factions in the Republican party of Jersey are drifting farther and farther apart—the people lining up on one side, the bosses and the corporations on the other, and unless the former's demands are heeded, the latter are likely to be shorn of their patronage and power next fall, when a Governor is to be elected."

Randolph Perkins appears to be getting the notion that it is no longer the State of New Jersey, but the State of Union.—Trenton State Gazette.

Randolph Perkins has reason to be proud of Union, for what other county can make the boast that it spurned the cash? Union paddled its own canoe and unlike South Jersey is under no obligations.

If the manufacturer of the remedy for "that tired feeling" will kindly send a sample bottle to the Plainfield Board of Trade he will confer a great favor.

WHILE SON IS MARRIED, MOTHER TAKES HER LIFE.

She Timed Her Death to Take Place While He Was Being Wedded.

Washington, N. J., December 1.—In a fit of despondency brought on by long illness, Mrs. Archie Lance, wife of Councilman Lance, Thursday night hanged herself in the cellar of her home at almost the same time that her son, Irving Lance, was being married to Miss Grace Carpenter in the Market Street Methodist Episcopal church in Newark.

Mrs. Lance had long been ill. Her son's approaching marriage did not cheer her up any, and Thursday night she watched the clock while talking with her husband. With the remark, "Well, I guess Irv is getting married now," she left the room. Going into the cellar, she obtained a piece of rope, and, tying it about her neck and to a beam, mounted two or three steps and jumped off. She was dead when her husband found her a short time after she left the room.

The woman's son and his bride knew nothing of the tragedy until they arrived at Washington on an early morning train. They will attend the funeral instead of going on their honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Oliver, of East Fifth street, entertained a party of friends from Lebanon on Thanksgiving Day.

Dying Doctor Counts Pulse.

New York, Dec. 1.—With professional instinct, developed by years of training, Dr. Edward J. McDonough, of No. 304 East Seventy-inth street, for an hour early yesterday morning saw death creeping upon him, smiled encouragement to his friend, Dr. J. L. Woolheing, a neighbor, and expired as he noted with fingers on his pulse the gradual cessation of the heart's pulsations. To the last moment Dr. McDonough, who was mourned yesterday by thousands on the east side, where his charities were known, did not close his cheerfulness. It was only after death had come that his features relaxed and his finger dropped from the artery, the work of which he had been noting.

Low's Costly Conscience.

New York, Dec. 1.—Acting as counsel for Seth Low, former Mayor of the city, Edward M. Shepard yesterday turned over to Controller Metz Mr. Low's personal check for $27,397.28, as payment of personal taxes for which he was not legally responsible, but for which he felt a moral obligation to pay. Accompanying the check Mr. Shepard sent the correspondence which passed between himself and Mr. Low, in which he advised Mr. Low that he was not obliged to pay the taxes, adding: "You are certainly taking a punctilious view of your inadvertent error of this kind in a case where there is no underlying justice on the part of the city."

Married in Speeding Auto.

Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 1.—Pursued by police for fast driving and speeding through Euclid avenue at the rate of forty miles an hour, Miss Irene Dennart and Lawrence Damschroder, a lawyer, were wedded in an automobile on Thanksgiving night. The wedding was a most remarkable affair from start to finish, according to none other than the bride herself. The ceremony was performed by Justice of the Peace A. H. Parker. It consumed perhaps five minutes, but was spread over considerable of Cleveland's artistocratic highway. The couple's engagement was announced Wednesday. While riding Thursday evening in Mr. Damschroder's machine the couple decided to become man and wife. The cheuffeur and Miss Nodine Weaver acted as witnesses. The police didn't catch up.

Operator Brought on Wreck.

Lynchburg, Va., Dec. 1.—An examination of the telegraph records in the block offices of the Southern Railway at Rangoon and Lawyers, the former four miles north of the accident and the latter a mile below, shows conclusively that the awful wreck of the two fast passenger trains on the Southern Railway ten miles below this city was due wholly to the carelessness of G. D. Mattoax, an operator, who was in charge of the block office at Rangoon. Mattoax disappeared when he was relieved, less than an hour after the wreck, and he has not been seen since, although railway detectives have hunted over the country surrounding the station and his home, forty miles distant, in an adjoining county.

Long Island Jail Delivery.

New York, Dec. 1.—Responding to a general alarm, police here and in cities near by are searching for ten prisoners who escaped from the Queens County Jail, in Long Island City, yesterday morning. The fact that there had been a jail delivery was discovered at 6 o'clock in the morning, and it was subsequently learned that four of the men had escaped between 2 and 3 o'clock, having been at liberty at least four hours when their flight was discovered. That the prisoners received assistance from the outside there can be no doubt, as they were well supplied with saws and files, several of which were left behind.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis DeLacy Hyde, of Mountain avenue, are among the many Plainfielders attending the Army and Navy football game at Franklin Field, today.

TWO SPECIAL MESSAGES.

Said President Will Snd to Congress One on Porto Rico and One on the Canal.

Washington, Dec. 1.—As a result of his visit to Panama and Pootr Rico President Roosevelt will send two special messages to Congress. In one of them he will urge in strong terms that American citizenship be granted to the people of Porto Rico. In the other he will give his observations on the Isthmus. It is said the President is satisfied with the way things are being conducted in connection with canal construction.

To visitors he said that he had returned to Washington more than ever convinced that the Porto Ricans should be admitted to the fullest measure of American citizenship, and he will urge in a special message to Congress the enactment of the pending bill having that object in view.

A WOMAN TO BE PRETTY

Must Have Luxuriant and Glossy Hair, No Matter What Color.

The finest contour of a female face, the sweetest smile of a female mouth, loses something if the head is crowned with scant hair. Scant and falling hair, it is now known, is caused by a parasite that burrows into the scalp to the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality. The little white scales the germ throws up in burrowing are called dandruff. To cure dandruff permanently, then, and to stop falling hair, that germ must be killed. Newbro's Herpicide, an entirely new result of the chemical laboratory, destroys the dandruff germ, and, of course, stops the falling hair, and prevents baldness. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Storm Frightens Immigrants.

New York, Dec. 1.—Many prayers of thanksgiving went up from the crowded steerage of the steamship Italia when that vessel reached her pier yesterday, nearly a full week overdue from Mediterranean ports. Riotous weather had brought about the delay. During the five days and nights when she was riding head to swell, with bows flung to the skies one moment and engines impotently racing as the underrunning seas drove propellers clear the next, the terror stricken voyagers of the crowded 'tween decks moaned out their sorrow, and, placing images and pictures of saints about their quarters, prayed to them incessantly.

Investigate Election Returns.

New York, Dec. 1.—Searching inquiry, which may have decidely interesting, if not sensational results, is being made into the various statements of election expenses filed with the Secretary of State by nominees for office and party committees in the recent election. This work has been undertaken by the New York Association to Prevent Corrupt Practices at Elections, of which former Mayor Seth Low is chairman. This association was instrumental in procuring the passage of the new "publicity law" and it was continued for the purpose of seeing that the law was enforced and perfected. Complaints of serious evasions and infractions of the new law have been made to the officers of the association.

Chicago Founded in 1669.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—It has been discovered that Chicago is 134 years older than present-day histories now record. The Chicago and Evanston Historical societies held a joint meeting last night for the purpose of discussing and celebrating the discovery that was made by Frank R. Grover, vice-president of the Evanston society. Father Pierre Francois Pinet, a French priest, is credited with founding the city in 1669, 134 years before the supposed birth of the city in 1803.

The Prudential Paid 37 Times What It Received.

The Prudential recently paid a claim of $971.12 on the life of a school-teacher of Camden, N. J., whose death took place from accidental burning, within one year of the date of the policy. She had paid in premiums $26.23, or one-thirty-seventh of what her representatives received. The Prudential undertakes no risk it does not faithfully and honorably meet.

BOWLING.

"Willie" Mullen, of one-time baseball fame, has developed into a fast bowler, in fact, very fast. He made 200 or over three times yesterday on McLaughlin's alleys and during one of the games made a spare from the eighth to the tenth pin. That's going some for a young man who won't cast his first vote for several years.

The P. B. A. team will roll a return game with the Raritan five at McLaughlin's Tuesday night. The Plainfielders have pretty much the best of it in the series so far.

Mayor Buckle took a try at the timber yesterday and caused a few of the onlookers to sit up and take notice. He had his eye on the head pin in good shape and posted several good scores.

Bowling has invaded the ranks of the local postoffice employes and the carriers and clerks have each formed separate teams. They have arranged a series of games between them and the first will be rolled on McLaughlin's alleys next Thursday night. The clerks will have John Conklin, William Thorn, William Sharp, A. E. LaPorte and Elmer Equier, the last named being the anchor. The carriers' line-up will consist of Dan Mack, John Hines, George Keen, Dan Shea and James Bailey. Mack, Hines and Shea are all ex-Y. M. C. I. A. pin smashers and are counted upon to do some good work.

The following new teams have been added to the list to enter the tourney at McLaughlin's: Reville and Feller, Woolston and Cunningham, Dodge and Leland, Love and Ortleb, Kiely and Runyon. The entries will close December 4.

GOLF.

With the exception of the final play for the Golf Committee consolation cup between Arthur Murphy and H. W. Beebe, the season schedule at the Plainfield Country Club is finished for 1906. The clubhouse was closed yesterday after the play, but with the understanding that the locker-room in the basement is to be kept open for the benefit of members who wish to continue playing while the weather is good.

C. B. Morgan, who won the November Handicap cup at the Plainfield Country Club now has five cups which were captured by him this season. This is unusual for one member to secure so many prizes, but Morgan has played every week and has been putting up a consistent game.

J. Whitney Baker, who has been missed from the Plainfield Country Club a great deal this season, was on the links Thursday and his score shows that he is still in the game.

There is no doubt but that in the course of another year arrangements will be made by the Plainfield Country Club to make the club an all-year-round organization. With the installation of heat and the probable installation of an independent lighting system, there would seem to be nothing to prevent the keeping open of the clubhouse during the winter. It is an ideal place for social functions and the weather is generally mild enough to make traveling to and from the clubhouse easy.

Dudley H. Barrows, of Princeton, was home on Thursday, and he found time to spend a portion of the day playing his favorite game of golf. During the past season Barrows has been doing some good work on the links and his play is steadily improving.

Other familiar faces at the Plainfield Country Club on Thursday were those of Frank O. Reinhart and Frank C. Talmadge. They took part in the scheduled events and returned good scores.

Disgusted with Europe.

New York, Dec. 1.—"I subscribe to 'Fred' Remington's gospel, 'To hell with Europe!' I thought the Louvre a terror. In the National Gallery I saw a Rubens I wouldn't have for a gift. If any one says I'm crazy, I reply, 'I may be crazy, but I ain't no fool.'" That is the summing of Europe's art galleries and their treasures by Frederick S. Church, a well known American painter, sixty-four years of age, who has just returned from his first visit to foreign lands. He comes home disgusted after a look in at the Louvre and other sanctuaries of art where the artistic faithful worship.

Obesity Foils Jail Plot.

Barbourville, Ky., Dec. 1.—A too portly leader was responsible for the frustration Thursday night of an attempted jail delivery here. Plans had been carefully laid and eight prisoners altogether started to dig their adieu to the lockup, leaving by way of an underground tunnel secretly dug under one of the cells. The trip through the passageway, however, was brought to a sudden end when the portly leader got stuck in it. Noise made in the attempt to dislodge him attracted the guards, who forced the prisoners to return to cells.

Arrests Cave Dwellers.

New York, Dec. 1.—For reverting to the life of cave dwellers in Greenpoint Edward Hollinger, eighteen years old, and Clarence Lawrence, nineteen years old, a negro, were held for a hearing on a charge of vagrancy by Magistrate Hylan in the Manhattan Avenue Court yesterday. Dozing peacefully in a cave about twelve feet deep the two young men were disturbed by Policeman Langan, who found the den fitted up in homelike style, with well filled larder, comfortable cots and a few other incidents to increase the happiness of the hibernating couple.

Woman Captures Thief.

New York, Dec. 1.—Single handed, Mrs. Josephine Lemmon captured a negro burglar last evening in her boarding house, at No. 61 West 104th street. Calmly seating herself upon the form of the intruder, she sent one of her boarders to call the police; and for fifteen minutes, while waiting for a policeman, she held the pleading prisoner down, meanwhile lecturing him on the unwisdom of thievery. William Walker, the prisoner, formerly worked for Mrs. Lemmon, and she recognized him when she caught him prowling about the house.

Menten, Mrs. Alfred Menten, Mrs. R. H. Riley, Mrs. G. E. Stone, Miss Grace E. Fuller, Mrs. George E. Poak and Mrs. John Herman.—(From the New York Herald of Nov. 30, 1906.)

Theatre Boycott Charged.

Matthew Turner, a gold beater, was before Judge Manning in Jersey City yesterday for alleged conspiracy in posting notices calling on union labor men to boycott the Keith-Proctor theatre in Newark avenue, because non-union stage hands were employed. The court reserved its decision.

—Messrs. James C. Pope and A. L. C. Marsh, architects for the remodelling of the Dime Savings Institution, are justly praised for the handsome, stylish effect already seen in the new front.

—Still a further evidence of the value of advertising in The Daily Press. A white feather and roses were lost by a Plainfield woman and advertised in The Daily Press of yesterday. They were found by Miss Elsie Debele, of Somerset street, and returned to the owner promptly.

IT MADE NO DIFFERENCE.

How the Colonel Came to Make a Speech at Cut Rates.

"Well, gentlemen, what can I do for you today?" queried the colonel as he entered his office after a brief absence and found three farmer looking men in possession.

"We are a committee from the county fair," explained one, "and we want to see about the address. You make 'em, don't you?"

"Oh, certainly!"

"What's your figger?"

"I delivered two county fair addresses last fall and received $50 each."

"Um! Too high."

"There was no fault found with my prices last year. It takes time to prepare one, you know, and then I must journey down and deliver it. The figure I named is a very reasonable one."

"Look here, colonel," said the chairman of the committee, after considering a bit, "have you got one of your old addresses on hand?"

"I believe so."

"And can't you put 'er in for twenty-five?"

"But some one might get on to it."

"We'll take all the chances of that. All the people who will listen to you will be old Mrs. Cosely who is as deaf as a post, and old Jim Shaw, who will take it for a Fourth of July oration anyhow, and you won't run the slightest risk. Won't this make a difference in your figgers?"

The colonel blushed and stammered and said he thought it would, and when the committee left they had his receipt for $30, and he agreed to be on time.—Chicago News.

NEW YORK CITY.

New York city has nineteen colleges within its borders.

Men in New York city smoke 1,104,000 cigars each day.

Thirty bodies pass through the New York morgue each day, and it costs the city $32.50 apiece to bury them.

The water consumed daily in New York city is about 500,000,000 gallons, weighing 2,100,000 tons, and its valume would fill a canal city feet wide, ten feet deep and twenty-one miles long.

New York city, by that name, is now working under its sixth charter. The first one was granted by James II. in 1686, the second by George II. in 1730, and the people prepared the third one in 1829.—N. Y. Herald.

Billingsgates Birth.

Just as no man can say with accuracy when Billingsgate was born, so none can say who is its godfather was, says a London newspaper. Many guesses, romantic and prosaic, have been made, but nobody has had the courage to go further. Belinus, the son of Lud, divides the honors with an ancient fishmonger named Billing, whose descendants settled at Billington in Bedford, Billington in Hants and Durham, and two or three other places. Then there are those impersonal godfathers, words. Bailey offers as two—"bellan," to roar, suggested by the noise of the porters, or the fishwives; and "belte," Saxon for a purse.

Burned While Praying.

New York, Dec. 1.—While praying before a shrine in her room the clothing of Therest Tardo, seven years old, of No. 2 Richardson street, caught fire yesterday from a lighted candle and she was severely burned.

ELIHU ROOT ENDORSED BISHOP NEELY'S VIEWS.

Methodist Prelate to Tell Tomorrow Morning What Those Views Are.

Bishop Thomas Neely, of Buenos Ayres, South America, who will occupy the pulpit at the First M. E. church, tomorrow morning and evening, has a world-wide reputation not only among Methodists, but among members of all faiths, who have learned of his great work in South America. The Christian Advocate, of this week, has the following to say concerning Bishop Neely:

"The address of the Secretary of State before the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress is a great production. It is the strongest endorsement of Bishop Neely's views and addresses that could possibly be made. The bishop has done more to make Methodists understand the wisdom and need of the continent of South America from the evangelical Christion point of view than has ever been done before. The bishops of our church that have been sent down there have accomplished wonders in the time they remained. Bishops Ninde, McCabe and Joyce made episcopal visits in two successive years and they did more than could be reasonably expected of them in the time. 'Other men have labored;' and Bishop Neely 'entered into their labors;' but during the time that he has been there he has traveled all over the country. He has lived upon the ground and in the period in which most extraordinary developments have taken place in South America. Secretary Root points out that we have become a creditor instead of a debtor nation, have left the ranks of the investing; that South America has passed out of the stage of militarism into that of industralism; that England, France, Germany, Italy and Spain, all investing nations, are in the field, and that we must wake up."

TO DEFEAT BRYAN WITH JERSEYMAN.

Alleged Plan to Nominate Woodrow Wilson, Head of Princeton, for President.

In the New Haven, Conn., Union, last night, the paper of which Alexander Troup is editor and proprietor, an article appeared purporting to give the details of a secret meeting recently, in New York City, of some leading Democrats of the country, called together for the purpose of sidetracking any plans W. J. Bryan and W. B. Hearst may have for the Presidency in 1908, and putting in nomination for President Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton. The articles says:

"John P. Hopkins, former Mayor of Chicago; Roger P. Sullivan, Democratic controller of the Currency under Grover Cleveland; Charles C. Hamlin, of Maine, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury under Cleveland; ex-Senator James Smith, Jr., of New Jersey; H. C. Frick, of Pittsburg, and ex-Congressman Joseph G. Willett, of Alabama, have been in New York having conference with the Parker-Sheehan people, at the Metropolitan Club, better known as the 'Millionaires Club,' with the view of having the next national Democratic convention nominate for the Presidency Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton University.

A Gift of Solomon's.

In the ancient cathedral of Genoa a vase of immense value has been preserved for 600 years. It is cut from a single emerald. Its principal diameter is twelve and one-half inches and its height five and three-fourths inches. It is kept under several locks, the keys of which are in different hands, and it is rarely exhibited in public, then only by an order of the senate. When exhibited it is suspended round the neck of a priest by a cord, and no one is allowed to touch it but him. It is claimed that this vase is one of the gifts which were made to Solomon by the Queen of Sheba.

Merrill From Roselle.

E. A. LITERARY NOTES.

The Christmas McClure's contains some of the most varied, picturesque and striking material which the magazine has ever gathered together in a single number. Perhaps together in a single iumber. Perhaps the most interesting single feature is an editorial article in which a life of Mary Baker G. Eddy and a history of Christian Science is a movement on which all eyes are turned today, and the announcement that a true history of this great romantic movement and its leader is forthcoming, marks an excellent stroke of magazine policy. Another chapter of the Carl Schurz Deminiscences recalls his first journey to the new crude West, a visit in London, and his first hearing of Jenny Lind and of Wagner—a remarkable musical experience described with great poetry of feeling. Lincoln Steffens relates the story of Judge Lindsey's splendid triumph in Denver, and C. P. Connolly tells how the Clark men failed in their attempt to handle the Supreme Court of Montant, and of the memorable scenes at the investigation of Clark's election in Washington.

Language Follows the Conqueror.

As trade follows the flag, so does language follow the conqueror who conquers with muscle or brain. In the century before the Christian era two languages, Latin and Greek, shared the civilized world—Latin for business, Greek for ideas—and Cicero in his Letters dropped in the Greek phrase as a man writing in English today may express an idea in French, says a London exchange. Latin and Greek had their chance—and missed it—for the outside world beat them with battleaxes and barbarous speech. If there is to be a universal language (we are not speaking of a universal code, such as Esperanto, or Volapuk, or dog Latin, but a language of nuances and individualities), it must be the language of a conqueror. And it may not be worth while to spread death and disaster through a world that is taught at last to spell "diner" "dinner."

Dr. Fred Cornell Sutphen and wife drove his high steppers down from Bernardsville and visited his cousin, Mrs. Vandyke yesterday.

Americans Amusing to Londoners.

We are to understand that the Rockefellers and others come here with the express purpose of dazzling us, much as the fortunate possessor of a false eye might betake himself to Central Africa in order to astonish the unsophisticated savages with his one possible storke of magic, says the London News. From the magician to the clown is, after all, but a short step, and already the American who comes heer to astonish Europe is as often ridiculous as merely amusing. There is folly enough in Europe to fool the frivolous American to the top of his bent. There are also solid qualities enough to well repay the visit of those educated and self-respecting Americans who come without flourish of trumpets.

BISHOP NEELY ASKS AID

Methodist Prelate Tells of His Work and Needs in South America.

NOW RAISING FUNDS

The Bishop Pictures the Country and His Aims to Congregations at First M. E. Services.

Bishop Thomas Neely, of Buenos Ayres, Argentine Republic, South America, who occupied the pulpit at the First M. E. church yesterday morning and evening, was listened to by large congregations at both services. In the morning at the commencement of the service, he received eight new members on probation at the request of the pastor, Rev. A. C. McCrea.

While the Bishop laid great stress on the Lord's command to go into all parts of the earth, preaching the gospel and baptizing people in the name of Christ, he spoke more especially of South America, its size, conditions, educational advantages and the religious outlook. He said that the time had come when evangelical Protestantism must overcome Roman Catholicism there or the latter religion would overcome the former. He declared that Catholicism in South America is nothing like that to be found in this country.

Continuing Bishop Neely said in part:

"South America is not a country but a continent. There are eleven Republics and three European dependencies. The continent is 3,500 miles wide at the widest point and 4,500 miles long. Peru equals in size the United States, west of the Rock Mountains; Argentina is the size of twenty-nine Pennsylvanias and Brazil is larger than the United States. There are many climates there; the tropical, semi-tropical, the temperate and a touch of the frigid. The soil is fertile and the forests vast. The continent abounds in products. There is gold and silver in every section, and it is rich in tin, copper, lead, petroleum and nitrates. It is accessible by all lines except those from this country. South America is getting ready for a great development, as indicated in Secretary of State Root's address on the imports and exports.

"There have been great changes in South America in that last few years and the religious influence on the part of Great Britain and America is going to make a new South America. I have one Italian preacher to work among the people, where I should have at least twenty-five. The political ideas of South America are American which means much. Speaking from an educational standpoint there is to be found great illiteracy among the people. In Brazil 84 per cent. of the people can neither read nor write, but there is great improvement through American efforts and the Methodist church missionaries.

"What is the religion of South America? There is Paganism and Romanism in the worst form and type, that which teaches that a man can be wicked all his life and then be prayed out of purgatory for a small sum. South America needs the touch of Protestantism. Romanism does not touch or benefit the people. The Catholics hold their missions for the conversion of Protestants, but no such missions are held for the conversion of Catholics. Germany is doing nothing in South America and while Great Britain is doing something it is not enough. The continent has special claims on the United States. It is near us, beside us and it is clearly an American question. We have the Monroe doctrine now let us have the mission doctrine."

In conclusion Bishop Neely spoke of the great need for churches and missions throughout South America and said that he could use $20,000 a year for the distribution of literature, $50,000 for theological and other schools, and $10,000 would go far toward building ten new churches.

He also spoke of the hopeful outlook at Panama, where a student from Drew Theological Seminary is in charge. He said that he had been promised $10,000 for this work if he could raise a similar amount and he is now doing his utmost to accomplish the task. A special appeal was made to the local congregation to double its contribution of $1,000 to foreign work, it being understood that $1,000 would be given to Bishop Neely for his fund.

In the evening Bishop Neely, the founder and president of the Wesleyan Brotherhood, preached a sermon before the Brotherhood of that church on the subject of "Man." Bishop Neely spoke of the fact that nowadays church congregations and membership are made up of one-third men andtwo-thirds women. This he attributed largely to the practice of church and Sunday-school workers of devoting two-thirds attention to the feminine portion of the

2 HURT CROSSING TRACK

Butcher in Hospital With Concussion of Brain as Result of Accident.

TRAIN HITS WAGON

Jacob Vertvelinsky Badly Injured but Samuel Oblisky Only Slightly Hurt—Crossing Unprotected.

Jacob Vertvelinsky, a butcher residing at 511 West Third street, is in Muhlenberg Hospital, suffering from concussion of the brain, the result of an accident Saturday night at the Park avenue crossing of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, near Oak Tree. Vertvelinsky, accompanied by Samuel Oblsky, a boy, had been delivering meat on his country route, and was on his way home at the time.

At the time the butcher approached the crossing a high wind was blowing and it is believed that it prevented him from hearing an approaching fast westbound freight. The engine crashed into the rig midway between the wagon and the horse, wrecking the vehicle. The man and boy were hurled to one side of the tracks, and it was thought at first that Vertvelinsky was killed. The boy although badly scared and cut, quickly recovered his senses and hastened to where his employer lay. He found him unconscious. The train crew gave assistance to the injured man. Word of the accident was telephoned to Muhlenberg Hospital and arrangements were made to take him there. An examination showed that the butcher had sustained concussion of the brain and suffered minor cuts and bruises.

Obisky was also taken to the hospital and after his injuries were attended to he went home. Vertvelinsky recovered consciousness yesterday and he is rapidly improving.

The force of the crash freed the horse from the wagon and it ran away. Yesterday it was found in Vertvelinsky's stable in West Third street. The Lehigh's crossing at that point is unprotected.

CHARLES BUCHLER TELLS HIS SIDE OF THE STORY

WIFE DERANGED BY RELIGION, HE SAYS; HE ALWAYS SUPPORTED HER.

Charles Buchler, husband of the former Plainfield girl, whose appeal to the law in Montclair for an order compelling Buchler to support her was reported in the Daily Press last week, together with her story of alleged hardship, has written a letter to the Newark News in his own defence.

He declares that Mrs. Buchler became interested in a religious band known as the Christian Faith Society a number of years ago, and became mentally deranged. She neglected home and children, he declares, and finally he was compelled, on the advice of a physician, to have his wife put away. She was brought back from the asylum last May, he says, but she relapsed, became violent and assaulted him, after which she was returned to the asylum. She left there to go to an aunt's home in September.

Buchler says he has always paid for her care, both at the asylum and at the aunt's home. There was no suspicion on his part, he says, that anything was wrong until the complaint was filed. He is willing to do his duty and support Mrs. Bachler, but he feels is would be unsafe for him and the children to have his wife back at home. She was advised to stay away from him, he declares, by a physician.

Franklin Wilson.

Franklin Wilson, the ten-years-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Zachariah Wilson, of Harmony street, died early yesterday morning after a long illness. The funeral will be held at the parents' home tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Charles Heidt.

Charles Heidt, well known in this city, died suddenly Saturday afternoon at the home of his son, George Heidt, of Coontown. Apoplexy was the cause. He was seventy-six years old and had lived in this vicinity for a long time. The funeral will be held at the Coontown church Wednesday afternoon at 2:30.

Edward Golden Marries.

Edward Golden, of Hopewell, and formerly an operator at the Western Union office in this city, and Miss Sarah Lindsley Day, daughter of Mrs Robert L. Day, of Bound Brook, were married in New York Thanksgiving Eve. They will reside at Bound Brook. Mr. Golden is employed as an operator in a broker's office in New York.

ELKS' MEMORIAL SERVICE

Eulogy by Rev. Dr. Glazebrook a Feature of Impressive Tribute to Departed Members

THE THEATRE FILLED

Dean Rodman Pronounces Benediction—The Music of Very High Order

In the presence of a gathering that filled the lower floor and balcony of the New Plainfield theatre, yesterday afternoon, Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., conducted its annual memorial service, when those who look out on life from beneath the antlers lift their eyes and hearts to memories of absent brothers and extend the hand of Elkdom behind the curtain of eternity. The programme was similar to those of previous years but it was made doubly impressive from the fact that for the first time since the lodge has been organized it was a memorial in the true sense, four brothers having passed away since last April.

The exercises were in charge of Exalted Ruler George O. Stevens and with him on the stage were the other officers of the lodge, as follows: Esteemed Leading Knight, Charles J. Fisk; esteemed loyal knight, Herbert Buxton; esteemed lecturing knight, Clarence E. Teel; secretary, Walter H. Freeman; treasurer, Lemuel B. Woolston; chaplain, Frank Rowley; esquire, Carroll T. Runyon; inner guard, John Bowman; tiler, Edward C. Searing. The assisting artists were Townsend H. Fellows, baritone; Joseph Knecht, violinist; William Paulding DeNike, violincello; Chas. L. Van Baar, pianist.

Extending across the stage from either side was a bank of potted plants, palms and ferns while above, suspended from the fly gallery, was a shield of purple velvet in which gleamed four tiny electric lights, each one representing an absent brother. As the roll of honored dead was called by Secretary Freeman, a light was extinguished, indicating that the member had been called to the great beyond. The departed brothers and the dates of their deaths were Daniel Detweiler, April 8; Herbert S. Taylor, April 16; Robert L. Thomae, July 24; Olin L. Jenkins, November 13.

A number by the trio, violin, 'cello and piano, "Aria from Samson and Delilah" Saint-Saens, headed the programme, and was followed by the opening ceremonies of the lodge, the members occupying the front orchestra chairs. Mr. Fellows, whose excellent baritone voice was never heard to better advantage, rendered "Crucifix" and prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. E. M. Rodman, after which the audience joined in singing "Nearer, My God, to Thee." Another number by the trio, "Adagio," Bottesina, led up to the memorial eulogy by Brother Rev. Otis A. Glazebrook, D. D., of Elizabeth. He is a speaker of wide reputation and his eloquent address commanded the rapt attention of his audience throughout. He departed from the usual theme by devoting the greater part of it to "character" instead of direct reference to fraternity in Elkdom. He declared that character was of more value to mankind than mines of precious metals or great buildings and that the possessor of it is indeed fortunate. For those who had passed away since the members of No. 885 had last assembled in a lodge of sorrow he said he could speak of them as had Felix Adler at the bier of Damrosch: "Success, lasting personality and character."

Dr. Glazebrook was followed by Mr. Fellows who sang with much expression Lord Henry Somerset's "Echo." "Abide With Me" was sung by the gathering and following a trio number, selected, the benediction was pronounced by Dr. Rodman.

The memorial committee was composed of Samuel P. T. Wilbur, Herbert Buxton and William N. Runyon.

Bestowed Papal Blessing.

During the recent visit of Bishop McFaul, of the Trenton Diocese, to Rome, he besought the Pope for a blessing to be imparted to the people of his diocese. In response to the request the Pope conferred the blessing and yesterday at the termination of high mass at St. Joseph's church, the Papal Benediction was bestowed upon the congregation by Rev. W. H. Miller. A large number of people attended this service to receive the graces of the benediction.

Nurses' Meeting.

The New Jersey State Nurses' Association will hold its fifth annual meetin tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Central Baptist church, East Jersey street, Elizabeth. Following the business session, addresses will be made by Dr. Norton L. Wilson and former Governor Foster M. Voorhees. Indications are that Mrs. D'Arcy Stephen, of Orange, the president, will be reelected.

BIG HIT SCORED HERE BY "THE STUDENT KING"

VOCIFEROUS APPLAUSE FREQUENT AT THE NEW PLAINFIELD SATURDAY.

Direct from its successful runs in Boston and Philadelphia, Reginald DeKoven's latest light opera, "The Student King," as produced by Henry W. Savage, was presented at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night. With a cast and chorus of seventy-five people and a special orchestra it proved to be the most delightful offering that local playgoers have enjoyed since the new house opened. Aside from being the largest numerically, the company included several grand opera stars and comedians of wide reputation. The scenic mounting was magnificent and the costumes in each one of the three acts represented a small fortune.

Miss Lina Abarbanell, who headed the cast, came from Germany to sing for Herr Conreid at the Metropolitan Opera House and is one of the few artiste's who have one equal success on the dramatic as well as the operatic stage. She is a decidedly vivacious prima donna and her singing was a revelation of vocalistic skill. The action of the play accords her an unusually large number of solos but it seemed as if the audiences could not hear her enough, so vociferous were the encores. The leading male role was taken by Henry Coote, a robust tenor, whose voice had great opportunities for display in the music alloted him. Alexander Clark was the principal comedian and he furnished the greater part of the fun. He merely had to walk across the stage to get a laugh as he is so thin, his knees trembled beneath the weight of his body. Flavia Arcaro, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Ditmar Poppin, Thomas Leay, Eva Fallon and many other well known players were in the cast. The chorus included two score or more girls who sang as prettily as they looked.

While the attendances both matinee and night were large, they were not what would be expected at an opera so pretentious as "The Student King." The production was secured by Manager Counihan in competition with Elizabeth and Trenton and was worthy of standing room audiences. It opens at the Garden theatre, New York, Christmas night and will probably remain there until spring.

MEMBERS RECEIVED IN LOCAL CHURCHES

SOME ON PROBATION, OTHERS BY CONFESSION AND A NUMBER BY LETTER.

Twenty-two persons were received into Grace Methodist Episcopal church yesterday morning, by letter, on confession of faith, from probation and on probation, as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Neidig, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Coons, Miss Florence Coons, Miss Edna Coons, Mrs. Fannie Felver, Miss Sarah McKensick Wright, Miss Caroline J. Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Larsen, Mrs. Mary E. McMurtry, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Monck, Mrs. Grace Tomlinson, Mrs. David Bodine, Miss Nellie Messenger, Miss Annie Rupert, Herman Rupert, Mrs. Etta H. Evans, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Harned.

A beautiful sight and one that cheered the hearts of the pastor, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, and his people yesterday morning, was the reception of eleven young persons into the membership of Trinity Reformed church. Ten of the number were from the Sunday-school.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor, gave the right-hand-of-fellowship to fourteen new members at the communion service yesterday morning. All but a few were received on confession. Rev. Everett Burr, formerly of Plainfield, took charge of the communion service at the request of Dr. Chambliss.

Dr. Du Bois Locates Here.

Dr. Francis E. Du Bois, of New York, has purchased the house No. 28 Washington avenue and will take up the practice of medicine in this city. Dr. Du Bois is a graduate of Princeton in the class of '99, and of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University in the class of 1903. He served two years on the staff of Roosevelt Hospital, New York. Mrs. Du Bois, who was Gertrude Van Cortlandt Parker, is a sister of A. McClean Parker, of West Seventh street.

Organize St. Aloysius Club.

Under the direction of Father Bogan, of St. Mary's church, a St. Aloysius Club for boys was organized at the church yesterday with a membership of sixty-eight. One of the principles of the club is total abstinence. There was great enthusiasm on the part of the boys in joining the new club and it promises to be successful.

WIDOW ASKS DAMAGES

Mrs. Patrick Kneeland Files Claim Against Pond Works Management.

LEGAL FIGHT EXPECTED

Company, It is Said, Will Contend That Kneeland Hal Full Authority Over Equipment to Be Used.

Responsibility for Patrick Kneeland's death, which occurred at the Pond Tool Works foundry two months ago, is charged by the counsel for his estate against the company, and a claim for damages has been presented. It is not believed that the liability of the company will be admitted, and Codington & Swackhamer, counsel for Mrs. Kneeland, who is her husband's executrix, are ready to bring suit.

The Pond management has turned its side of the case over to the indemnity company in which it is insured, and the lawyers are now negotiating with that company. From what has leaked out about the claim, it is believed that the court battle will be an interesting one. Kneeland was foreman of the men who moved the castings made in the foundry about and he himself fixed the chain about the piece that fell and killed him. It is believed the company will contend that he had full charge of the work involved in moving the casting and that it was his place to see to decide whether or not the sling was safely to be used. His estate will contend that he was not in full authority over the equipment, and that it was not his part to decide whether or not the chain was defective, but only to see that it was of the weight fitting the transportation of the casting.

William H. Totten.

William H. Totten, for many years a local resident, died yesterday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Albert Ferris, of 139 North Elliott street, Brooklyn. He was last employed at the Kensington hotel, but resigned his position there last winter because of ill health. He left Plainfield in the spring in order to undergo treatment at a Brooklyn hospital and remained in that city after his discharge from the institution. He leaves one son, former Patrolman James Totten, of West Fifth street, and two brothers, James and George Totten, of Watchung. There are also five sisters, Mrs. Ferris, Mrs. W. A. Young and Mrs. Mary Duval, all of Brooklyn; Mrs. Elizabeth Galloway, of Watchung, and Mrs. Fanny Dunn, of North Branch.

The funeral will be held at Mrs. Ferris' home tonight and the body will be brought to this city tomorrow morning on the 9:55 train for interment in the Plainfield Avenue cemetery.

"Where to Go Tonight."

Those who are not familiar with the attraction announced for presentation at the New Plainfield theatre this evening may feel assured that both play and production will meet with the genuine approval of all. Miss Kathryn Purnell, though new here, was formerly leading woman at the Proctor Stock theatres in New York and her present starring tour is said to have been the most successful yet attained by presenting the famous comedy "Sapho." Much of this success is said to be on account of the version being free from offensive features and the magnificence of the costume and scenic features and the clever supporting company.

Hospital Rate Raised.

The managing committee of Muhlenberg Hospital has raised the rate to be charged ward patients, hereafter admitted, from $5 per week to $7 per week, or $1 per day. The increase is made on account of the increased cost of maintaining the hospital and in accordance with the rates charged by other hospitals of the same class.

Mock Trial Rehearsals.

All the rehearsal dates of the mock trial to be given by the Y. M. C. A. boys between now and the performance have been set. They are December 4, 6, 7, 11 and 12, in the evening, and a dress rehearsal on December 14 in the afternoon. The performance will be held the evening of the fourteenth.

Alexander Clark Dead.

Alexander Clark, a well-known resident of Westfield, died Saturday night at his home. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Clark had many warm friends in Plainfield.

Mr. Listman Buys House.

George L. Listman, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., has purchased a house on Union street. His family moved into it today.

MINISTER APPEALS TO LOCAL CONGREGATION TO AID IN REFORM MOVEMENT.

For the purpose of stimulating an interest in the reform work now being carried on in the Congo State under the auspices of the Congo Reform Association, Rev. Everett Burr, formerly of this city, but now of Boston, spoke at the First Baptist church yesterday morning. The horrible practices in the Congo State were vividly pictured, showing how the natives are tortured and made to suffer almost indescribable persecutions.

The Congo Reform Association is the result of reports received that the native inhabitants were being subjected to the most inhuman treatment by officers bearing Leopold's Commission, and acting under his orders. The pressure of public sentiment forced the British Government in 1903 to make an investigation of the situation. This proved that the infamies were far worse than reported. Then followed the organization of the reform association in England and later in this country.

After the service yesterday morning, in accordance with suggestions, Dr. Chambliss appointed a committee of three, F. E. Kinsman, S. St. John McCutchen and W. A. Connor, to consider the matter and bring it before the church next Sunday. The purpose of the association is to have a petition presented to Congress and thus seek to put a stop to the inhuman treatment now existing. Other countries are also taking up the matter.

INDIAN SCOUT SPOKE.

Interesting Figure at the Y. M.C.A. Meeting Yesterday Afternoon.

George Edwards, an Indian scout, spoke at the Y. M. C. A. meeting yesterday afternoon. He took the place of James F. Parker at almost the last minute. The opportunity to secure the scout came up unexpectly.

P. H. S. Defeated.

The Stuyvesant High School basketball team of New York defeated the Plainfield High School team on the local court, Saturday afternoon, by a score of 44 to 25. It was a fast game and one of the best yet seen at the high school. It was also marked by a noticeable absence of any questionable playing. William Stillman, of the Public School Basketball League, of New York, was referee, and gave entire satisfaction.

Two Drunks Freed.

Two plain drunks were the only ones to face Judge Runyon in the City Court this morning. Herman Fitzner, arrested by Detective McCarthy and Oscar S. Waldron, arrested by Patrol Driver O'Gorman for falling all over East Front street near Police headquarters, were the prisoners. Both were arrested early Saturday night. Sentence was suspended in each case.

Mourning Five Dodge Reporters.

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team lost their second game in the league Saturday night. They were defeated by the Passaic five on the latter's field. The score was decisive but details are lacking at this end because the team manager and the members have dodged reporters ever since the game. The reporters are not mad, because they understand the five's feelings and sympathize with them.

Grass Fire Threatened Property.

The borough fire department was called out at 12:45 yesterday morning for a grass fire on upper Belmont avenue that threatened the hay stacks and buildings on James Hurley's property. There was no water nearby and the men had to beat out the flames with switches. The alarm was sent in from box 132 by a late homegoer.

Father McGinnis Will Lecture.

An invitation was given yesterday by Rev. W. H. Miller of St. Joseph's church, to the members of the Holy Name Society to attend a lecture to be given Sunday night by Father McGinnis, of New York, in the Catholic church, Raritan. Father McGinnis is the president of the Catholic Truth Society and is an eloquent speaker.

Philharmonic Rehearsal.

The Philharmonic Orchestra will have a rehearsal in the G. A. R. rooms tomorrow night. All local musicians of fair ability are invited to attend with a view to joining the organization.

Auto License Granted.

Among the licenses granted during the past week to owners of automobiles was one to Andrew C. Thompson, 313 West Front street, for an Elmore touring car.

Police Detective Receive $1,200 a. Fire Chief $1,0

A RAISE FOR A

Men to Get Approximate Raise 10 Per Cent.—Ordinance to Be Introduced Tonight.

The Common Council will pass on first and second reading tonight an ordinance increasing the pay of every employee in the fire and police departments of the city as exclusively told in The Daily Press a few weeks ago. This means that the firemen and policemen will get a raise of approximately ten per cent., except in specified cases. The changes to be made include the appointment of a detective-sergeant in the police department and the appointment of a building inspector.

Chief of Police Kiely who now gets $1,400 a year will receive $1,600 and it is probable that the detective-sergeant will get $1,200. Sergeant Frederickson will land the job it is said. He now receives $1,000. All the patrolmen and roundsmen as well as the doorman at headquarters will be increased a little over ten per cent. The roundsmen are now paid $75 a month and the patrolmen from $60 to $75 according to length of service. The doorman is paid $50.

Fire Chief Doane will receive $1,600 for his services, but his office as building inspector, which pays $500 a year, will be given to a man outside that department. His present salary as fire chief is $900. Assistant Chief Jennings, who now gets $900, will be paid $1,000. The captains now paid $70 a month will get about $80 and all other men in the department a proportionate increase. Tillermen now get $65 and the drivers as high as $65. The lowest paid man in the service gets $50 at the present time.

Seventh-Day Baptist Society Also Adopts Constitution.

The Men's Club of the Seventh-Day Baptist church held a special meeting in the parlors of the church, last night, to complete organization. After adopting the constitution and by-laws, President Starr A. Burdick announced the following committees:

It was decided to hold the first regular meeting Sunday, December 16. Meetings will be held on the third Sunday in each month. After the transaction of business last night refreshments were served. The club now has a membership of thirty.

J. E. Skiff's Annual Recital.

The annual song recital will be given by J. Edmund Skiff in the Y. M. C. A. hall Thursday night December 13. A programme of equally attractive as the one last year will be presented. Mr. Skiff tenor, will be assisted by Miss Mae Jean Colt, of New Haven, Conn. She enjoys an enviable reputation in the New England States as a reader and has declined several offers to go on the stage. As acompanist Mr. Skiff will have the services of Mrs. Caia Aarup Greene, of New York, who so ably assisted him last year. The programme will include three manuscript songs by Mrs. Green's compositions.

"Naming" a Member.

It is an ancient belief that a man's name has some mysterious sympathy with his nature, whence arise such stories as that of Rumpelstiltskin, whose power over a human being vanishes the moment that his name is pronounced aloud. It has been suggested with some show of reason that the modern practice of "naming" a refractory member of the British house of commons is merely a survival of this belief, which the Norsemen brought into England.

WASHING WITHOUT WATER

Is Like Trying to Get Rid of Dandruff Without Herpicide.

Did you ever see any one trying to wash themselves without soap or water?

If you did what would you say of him?

It is every bit as foolish to try to get rid of Dandruff and to prevent Baldness by feeding the germs which cause it with Cantharides, Vaseline, Glycerine and similar substances which form the principal ingredients of most so-called Hair Vigors.

Newbro's Herpicide is successful because it attacks and kills the parasitic germ which feeds on the hair roots.

It is the original and only genuine Dandruff Germicide manufactured.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The production of "Sapho," to be presented at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight by Kathryn Purnell, and her company, should arouse no little amount of interest among those familiar with the marked talent of the young star. Miss Purnell, though young in years, has attained a high place on the American stage, and the vehicles for her present starring tour is one that calls for all the good in her artistic nature, and which she seems to have supplied to the satisfaction of her critical judges and the public in general.

Theatre-goers of the last generation will remember Thomas W. Keene's thrilling portrayal of the role of a drunkard in an adaptation from the French play "L Assamoir," entitled "Drink." The nearest approach to such a character is a master creation of the dramatist, is to be found in Lincoln J. Carter's "Her Only Sin." The author has drawn a character on bold, broad lines that pictures the degeneracy of the drunkard with terrible versimiltude. Though this character is only in the first act, its sinister influence remains to govern events of later developments. "Her Only Sin" will be at the New Plainfield theatre on Wednesday night.

The dramatic incident of the coming week in which chief interest will centre will be the first revelation to our theatre-goers of the splendors of Rowland & Clifford's production of "Dora Thorne," a dramatization of Bertha M. Clay's famous novel. The piece has been declared a drama of more than usual effectiveness and power, and as a production is said to surpass anything Rowland & Clifford have as yet achieved. "Dora Thorne" is justly entitled to rank as one of the season's popular successes. It will be seen with the original cast and scenic environments next Thursday night at the New Plainfield theatre.

The "Grand Tour," as it used to be called, was a trip across the Atlantic and through Europe. Did you ever stop to think that practical science enables you to see very much of Europe and even more distant lands for a mere trifle, and never leave home? Its a fact. You can do it and it won't cost you as much as a dollar. Lyman H. Howe's moving pictures at the New Plainfield theatre on Friday night are the true counterpart of such a tour with every comfort and safety and at infinitesimal expense. You will see the sights and scenes the tourist sees ordinarily and many that are so far off the beaten track that even the "globe trotter" does not see them. Like Puck in Shakespeare's Midsummer Night's Dream, you really "put a girdle round the earth in two hours" when you see Lyman H. Howe's Lifeorama.

There has been much interest manifested in the forthcoming production of "The Matchmaker," with Daniel Sully in the title role as Father Daly at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night. This enthusiasm is warranted to such an artist as we know Mr. Sully to be, and doubly so when he is to be seen in such a marked and pleasing success as "The Matchmaker." The same play was given here last season by Mr. Sully and the opinion was universal that Mr. Sully had found a successor to his first success showing him a priest, "The Parish Priest." A more pronounced endorsement could not be asked for when it is considered that the former success served Mr. Sully for three whole years to most flattering results. With the many strong characters studies in "The Matchmaker" in the hands of clever artists there can be little more asked for. As it is the usual thing for Manager Edward L. Bloom to supply his companies with actors of this nature localities may lend their support with much assurance of complete satisfaction.

Mr. Daniel Sully as Father Daly, in "The Watchmaker," Next Saturday Afternoon and Evening.

PRINCETON'S 1,348 STUDENTS.

The University Catalogue to Be Issued Shortly.

Princton, Dec. 1.—The University Catalogue for the academic year 1906-1907 is now in the hands of the printer, and will be ready for distribution within a few weeks. The catalogue is to be similar to last year's as regards style, type, paper and number of pages. The general divisions are also the same.

The statistics from the catalogue show an enrolment in all departments of the university of 1,348, a decrease of 37 from last year. This year's freshman class shows a decrease of 63 under last year's entering class. The faculty has increased its numbers from 153 to 164. The graduate school shows a slight increase, while the number of special students is less than half that of last year. The classification by States show that the largest number of students are from Pennsylvania, which furnishes 330, New Jersey is second with 288, and New York third with 279. The remaining students are distributed among forty-one States and the British Isles, Canada, Japan, Cuba, Ceylon, Mexico, Porto Rico and Turkey.

The enrollment by classes is as follows: Graduate school, 112; academic department, seniors, 207; juniors, 181; sophomores, 167; freshmen, 139; John G. Green School of Science-Electrical Engineers, 6; senior class, 78; junior class, 67; sophomore class, 144; freshman class, 183. Students qualifying for regular standing, 37; special students, 27.

Captain Sverdrup, the arctic explorer, who recently added 100,000 square miles of ice to the king of Sweden's dominions, spent his boyhood days on a forest farm.

The Paris papers still insist that the Empress Eugenie went to Ischl on a matchmaking errand. She wants, it is said, the hand of a granddaughter of Francis Joseph for Prince Louis Napoleon.

Queen Maria Christina of Spain is said to be the only woman soverign who has made a balloon ascent. She has a great love for adventurous pursuits, and delights in reading books written for boys.

Lord de Lisle and Dudley has at his Pensurst place a relic that he treasures very highly. It is a stool covered in faded blue velvet, edged with silver cord, and on it Queen Victoria knelt to receive the sacrament at her coronation.

The secretary of the treasury has awarded life saving medals to Emile M. Wagner and Harry H. Kittel, cockswains on the battleships Alabama and Kearsarge respectively. Both men rescued shipmates who had been carried overboard.

A Strong Face.

"Facial expression," said the thoughtful looking man," is not confined to human beings by any means. For instance, some time ago I went to call on a friend of mine, who was not at home. However, a dog of his was there. I looked at the dog a moment, and he returned my look. Then something in the dog's face seemed to take hold of me and simply root me to the spot. It was his teeth!"—Chicago News.

"No golfer objects," said Samuel Stark, a pioneer player at Forest Park, "to a golf course being rested during the six or eight weeks in the early spring when the ground is soft and the new grass is starting. But experience has demonstrated that tramping on frozen turf, or on snow over turf, improves the texture of the grass. At the private clubs, besides winter golfing, coasting is encouraged on the links and the low spots are flooded for skating. The Forest Park course will be improved by being kept open until the frost begins to come out of the ground in March. There were 600 players on the course Election Day and 400 on Thanksgiving. Besides those who play at Forest Park every week, the holiday seekers of Christmas and New Year's Day will be discommoded by Park Commissioner Kennedy's order.

TO INSPECT JAIL.

Mrs. Williamson Will Inquire Into Conditions in Middlesex County.

New Brunswick, Dec. 3.—Charles Rogers, warden of the Middlesex county jail, has received the following letter from Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, of Elizabeth, of the State Charities' Aid Association, who, at a recent meeting of the association, severely criticised the local jail for its poor condition:

"I noticed in the papers that you have been doing a great deal for the jail since my visit, for much I am very, very glad. I should like to make mention in public of the fact, and think that the best thing that I can do will be to visit you very soon so that I can report as having seen for hmyself that I was mistaken in the condition of the jail at this time.

"I see that you agree with me that the jail is inadequate, and cannot be absolutely sanitary. Nothing will give me greater pleasure than to report better conditions in this jail. If it suits your convenience, and I do not hear from you to the contrary, I will go to New Brunswick on the 9:07 train from Elizabeth on Monday morning, the third day of December."

After Mrs. Williamson denounced the Middlesex jail Mr. Rogers gave out an interview declaring that Mrs. Williamson visited the jail only two weeks after the present administration took charge, and reported to her association nearly a year later. Mr. Rogers claimed that the jail at present is as sanitary as an antiquated structure of its pattern can be.

Mr. Rogers has answered Mrs. Williamson's letter, telling her he is sorry she set a date for her next call, because if she called then there might be some suspicion that the jail had been prepared for her inspection. He invited her to all on that or any other date.

The proposition of the Common Councilmen to increase the salaries of all men in both the fire and police departments is one that will meet with general approval, as will the scheme to increase the pay of the fire chief to make that official independent of the building inspector's salary. Those are two offices which should never be held by the same man and if the city fathers decide tonight to separate them for all time the best interests of the public will be served.

If it is the intention of the Common Council to confer the new detective-sergeantancy on some one other than Sergeant Frederickson, there are two men who should not be overlooked in making the selection and they are Roundsman Flynn and Patrolman Overbaugh.

church and one-third to the men. He said that the order could be reversed easily and in fact if proper care is taken of the boys in the Sunday-school they will get the habit of attending church and become useful members.

The Bishop declared that the services must be made attractive to men; there must be dignity in them. He held that men liked the dignified ritual of the lodge and they gather in such meetings because they like to be among men. "A minister cannot resort to sensationalism in his sermons and expect to attract men to his church," declared the Bishop. "Once you get the men attending your church give them something to do, make them think that they have talents which will be of use in spreading the gospel." The Bishop laid great stress on the importance of giving strangers a hearty welcome to church services, providing them with comfortable seats and making them feel at home.

DOWIE HAS NOW GONE RAVING MAD.

Man Who Got $15,000,000 From Zion, Led From Meeting a Lunatic.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—John Alexander Dowie has gone raving mad. His mind is now a wreck and it is believed that his end is near.

Two hundred of his followers in Zion gathered in Shiloh House, the Dowie home, to hear him deliver a sermon yesterday and were confronted by a mad man. Dowie's delusion is that he is a famous soldier. Weak physically and almost helpless, he incoherently harangued of a "battle" in which his commander, a famous "General," was slain. Then he himself won the battle.

"I have brought the general's body here in my tent," said he, "and am now making a funeral oration over it. The foreign powers are sending representatives to trat with me."

Nurses carried him out of the room. Dowie's wife and son have deserted him and are living in the Dowie summer home in Michigan. Dowie has cursed the pair. Mrs. Dowie is both wife and first cousin.

Dowie is said to have taken in $15,000,000 in the thirteen years he has been in Chicago. There is nothing to show for it but $6,000,000 debts.

H. G. Black, of Fairview avenue, is spending the week in Chicago on business.

Miss Margaret Kenney, of East Second street, has returned from a visit with friends in New York.

Mrs. Mary Moran, of Lincoln place, who has been ill for a long time, is still unable to go outside of her home.

Plainfield Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., will hold a "ladies' night" entertainment tonight.

Wings and Flies

By Tom Muir

The ever-welcome "Mayor of Tokio" is to return to Plainfield on Saturday, January 19. Though Richard Carle is out of the cast, the production will be practically the same as when it was here before. His part is being taken by John L. Kearney, a comedian who has risen rapidly in this particular field. His work in "The Mayor of Tokio" has naturally brought much comment and comparison of his and Carle's methods and Kearney has gained by them. There may be some similarity at times between his intehpretation and that of his predecessor but there is an originality and force in Kearney's work that stamps him as one to the manner born. His previous greatest success was as the flirting Englishman in "The Chinese Honeymoon."

Speaking of Richard Carle, he and his company presenting "A Spring Chicken," have been crowded out of Daley's theatre owing to previous contracts for "The Belle of Mayfair," the new English piece being produced by Thomas W. Ryley of "Floradora" fame. "A Spring Chicken" will roost for this week but on next Monday night will resume its cackling at the New Amsterdam for a limited time. After that Plainfield may get it.

Frederick Thompson, one of the proprietors of Luna Park and identified with other large amusement enterprises, married last Friday night Miss Mabel Taliaferro, a young actress of dainty beauty and winning personality. She and Mr. Thompson had met only two weeks previously but his courtship was as vigorous as have been his business activities. Miss Taliaferro, who is now Mrs. Thompson, is but nineteen years old and is a sister to Miss Edith Taliaferro, who was seen in Plainfield a short time ago as "Lovey Mary" in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," a part which Mrs. Thompson created.

When Daniel Sully first produced "The Parish Priest" he met with much opopsition from people of ultra-religious tendencies who were strongly against the character of a priest being portrayed on the stage; he had a hard time convincing the public that the play was meritorious but in the end he succeeded and "The Parish Priest" became one of his great triumphs. So thoroughly has he become identigfied with the part of a good wholesome priest from his connection with the part of Father Whalen in his former play, and Father Daly in his last and greatest of all plays, "The Matchmaker," that it is doubtful if he will ever be accepted in anything but a clerical role. It took Mr. Sully three years to find such a play as he wanted and the unparalleled success of last season in "The Matchmaker" is convincing proof that another "Rip Van Winkle" and "Old Homestead" has been brought out. It is a story of romance in Idaho in which Mr. Sully appears as the pastor of a little church in one of the rough mining towns so numerous in that section; the play is interestingly dramatic and woven throughout with a rich flow of Celtic humor that makes it all the more refreshing. Mr. Sully is to appear in this city next Saturday under the auspices of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus.

C., at the university last week, learned from the report of the treasurer, Michael Jenkins, of Baltimore, that the university is entirely free of debt, despite the fact that the endowment amounts to only $400,000, and that the only other source of revenue is from collections taken in the various Catholic churches throughout the country for this special purpose.

DEER AND TROUT ON LINE.

Stories of Remarkable Catches Made in North Woods.

To kill a deer and catch a trout at the same time out-Nimrods Nimrod and out-Izaaks Walton. A fisherman has just done the trick on the Arrow lakes. The deer weighed 200 pounds and the trout ten. The fisherman was trolling for trout when several deer swam past his boat. One was an old buck and the man managed to catch hold of him as he was going by.

Having no gun, he tried to kill the animal with a clasp knife, says the Toronto Globe. The buck objected so strenuously that he got away, swimming off with the fishing line upon his horns. The fisherman bailed out his boat and started in pursuit. After two hours' rowing he caught up with the deer, and with oars and knife succeeded in slaying it. While the chase was proceeding a big trout got on to the hook and after the deer was safely landed the fish was secured. It is quite a common occurrence to see deer swimming in the lakes of British Columbia, but to capture one and a trout at the same time is infrequent.

Conductor McKay, of the Nakusp and Slocan branch of the Canadian Pacific railway, previously held honors in Kootenay for securing a wild animal in unique fashion. He, while on a moving train near Nakusp, shot and killed a big bear, but the fisherman has put him in the shade. Even the captain of the Okanagan lake steamer, who secured an eagle by shooting it from the pilot house, has had his fame eclipsed; while Neil Getthing, who tried to lasso a deer from the deck of the old steamer W. Hunter on Slocan lake, and failed by a horn's breadth, is quite outdistanced.

The only man who can come near to the fisherman's record is W. Hall, of South Vancouver, who a few days ago killed an old bear and three cubs who were eating his strawberries in a big patch just outside the city limits; but he had no fish with which to adorn the tale he told the reporters.

WAITERS ALL QUIT.

Hotel Full of Non-Tipping Ministers Too Much for Them.

A mysterious walkout of waiters occurred recently in Brooklyn at the hotel where 300 Methodist ministers met in an annual conference. The waiters, paid at the usual rate, asked for extra money, and, not getting it, departed in a body.

A second force was engaged, and very shortly they, too, quit, leaving the clergy in imminent peril of famine.

Did the waiters happen to be Presbyterians? Was a physical plague or a spiritual contamination feared by the garcons, who hesitated not to serve saloon keepers and tainted money kings? The ministers felt hurt. Neither theology nor experience seemed able to indicate the cause of this unjust discrimination.

A waiter, however, made everything clear and simple by saying:

"The preachers never give us tips; see? That's the trouble."—N. Y. Tribune.

Ink Slinging in Parliament.

I have no wish to make odious comparisons between our legislators and others, but having watched the proceedings of other parliaments I feel that we have no reason to fear comparison, says M. A. P. For instance, I once looked on when the parliament in Vienna was in full blast. There was a party in the state there which sought to advance its views by its members banging the lid of the desk which each member had before him, and thus causing an intolerable din. These gentlemen I venture to describe as the liddites of the Austrian parliament. Another group attempted to make its mark by throwing ink pots across the chamber. I have done some ink-slinging in my time, but the prowess shown by these legislative ink-slingers filled me with admiring despair, and I would have called them the hittites had it not been for the fact that they often missed. Now such practices are unknown at Westminster—though it is only fair to acknowledge that we do not give our members the opportunity of banging lids or throwing ink pots.

Forever Young.

J. Ogden Armour, returning to America on the Kronprinz Wilhelm, neatly pricked the "child musician" bubble.

A young man was praising the various child musicians of the last few seasons.

"And there is Nicolo, that wonderful boy violinist," he exclaimed. "Have you ever heard the nine-year-old Nicolo?"

"O, yes," said Mr. Armour, yawning, "I heard him 15 years ago at Covent Garden."

Progress.

"Oh, yes, he's pretty deep in politics now."

"Well, that's not surprising; that has been his bent for years."

"Bent? Huh! He's positively crooked now."—Philadelphia Press.

CHAPTER I.

The Dead City.

The city without life lay handsomely along a river in the early sunlight of a September morning. Death had seemingly not been long upon it, nor had it made any scar. No breach or rent or disorder or sign of violence could be seen. The long, shaded streets breathed the still airs of utter peace and quiet. From the half-circle around which the broad river bent its moody current, the neat houses, set in cool, green gardens, were terraced up the high hill, and from the summit of this a stately marble temple, glittering of newness, towered far above them in placid benediction.

From a skiff in mid-river, a young man rowing toward the dead city rested on his oars and looked over his shoulder to the temple on the hilltop.

Landing presently at the wharf, he was stunned by the hush of the streets. This was not like the city of 20,000 people he had left three months before. In blank bewilderment he stood, turning to each quarter for some solution of the mystery. Perceiving at length that there was really no life either way along the river, he started wonderingly up a street that led from the waterside—a street which, when he had last walked it, was quickening with the rush of a mighty commerce.

Soon his expression of wonder was darkened by a shade of anxiety. There was an unnerving quality in the trance-like stillness; and the mystery of it pricked him to forebodings. He was now passing empty workshops, hesitating at door after door with ever-mounting alarm. Then he began to call, but the sound of his voice served only to aggravate the silence.

Growing bolder, he tried some of the doors and found them to yield, letting him into a kind of smothered, troubled quietness even more oppressive than that outside. He passed an empty ropewalk, the hemp strewn untidily about, as if the workers had left hurriedly. He peered curiously at idle looms and deserted spinning-wheels—deserted apparently but the instant before he came. It seemed as if the people were fled maliciously just in front, to leave him in this fearfullest of all solitudes. He wondered if he did not hear their quick, furtive steps, and see the vanishing shadows of them.

At last, half-way up the next block, he thought his eyes caught for a short half-second the mere thin shadow of a skulking figure. It had seemed to pass through a grape arbour that all but shielded from the street a house slightly more pretentious than its neighbors. He ran toward the spot, calling as he went. But when he had vaulted over the low fence, run across the garden and around the end of the arbor, dense with the green leaves and clusters of purple grapes, the space in front of the house was bare. If more than a trick-phantom of his eye had been there, it had vanished.

He stepped inside and called. There was no answer, but above his head a board creaked. He started up the stairs in front of him, and, as he did so, he seemed to hear cautious steps across a bare floor above. He stopped climbing; the steps ceased. He started up, and the steps came again. He knew now they came from a room at the head of the stairs. He bounded up the remaining steps and pushed open the door with a loud "Halloo!"

The room was empty. Yet across it there was the indefinable trail of a presence—an odor, a vibration, he knew not what—and where a bar of sunlight cut the gloom under a half-raised curtain, he saw the motes in the air all astir. Opposite the door he had opened was another, leading, apparently, to a room at the back of the house.

Determined to be no longer eluded, he crossed the room on tiptoe and gently tried the opposite door. It was locked. As he leaned against it, almost in a terror of suspense, he knew he heard again those little seemings of a presence a door's thickness away. He did not hesitate. Still holding the turned knob in his hand, he quickly crouched back and brought his flexed shoulder heavily against the door. It flew open with a breaking sound, and, with a little gasp of triumph, he was in the room to confront its unknown occupant.

Then, from behind the door he had opened, a staggering blow was dealt him, and, before he could recover, or had done more than blindly crook one arm protectingly before his face, he was borne heavily to the floor, writhing in a grasp that centered all its crushing power about his throat.

CHAPTER II.

The Wild Ram of the Mountains.

Slight though his figure was, it was lithe and active and well-muscled, and he knew as they struggled that his assailant was possessed of no greater advantage than had lain in his point of attack. In strength, apparently, they were well matched. Twice they rolled over on the carpeted floor, and then, despite the big, bony hands [illegible] his burden under him, and all but loosened the killing clutch. This brought them close to the window, but again he was swiftly drawn underneath.

As the light flooded in, he saw the truth, even before his new panting and sneezing antagonist did. Releasing the pressure from his throat with a sudden access of strength born of the new knowledge, he managed to gasp, though thickly and with pain, as they still strove:

"Seth Wright—wait—let go—wait, Seth—I'm Joel—Joel Rae!"

He managed it with difficulty.

"Joel Rae—Rae—Rae—don't you see?"

They looked at each other in panting amazement, until the older man recovered his breath and spoke:

"Gosh and all beeswax! The Wild Ram of the Mountains a-settin' on the Lute of the Holy Ghost's stomach a-chokin' him to death. My sakes! I'm a-pantin' like a tuckered hound—a-thinkin' he was a cussed millshy mobocrat come to spoil his household!"

The younger man was now able to speak, albeit his breathing was still heavy and the marks of the struggle plain upon him.

"What does it mean, Brother Wright—all this? Where are the Saints we left here—why is the city deserted—and why this—this?"

"Thought you was a millshy man, I tell you, from the careless way you hollered—one of Brockman's devils come back a-snoopin', and I didn't crave trouble, but when I saw the Lord appeared to reely want me to cope with the powers of darkness, why, I jist gritted into you for the consolation of Israel. You'd 'a' got your come-uppance, too, if you'd 'a' been a mobber. You was nigh a-ceasin' to breathe, Joel Rae. In another minute I wouldn't 'a' give the ashes of a rye-straw for your part in the tree of life!"

"Yes, yes, man, but go back a little. Where are our people, the sick, the old, and the poor, that ye had to leave till now? Tell me, quick."

A Staggering Blow Was Dealt Him.

The older man sprang up, the late struggle driven from his mind, his face scowling. He turned upon his questioner.

"Does my fury swell up in me? No wonder! And you hain't guessed why? Well, them pitiful remnant of Saints, the sick, the old, the poor, waitin' to be helped yender to winter quarters, has been throwed out into that there slough across the river, six hundred and forty of 'em."

"When we were keeping faith by going?"

"What does a mobocrat care for faith-keepin'? Have you brought back the wagons?"

"Yes; they'll reach the other side to-night. I came ahead and made the lower crossing. I've seen nothing and heard nothing. Go on—tell me—talk, man!"

Try fine sandpaper on ivory handled knives that have yellowed with age. Neither ivory nor woden handles should ever be allowed to go into the water. They should be washed in the hands and immediately dried.

PLAINFIELD ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL TEAM WINS

DEFEAT OLD RIVALS FROM THE OCEANIC BY QUICK WORK.

By quick passing and a readiness to seize every advantage, the Plainfield Association football team defeated their old rivals of the steamship Oceanic Saturday afternoon. The score was 3 to 0. The game took place on the home grounds.

Both teams played fast from the start. While the wind was too high for accurate kicking the game was prettily played. Plainfield scored her first goal in the middle of the first half, Jameson sending the ball through for a goal after a clever pass by Jack Martin.

In the second half the Oceanics nearly scored. They got at Plainfield's goal and sent the ball in, and but for quick work by Morgan, the goal, who knocked the ball out just in the nick of time, they would at least have escaped a whitewashing.

The teams were well matched. Each visited the other's end and there were lively times at every stage of the play. Smeaton played a great game.

After the contest the visitors were entertained at supper at Cleveley's restaurant in the upstairs dining room. The committee in charge of the supper was made up of D. B. Martin, William Spalding, William Howes and William McGregor.

FOOTBALL.

It was an interesting record that was made by the University of Syracuse eleven this fall, and a most creditable showing on the whole, the latter part of the schedule especially The Syracusans were the victims of one of the topheavy scores of the season, and they also made several onesided scores against opponents. Starting with a 28 to 6 victory over Hobart and following by defeating Rochester 38 to 0 was the encouraging beginning and indicative of no inconsiderable strength. The next game was with Yale, and everything pointed to a much better performance than a 51 to 0 defeat by the Elis, though the latter in the end proved to be the leading eleven of the season. The Syracusans must have been at their worst in this game, but in any event they were not crushed by a crushing defeat. Their performance in succeeding games showed a splendid rallying spirit. They tackled Hamilton next and won, 36 to 0. Then came a hard and close game with Colgate, which the latter won, 5 to 0. The strong and shifty Indians followed on the Syracuse schedule, but the expected cakewalk did not materalize, the Indians winning only 9 to 4. Then the Syracusans again switched from defeat to a big score. They beat Niagara, 46 to 0. The next opponent was Lafayette, who had played a tie with Pennsylvania, and as Lafayette had beaten Colgate, 17 to 6, the "dope" pointed to another defeat for Syracuse. Instead, the game was a surprise to the extent of a 12 to 4 victory for Syracuse. Finally, the best brace of all, came the game with the West Pointers, who had held Harvard to 5 to 0, Yale to 10 to 6 and Princeton to 8 to 0. The score was 4 to 0 in favor of Syracuse. The latter actually defeated the team which had held Yale to 10 to 6 and that after Yale had beaten Syracuse 51 to 0. Instead of disheartening, the overwhelming defeat of the early season served to brace.

Howard Linn, the Yale halfback, is an instance of appearances being deceitful. Linn is pale and slim and not robust looking. Yet in both the Harvard and Princeton games he was one of the best ground gainers on the field while he played. He was light but wiry and determined and was a dangerous man on the offence. He took his opening and accurately as a bullet flying to the mark, was slippery and hard to check. Mild and inoffensive in appearance, he was all fire and dash. In style of play and appearance he was very much like Lament, the Williams back, who was hurt and did not finish the season. Lament made every bit of his weight tell, and in defence was viligant, quick and cool. He was a deadly tackler, fearless and followed the ball instinctively. He did some of the prettiest tackling of the season in the West Point game. He was one of those players who was not to be brushed aside by interference, but weaved through it.

PRESS COMMENTS

The Brooklyn Daily Eagle:
"'The Lions of the Lord' is an immensely impressive story. Without affectation, without strain, without caricature, it affords a picture of the flight into the wilderness, and of the men who converted that flight into a purposeful and ultimately triumphant conquest, which has not hitherto been equalled."

The Chicago Record-Herald:
"Harry Leon Wilson, author of 'The Spenders,' has achieved a distinct advance in his new novel, 'The Lions of the Lord.' This is a more serious and impressive work, strongly dramatic in its general conception, and well executed. There are light and tender touches all through the book, making it on the whole as cheerful as it is engrossing."

PRIEST CHALLENGES M. E. BISHOP TO PROVE WORDS

Father Bogan Denounces Bishop Neely For Slandering the Roman Catholic Faith.

OFFERS $100 TO CHARITY

That Amount for Hospital if South America Prelate Will Prove that Wicked Man Can Buy Way Out of Purgatory.

Rev. B. M. Bogan, the scholarly priest of St. Mary's, offers to donate $100 to Muhlenberg hospital if Bishop Thomas Neely, of South America, will prove a statement he made at the First M. E. church on Sunday night. The Methodist bishop declared at that time that the Catholic Church "teaches that a man can be wicked all his life and then be prayed out of purgatory for a small sum." Such a statement is branded by the priest as a falsehood.

The following letter, containing the offer, was received this morning:

"St. Mary's Rectory,
"Plainfield, N. J.,
"December 3, 1906.

"Editor, The Daily Press:

"My attention has been drawn to the report of an address delivered at the First Methodist church last evening and published in this evening's edition of The Daily Press, wherein a Methodist Bishop previous to taking up a collection, is quoted as saying that: 'The Catholich Church teaches that a man can be wicked all his life and then can be prayed out of Purgatory for a small sum.'

"Ingrate indeed would I be were I to hold my peace when faith in the fair name of my Mother were made the subject of malignant insult. None the less infamous would silence be when foul invective is uttered against my religious faith, when its assailed representatives are too far away to defend themselves. The Catholic Church ten thousand miles away is the same Catholic Church whose members the Right Reverend Collector has insulted in this city. Sins there are and have been and shall be, for which humble atonement is daily offered by Pope and peasant, priest and people alike; but, share as we may the human frailties of our fellow-men, never have we descended to the depth degrading wherin we appeal for help to spread the knowledge of Christian charity by detraction and calumny. It is indeed a sad commentary on the intelligence of any American audience when an appeal to the pocket is made by such vulgar tactics.

"If, in the conflict for religious advance in South America, over whose vast area from Panama to Terra del Fuego, the Right Reverend Collector holds episcopal supervision, and with the length of whose rivers and the heights of whose mountains he shows himself as familiar as any tot in our Kindegarten, he fears Protestantism will be utterly routed, surely the intelligence of his audience must have demanded a foe worthier of their steel than the pictured horde of immoral, illiterate, uncivilized Roman Catholics.

"As a citizen, with the dearest interests of our fair city at heart, I protest against such vulgar efforts to stir up religious rancor, to engender strife, where not only the law but the best of real American sentiment holds the protecting aegis of 'The Square Deal' above Protestant and Catholic alike. One hundred dollars, to be given to that most worthy institution of Christian charity, the Muhlenberg Hospital, awaits the production by the Right Reverend Speaker of an accredited document wherein the Catholic Church has at any time, or any place taught such a monstrous doctrine as 'A man can be wicked all his life and then be prayed out of Purgatory for a small sum.'

"'Oh, the rarity of Christian Charity
Under the sun.'"

Bishop Neely had said in the course of his remarks on Sunday night:

"What is the religion of South America? There is Paganism and Romanism in the worst form and type, that which teaches that a man can be wicked all his life and then be prayed out of purgatory for a small sum. South America needs the touch of Protestantism. Romanism does not touch or benefit the people."

Will Tell of National Convention.

Under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. a parlor meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. J. Hamilton, 407 East Seventh street, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Miss Emma L. Starr will give a talk on the National W. C. T. U. convention held in Boston.

VICTOR HUGO AS THE SPOKESMAN FOR FRANCE

SUBJECT OF LECTURE BY DR. PAGE BEFORE MONDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

The study of Victor Hugo as novelist dramatist and poet, which has occupied the members of the Monday Afternoon Club during the past two months, was concluded yesterday with a charming lecture at the Casino given by Curtis Hidden Page, Ph. D., of Columbia University, on the subject, "Victor Hugo as Spokesman for France." Professor Page described in a forceful manner the conditions in the political life of France from the date of the Revolution in 1789; its effect on Victor Hugo's life and character and Victor Hugo's influence on its history and destiny.

His mother was a Royalist, but this great writer, born in 1802, developed high ideals for his country and the world and stood for equality, fraternity, the enlargement of civilization and the amelioration of suffering. Referring to poor men who had won high places, Victor Hugo said it was a greater thing for an aristocrat and royalist to become a democrat. Professor Page quoted Hugo as saying: "France deserved Austerlitz, but the Empire deserved Waterloo." He dwelt briefly on his exile because he opposed the plans of Napoleon Third and his return to Paris when that monarch lost his throne.

The speaker gave as evidence of Victor Hugo's political foresight in his clear understanding of the conditions in our own American nation. Before Sumter was fired upon, Hugo said he feared the dissolution of the union, but rejoiced in the prospect of the abolition of slavery. Later, he said that Spain should be driven from her North American possessions and Cuba should be free.

A high place was claimed by Professor Page for Victor Hugo as a novelist and dramatist though in the former he was sometimes grotesque and excessive and in the latter was sometimes melodramatic, but as a poet in his own tongue he considered him perfect. At the close of the lecture, which held the close attention of a large audience, Professor Page read a couple of French poems by request.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING.

Only Routine Matters Transacted at the Regular Monthly Session.

The regular monthly meeting of the city Board of Education was held last night but practically nothing beyond routine matters was transacted. The tax collector reported the collection of $8,807.28 and the custodian made it known that the balance on hand is $8,158.43. Superintendent Maxson stated that outside scholars had paid in $615 during the fall term and that the revenue from this source for the year would probably be $2,400.

Henry Ives Cobb and Floyd Y. Parsons, architects, applied for permission to draw plans for the new school to be erected on Darrow avenue. The matter was referred. Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert presented the High School a set of the National Encyclopedia, twelve volumes, bound in half Morocco. The bond of George J. Tobin, submitted for the faithful execution of his heating and ventilating contract at the High School, was returned, the work having proved satisfactory.

Planning a Congo Meeting.

F. E. Kinsman, who is specially interested in the work of the Congo State Reform Association, has secured the consent of Rev. Everett Burr to speak in this city at a public meeting to be held at some place to be decided upon. Mr. Burr occupied the pulpit at the First Baptist church Sunday morning, speaking on this subject, and it was then believed that it might be wise to hold a public meeting soon, when further light on the subject can be gained.

Parents' Meeting.

Following the custom of former years, the leader of the primary department of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Sunday-school invites all who are interested in children, and especially the parents whose children are in the department, to a parents' meeting to be held Wednesday night, December 12. A talk will be given by W. D. Murray on "The Training of the Will."

Attendants at Elizabeth Wedding.

Alexander Wolfgang Mack, of Somerville, was the best man and John B. Parmelee, of the same place, was an usher at the wedding on Saturday in Christ Episcopal church, Elizabeth, of Miss Alice Margueritte Schultze, daughter of the late Frederick Sidney, and Matilda Schultze and Henry M. Parmelee.

CITY EMPLOYEES' RAISE

Ordinance Passed on Second Reading Gives Chiefs 14 Per Cent. Increase.

10 P. C. FOR THE MEN

Captaincy and Detective-Sergeancy Created in Police Department —Final Passage This Month.

Steps were taken at the December meeting of the Common Council, last night, to give the policemen and firemen the raise in their salaries that they have been seeking for some time. The men had asked the Common Council to allow the voters to express their will in the matter of an increase in accordance with the new State law, but instead a new schedule of salaries based on an increase of ten per cent., in all cases, except those of the heads of the two departments, was presented in the form of ordinances, last night, adopted on first and second readings and ordered advertised.

In each case, Councilman Buxton introduced an amendment affecting the regular men, which would give them an increase of fifteen per cent. He said that he did this with the understanding that if he could not get the fifteen per cent. increase he would then abide by the decision of the caucus and vote for the ten per cent. increase. Mr. Daniel said he thought Mr. Buxton's action manifestly unfair, inasmuch as Councilman Mellick, chairman of the fire committee, was absent, while Mr. Gloak said that inasmuch as the ten per cent. increase was unanimously decided upon, he would vote against making it fifteen per cent. Both members fought against the fifteen per cent. raise.

Mr. Tyler asked Chairman Frank Randolph, of the police committee, why it was thought advisable to create two new offices in the police department, that of captain and detective sergeant. The Fourth ward member explained that it would give the department more officers and would also prove an incentive to the men lower in the ranks to work up. Mr. Tyler added that when he was on the police committee he found that too many officers made it confusing and was not always satisfactory.

Mr. Randolph first introduced the ordinance increasing the salaries of the men in the police department, section three being amended to provide changes as follows:

Chief, $1,600; captain, $1,100; sergeant and detective sergeant, $68 per month for the first year, $74 per month for the second year, $79 per month for the fourth and fifth years, $85 per month for the sixth year and thereafter; doorman, $55 per month; roundsmen and patrolmen, $66 per month for the first year, $72 per month for the second year, $77 per month for the third, fourth and fifth years, $83 per month for the sixth year and thereafter. The changes are to become effective January 1, 1907. The men in the department are to receive pay for the actual time in service, but it is left discretionary with the committee to reimburse an officer if he should be ill or incapacitated while in the performance of his duty. The men are also to provide themselves with such uniforms as the ordinance requires. As stated the increase amounts to ten per cent, except in the case of Chief Kiely, whose increase amounts to fourteen per cent.

Mr. Buxton's amendment related solely to the sergeant, detective sergeant, roundsmen and patrolmen. His schedule for the roundsmen and patrolmen was as follows: First year $69, second year $75, third, fourth and fifth years $77.50, sixth year and thereafter $80.50. His schedule for the sergeant and detective sergeant was as follows: First year $69, second year $75, third, fourth and fifth years $80.50, sixth year and thereafter $87.50.

When the question of adopting the amendment was proposed, Mr. Daniel wanted to refer the whole matter back to the committee until such time as all of the members would have an opportunity to confer about it. Finally he withdrew his motion to refer it back and a vote was taken on the amendment, it being lost by a vote of five to three. Councilmen Buxton, Charles C. Randolph and Frank Randolph voted in favor, while Councilmen Daniel, Gloak, Hibbard, Tyler and Tolles voted against it.

This ordinance being disposed of, Mr. Randolph offered the one increasing the salaries of the members of the fire department, in the absence of Chairman Mellick of that committee. These salaries are also to go into effect January 1, 1907, and the ordinance was amended to provide for these changes in salaries: Chief, $1,100; first assistant chief $1,000; three captains, each $924;

COLD WEATHER AND FROZEN HYDRANT BOTHER FIREMEN

EXPERIENCE ALL MANNER OF DIFFICULTIES AT EARLY MORNING BLAZE.

While the wind was blowing an embryonic gale and the thermometer kept flirting with the zero mark, the city fire department was called out at 6:20 this morning for a blaze at the home of Joseph Coniskie, located on Evona avenue, just off Third street. The firemen met with all sorts of difficulties beside the villainous weather from a mix-up in the alarm to a frozen hydrant but they did splendid work. The house was saved from destruction and a liberal estimate places the loss at $400.

What started the fire is unknown to Chief Doane and Coniskie. It evidently had its origin in the ceiling above the kitchen and when discovered by the family was making its way up between the walls to the attic. An alarm was turned in from box 49 but it gave a jumble of numbers on the gong and house tappers so that the department was unable to respond. Nearly ten minutes afterward 49 was again pulled by John Kriney and it came in without a flitch.

The first hydrant tried was at Evona and Hunter avenues and it was found frozen solid, the first time such a thing has occurred in the history of the department. The next nearest one was at Evona and Clinton avenues and it was all right, though 1,500 feet of hose had to be laid in. Proper pressure was secured by attaching the steamer.

The work of checking the fire had been progressing, however, as the chemical engine from the West End house was busy. Two tanks had been emptied when the hydrant stream was turned on and the flames were soon extinguished. It was so cold while the department was at work that the spray from the hose froze on the nozzle men and they were enveloped in ice from head to foot. The house is not badly damaged.

The loss is covered by insurance, both on the building and furniture. It was known yesterday that the fire alarm was off color in spots and electricians had been at work on it. They got busy again the first thing this morning and located the trouble that caused box 49 to go wrong, it being due to a ground in the circuit.

STOCK BROKERS OPEN.

Branch of Mills & Co., Begins Business Here Today.

Mills Bros. & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, has opened a branch of the New York office in the Stirling building on Park avenue, adjoining The Plainfield Trust Company. W. DeLa R. Anderson is in charge of the local office. The ticker is now working and there is a direct wire to New York, making it possible to execute orders in less than three minutes.

The mebers of the firm are nephews of John D. Archibald, vice president of the Standard Oil Company, and their information concerning the market is generally considered correct. Books of reference of corporations and railroads will be at the service of the people and the statistical department of the company will look up any security value, intrinsic and speculative. One decided feature will be that the important happenings of the country will reach Plainfield before they are published in New York.

WALTER VAIL DEAD.

Fatal Injuries From Being Caught Between Cars.

Walter L. Vail, son of the late Mahlon Vail, of this city, and a cousin of A. C. Vail, of West Eighth street, died at his home in Los Angeles, Cal., Sunday morning, from injuries received in a street car accident last Thursday, when he was crushed between two cars. Mr. Vail was the owner of Santa Rosa Island and was one of the early Southern California cattle kings, being a member of the firm of Vail & Gates. He was fifty-eight years old and leaves a wife and seven children, five sons and two daughters. He is survived by a sister, Miss Agnes Vail, of Park avenue. Mr. Vail was also a relative of the late Miss Catherine Webster and was one of those remembered in her will.

VOTING MACHINES DEAR

City Pays a Bill of $92.55 For Protecting the Junk Until Next Election.

MR. DANIEL PROTESTS

One Bill for $36.35 for "Instruction" and Setting Machines Up—Routine Work of Council.

In the opinion of Councilman Leslie M. Daniel the voting machine is a rather expensive thing for Plainfield. At the December meeting of the Comon Council, last night, an insurance policy covering the insurance of the four voting machines used at the last election was presented. It was learned that the premium on this is $30.20. In addition there is an bill for $26 for storage and another bill for $36.35 for instruction and setting the machines up, making a total of $92.55. Mr. Daniel did not let the opportunity pass to express his disapproval of the expense. The insurance policy is for $2,000, each machine being valued at $500.

Edward McCarthy protested against being taxed for a dog he does not own and the matter was referred to the finance committee. Thomas M. Day and others petition for a crosswalk at Putnam and the east side of Carlton avenues, and the matter was referred to the street committee. A petition for three electric lights on West Eighth street, between Monroe avenue and the city line was referred to the light committee.

The request from Jacob Harz, of 324 Richmond street, for permission to move the building at that address to 320 Richmond street, was granted upon the motion of Councilman Frank Randolph, with the understanding that it meets with the approval of the building inspector.

Upon the motion of Chairman Daniel, of the finance committee, the offer of Mrs. Cornelia A. Gavett to purchase John Hoffneagle's land on West Third street and Clinton avenue, which was bought in by the city for taxes, for the sum of $191.51, was accepted.

The petition from the Plainfield Land Improvement Company and another one from A. D. Thompson, asking that the city connect Denmark road and Dixie Lane with the sanitary sewer, were referred to the street and sewer committee.

A lengthy communication was received from F. J. Harris in which he sets forth an error on the part of the city in assessing land owned by him, which has been assessed by Middlesex county and the taxes paid. The land in question is on the line dividing Union and Middlesex counties in the western part of the city. As this matter has been considered by the finance committee before, Mr. Daniel moved that it be referred to the corporation counsel for an opinion. This was done.

Upon the request of Warren B. Travell, of this city, who has the contract for installing the pumping station in connection with the building of the southside sanitary sewer, the time for filing his bond was extended to December 3, and on motion of Mr. Gloak, the time for filing the bond of Peter Morgan, of Poughkeepsie, who has the contract for building the sewer, was extended to December 17.

Clerk Horace G. Adams, of the district court, reported the receipts for the past month to be $82.05 and the balance $60.32, after paying expenses.

Mr. Gloak reported back the petition of Sydney T. Perrin, of West Seventh street, in which he complained about a street matter, which has been fixed, and the petition was filed.

Mr. Daniel offered a resolution which provided for the borrowing of $2,000 to meet the expense of sanitary sewer work in the West End and the East End of the city, and another resolution offered by the same member provided that the Mayor and city clerk be authorized to execute two street improvement bonds of $1,000 each, the same to be secured by notes.

On motion of Mr. Daniel the tax collector was instructed to return to J. W. Reinhart the sum of $54.07 in taxes paid by him in error, and a similar motion was adopted refunding to A. B. Davies the sum of $10.46 in taxes paid in error.

In connection with a previous petition from B. F. & W. Tallamy asking that Arlington avenue, between Fourth and Fifth streets be widened, Dr. J. B. Probasco, president of the Board of Education, communicated with the Common Council, last night, making a similar request. It is understood that the Tallamy brothers, as well as the Board of Education are willing to donate land for the purpose. Dr. Probasco requested that an ordinance providing for the widening be adopted after the city accepts the avenue. On motion of Mr. Gloak the peetition was filed with

WOUNDS JEWELER AND FLEES W

Robber Emptie Leo Slonim an After Being T to the Floor

FELLED MRS. SL

Pretending to Be a Customer, Th Got Jeweler Off His Guard in Store Near Midnight Last Night.

Craft, nerve and desperation characterized the robbery effected by a hold-up man at Leo Slonim's jewelry store, West Front street, at 11:45 o'clock last night. In making his getaway, which was beautifully successful and left the police with no trace of his trail, the crook shot the jeweller in the right arm. He took $350 worth of diamond rings with him.

The robbery was executed in the glare of holiday illumination, in the sight of Slonim's wife and his porter. In making his escape, after a sharp battle with the jeweler, the hold-up man knocked Mrs. Slonim down on the sidewalk.

The crook entered the store at 10 o'clock. Slonim and his wife, who, with the porter, were in the store at the time, agree that he was young and blond, about five feet six inches tall, with fresh complexion and the features of a Swede or German. He wore a long gray cravenette coat, blue sweater with red collar, and a black soft hat. He said he came from Westfield, and wanted to deal with Slonim because the jeweller had been recommended to him as a good man from whom to buy diamonds. Pleasant relations having thus been established, the jeweller started to show the stranger his stock.

The young man said he was a new hand at buying jewelry and he acted like it. He seemed torn by the conflicting charms of the rings, and an hour and a half fled without even the appearance of any decision as to choice. Mrs. Slonim grew tired, and threw out hints as to bedtime, but the jeweller did not like to hurry a young man struggling with the choice of his first diamond ring, and he allowed the stranger to dally on.

At 11:45 o'clock, when the street was quiet, cleared of even the usual late homegoer or two by the bitter wind, the stranger was still debating as to his choice of a diamond. He asked to see the trayful of diamonds again, and Slonim took his finest assortment of rings from the window placed it on the showcase. The stranger had a seventy-five dollar ring in his finger.

'Don't you want that one you have on?" asked Slonim.

The young man cast a quick look toward the street. He was standing within two steps of the door.

"Yes," he said suddenly; "I want this and all the rest of them."

He snatched for the tray with his left hand, and jerked a big revolver from the inside breast pocket of his coat with the other. Slonim disregarded the weapon, and started around the corner of the counter. The crook snatched at least three rings, and fired as he sprang for the door. He fired two more shots, and then Slonim, blocking his escape by slamming an iron-barred guard gate at the door, closed with him. Slonim threw him, and wrested the revolver from his hand, but the crook flung the jeweller from him, scrambled to his feet and dashed out of the door.

In the meanwhile Mrs. Slonim, running through the back of the store to the hall had rushed to a side entrance on the street, shrieking "Police!" and "Murder!" She stepped out to the sidewalk to continue her cries just as the hold-up man dashed out of the store and turned in her direction. He knocked her down without hesitation and continued his flight. She turned as she fell and saw him disappear around the corner of Madison avenue in the direction of the railroad.

Her shrieks aroused the neighborhood, and attracted Patrolmen Messler and Flynn. The officers notified headquarters, from where word was sent to Chief Kiely, and every man on the force was put on the hunt for the crook.

Slonim was found to be suffering from a bullet wound in the right arm, just under the shoulder. Dr. W. Kempton Browning, who was at the rooms of the Plainfield Social Club in the Babcock building across the street, took charge of him. The injury is not serious, although the weapon used was of forty-three calibre. One of the three shots had crashed through the glass of a high case behind the counter, and the third

UNION PAINTERS PLAN FOR A STATE CARD

WAGE SCALE IN CRAFT HERE TO BE $3.50; 44 HOURS WORK.

The New Jersey Conference Board of the Painters, Paper Hangers and Decorators of America met in the Taylor building, this city, Sunday afternoon, for the purpose of discussing business pertaining to the craft. Seventy-five delegates, representing forty different locals in all parts of the State, were in attendance and the session proved to be one of the most helpful the board has ever conducted.

The subject of having a State card was thoroughly talked over, the idea being to obviate the necessity of members of different locals having to take out a clearance card when going from one locality to another. It appeared to be the solution of a difficult problem but definite action was deferred.

Another important matter taken up was the adoption of the wage scale of Local 480, of this city, which has been presented to the employers. It asks for an increase of pay from $3 per day to $3.50 and a total of forty-four hours work for the week, the same to take effect May 1, 1907.

The local delegates appointed to the State convention are John E. Mathews, Fred M. Hale and Charles J. Trotter.

The committee from No. 480 who took charge of and entertained the delegates were Albert MacDonald, August Renstrom, Edward Hobby, William Mead, William Treat, Leslie Marsh and John Case.

10-YEAR-OLD NEGRO IS AN 18-CARET LIAR.

Petwood Robinson Complicates Thieving With Prevarication, Held For the Probation Officer.

Petwood Robinson, a ten-year-old colored boy, was arrested yesterday for sneaking up into the teachers' room of the Bryant School while the pupils and the schoolma'ams were at chapel, and stealing $4 from a purse. He was held this morning by Judge Runyon for the probation officer.

Petwood is an instinctive and resourceful liar, and he gave an awe-inspiring exhibition of his skill in that line until his white-haired father transfixed him with an accusing eye and ordered him to tell the truth. Until the old man wrung a confession from him, Petwood did his best to shift the theft to the shoulders of small William Hall, also colored.

Judge Runyon advised Robinson, Sr., to whale Petwood pending the entrance of the probation officer in the case. Robinson nodded his head with fearful solemnity.

"I'm jus' gwine ter kill 'im," he said. "Ef I hang fer it.

"I wouldn't go quite as far as that," admonished the magistrate, "but make it a good basting."

"I may leave breff in him," gloomingly compromised Robinson. "But not much mo'. I reckon I'm jus' bound ter kill him."

Petwood was arrested Saturday for stealing fruit from the freight station. He claimed then that other boys did the stealing and gave the police alist. They were going to arrest those other boys but since Petwood's skill and habits as a liar have been disclosed they hesitate to proceed on any information from him. He stuck to the fruit story under his father's eye this morning.

The celebration will last for several days and many prominent speakers, including some of the former pastors, are being booked for the event. Rev. Edwin N. Crasto, the present pastor, who has been in charge for five years, has tendered his resignation to take effect in the spring, and will spend a year in travel abroad.

Scotch Plains may be observing the Bishop law, strictly to the letter, but there are some places down the line where the "lid is off." A trip on the Second street trolley line any Sunday night will convince the most sceptical that the old rounders have found some haven of rest between Plainfield and Elizabeth.

Tickets for the minstrel show, to be given on the evening of the 12th, for the benefit of the baseball team, are selling well. Prayer service in the Baptist church this evening at 7:45, led by the pastor. The "Forty Mark" was reached last Tuesday and numbers are still growing. Great interest is shown in the pastor's exposition of the Psalms.

The two men whose wagon was struck at the Park avenue crossing by an Lehigh Valley train, is one in a long list of accidents that might have been prevented did the gate keeper remain at his post all night. He leaves at 6 o'clock, and no one is there to warn vehicles of approaching danger. This is one of the most dangerous crossings known, owing to the dense woods on both sides of the track and should be bridged or the track elevated.

The boys of the Catholic church intend to be as active as the young ladies who recently held such a successful fair, and will give an entertainment in Washington Hall on December 15. The proceeds will be added to the fund for the erection of a new church which South Plainfield greatly needs. There are a great many Catholics here who have long felt the need of a place of worship. At present they worship in Washington hall, but it is their aim and object to have a church of their own in the near future.

NATURE SPARES

The Stricken Rose From Grief.

What a fortunate provision of nature it is, that deprives the rose of mental suffering; for how poignant would be its grief to discover, in the height of its blooming glory, that a canker fed at its heart, and that its beauty and fragrance were doomed forever. Nature always spares the suffering; she is a veritable store-house of pleasing rewards, for those who seek her aid. In the years gone by falling hair and grayness have cast a gloom over the lives of thousands of young women, but thanks to the investigations of scientists the true cause of hair destruction is now known to be a germ or parasite that burrows into the hair follicles. Newbro's Herpicide absolutely destroys this germ, thus permitting the hair to grow as nature intended. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

One of the dramatic events of the current season which will come to the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night is Lincoln J. Carter's "Her Only Sin," now in its third successful year. It is one of the few emotional plays produced in recent years that has found immediate favor with critics and public alike. The cast has been materially strengthened since its last appearance here.

The dramatic incident of the coming week in which chief interest will center will be the first revelation to our theatre-goers of the splendors of Rowland & Clifford's production of "Dora Thorne," a dramatization of Bertha M. Clay's famous novel. The piece has been declared a drama of more than usual effectiveness and power, and as a production is said to surpass anything Rowland & Clifford have as yet achieved. "Dora Thorne" is justly entitled to rank as one of the season's popular successes. It will be seen with the original cast and scenic environments next Thursday night at the New Plainfield theatre.

The ablest exponent today of all that pertains to moving pictures is unquestionably Lyman H. Howe. His name stands for all that is progressive, original, legitimate, successful. The quality, tone and beauty of the new programme is uplifting. Its humor is wholesome. It repels dull care and supplants it with the brightness of life and laughter. It will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night.

When Daniel Sully comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night in "The Matchmaker" local amusement seekers are sure to respond with their hearty support. "The Matchmaker" is a play brim full of bright sayings and morals and has numerous characters that are life studies. Manager Edward L. Bloom has been very accurate in selecting the company that he should acquire actors familiar with that section of the country, and its people, in which the locale of the play is situated—Western Idaho. The results are claimed to be most flattering to him for time and expense involved and the playgoing world are his benefactors.

Battleship Robbed of Plate.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 4.—While lying in reserve at the League Island Island navy yard the cruiser Minneapolis has been looted of valuable instruments and silverware, including the massive and costly silver service presented by the citizens of Minneapolis. The theft is puzzling the navy authorities. The goods were sealed in trunks and locked in the captain's cabin, and the vessel has been under guard night and day. The articles stolen were bulky and no one can leave the navy yard by land or water with a package without a permit. Armed guards patrol the yard in every direction; searchlights play over the water front and sentinels are on duty at every entrance. The mystery has been too deep so far for a score of secret service men and detectives.

Grieve for Dr. Crapsey.

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 4.—The Rev. Dr. Algernon S. Crapsey delivered his final sermon Sunday morning to the congregation of St. Andrew's church, in this city. Although Dr. Crapsey in his address made no reference to his departure from the church the scene was a most affecting one. Nearly every person in the church sobbed aloud and tears streamed down many faces. Dr. Crapsey controlled his emotions, but his hands shook visibly. At the close of the service the surpliced choir, instead of chanting the Recessional as they marched out of the church under the standard held aloft, marched out with the standard lowered and with bowed heads. On the faces of the boys and men composing the choir there were signs of grief.

tion follows: The U
Golf Association has bee

although the game in the especially in the Chicago di grown in importance each ye its inception here, we hav been honored with an annual
ing. We believe that, in the intere of golf in general and of the Unite States Golf Association in particular the annual meeting should be held in Western territory at least once in three years, and we know of no better time to make the innovation than the present. We believe that if the next annual meeting is held in Chicago so much interest will be manifested that it will result in a large accession, both associate and allied. The United States Golf Association and its executive committee should encourage and cultivate the game in the West and South by exhibiting a truly national spirit in all of its actions. We believe that a meeting held in Chicago will be more national, more widely attended and more universal in scope than if held elsewhere, and we therefore most earnestly petition that you call the next annual meeting of the association in the city of Chicago.

Golfers in the South seem determined to keep pace with the times in their endeavors to develop the long game. Atlanta has abandoned a shore nine-hole course for an eighteen-hole circuit, covering a playing length of 6,970 yards. The Memphis and Nashville nine-hole courses have also been lengthened.

Willie Anderson, the former open champion, has signed with the Onwentsia Club for another season. He is to receive a salary said to be larger than that paid to any other professional golfer in the United States. Anderson will have charge of the St. Augustine (Fla.) green for the winter.

The University of Chicago is likely to have a strong team in the field next year. Robert E. Hunter, the Midlothian player and twice winner of the Chicago cup; K. P. Edwards, Warren K. Wood, George F. Clingman, Jr., Walter H. Morse, Loren Hebberd and George H. Lindsay are all in the university. Hebberd is the captain.

Although golf in this country appears to be ever on the increase, there is at least one phase of the game—the encouragement of the professional — that remains sadly neglected, according to the former national open champion, Willie Anderson. The latter recently remarked that in the last year in the West he had taken part in only one exhibition match. He favors frequent challenge matches among the professionals, the latter, of course, to receive certain financial encouragement from their clubs. How different is the situation abroad, where Vardon, Braid, Taylor and Herd are kept busy almost the year round, playing exhibition matches and competing in special invitation tournaments.

Churchill May Be Senator.

Concord, N. H., Dec. 4.—"Reports from every section of the State indicate the fight for United States Senator has practically narrowed to the incumbent, Senator Burnham, and Winston Churchill." Thus the New Hampshire Senatorial situation was described today by Henry F. Hollis, leader of the Democratic party in the State and its candidate for Governor two years ago. Mr. Hollis says he has heard that Senator Burnham has personally interviewed every Republican member of the next Legislature, trying to get pledges that will obtain control of the Republican caucus. The Republican official organs are publishing predictions that Senator Burnham is sure of re-election because he has a majority of the Republican members pledged to his support.

Rival Spirit Churches.

New York, Dec. 4.—There was a competition among the mediums in Bedford avenue Sunday evening, and alleged spirit messages were received at two meetings only three blocks apart. The Rev. May S. Pepper, pastor of the First Spiritual church, Bedford avenue and Madison street, gave her usual seance, and Mrs. Miller was the attraction at the other meeting at No. 1,246 Bedford avenue. Encouraged by the success of Mrs. Pepper and the First Spiritual church, a group of Brooklyn spiritualists have organized the Second Spiritual church, which held its first meeting Sunday evening. Mrs. Miller will be the medium at this church, although she is never referred to as such, but always as the "message bearer."

His visit at this time was the first in several years and he was given a cordial reception by his old friends.

Pope to Leave Vatican ?

Rome, Dec. 4.—The State Railroad Department has received orders to reconstruct the Pope's railroad car. This car has not been used since 1870. It is a special carriage, with gilded angels at the four corners. Inside there is a portable altar and the upholsterings are of white velvet. This news is commented upon with much interest and people are wondering if it means that the Pope is about to leave the Vatican.

engineer, $82.50; veterinary surgeon, $165 per year; men of the first class, those serving five years or more, $71.50 per month; second class those serving more than three and less than five years, $66; third class, those serving more than six months and less than three years, $60.50; fourth class, those serving less than six months, $55; call men, to do 90 per cent. duty and furnish their own uniforms, $55 per year, to be paid twice a year, $27.50 in June and December. The call men must first sign a certificate agreeing to do 90 per cent. duty and to purchase their uniforms. Outside of the chief the increase amounts to ten per cent.

Mr. Buxton's amendment relating to all except the chief and his assistant, provided a salary of $976 for each captain, $200 for the veterinary surgeon, $100 for the engineer, $74.75 for the first class men, $69 for the second class, $63.25 for the third class and $57.50 for the fourth class. The call men were to receive $75 per year.

In reply to the attack made by Mr. Gloak in opposing the fifteen per cent. increase, Mr. Buxton said that at first Mr. Mellick favored an increase of twenty per cent., but afterward receded. He said that he favored the same increase, and when he found that it would be impossible to secure the twenty per cent. he suggested as a compromise the fifteen per cent., agreeing that if the fifteen per cent. did not go through he would vote for the ten per cent. raise.

Mr. Randolph stated that he favored more than ten per cent. increase, but learned that it would be impossible to get it, as a majority favored the per centage of increase decided upon in the caucus. Mr. Buxton pressed his amendment in the case of the firemen and it was defeated by the same vote as in the case of his amendment to the police ordinance, five to three.

Mr. Tyler said that he would vote for the adoption of the amendments on the first and second readings with the understanding that if after further consideration he decided that the amendments were unwise, he would be at liberty to vote against them. Mr. Tyler also requested the city clerk to forward each member of the Common Council a copy of the increase in salaries as adopted a few years ago. This will be done. At the request of Councilman Daniel the members took a six minutes' recess, which lasted for more than an hour. No further business was transacted when the members returned and they promptly adjourned. The recess was held to talk over some matters relative to closing up the year's business.

MRS. BERTHA MEIRRICK STILL RETAINS PIANO.

Mrs. Alice H. Sanford Loses Her Suit in the New Brunswick Court.

The action for damages instituted by Mrs. Alice H. Sanford against Henry Mierrick, Bertha Mierrick and Constable Robert L. Pierce, of New Market, occupied the attention of the district court, New Brunswwick, practically all of yesterday and a portion of the evening. After the jury had been out from 10 o'clock in the morning until 8:30 o'clock last night, it returned to court and announced through its foreman that it had failed to agree. Clarence L. Murphy, Esq., represented the plaintiff, while E. F. P. vonMindon, of New Market and Former Judge Cowenhoven, of New Brunswick, represented the defendants.

Mrs. Sanford, Henry Mierrick and Bertha Mierrick, it is said, lived together at New Market. Mrs. Mierrick purchased a piano, but Mrs. Sanford claimed that under the terms of an agreement the instrument came into her possession and she took charge of it. Mrs. Mierrick secured a writ of attachment and recovered it. Then Mrs. Sanford replevined the property, which action was followed by a similar action on the part of Mrs. Mierrick, who re-replevined the piano. The case became so complicated that the only solution was through an action in the district court. Mrs. Sanford claimed $100 damages. As a result of the trial, Mrs. Mierrick is still in possession of the piano. Judge Hicks presided over the trial.

ripped through the floor at the end of the counter. This morning the doctor was undecided as to whether or not the ball was still in Slonim's arm, and arrangements were being made for X-ray examination.

Beside the revolver, the thief left his hat in the place. It was the meagrest kind of a clue, because the maker's name had been carefully cut from the sweatband. The policemen hunted for traces of the hold-up man all night without success. All the trolley lines and the railroad were covered between Bound Brook and Westfield, but no light young man wearing a cravenette coat and a blue sweater was spotted or heard of.

Chief Kiely said this morning that the complete effacement of the man puzzled him. He was not sure that the job was the work of a trained crook, but it looked like it. The revolver was the finest type of Colt, and the sort a Western robber likes to carry. The chief said he would not be surprised to learn that the crook was a Western hold-up man, forced temporarily, for some reason or other, out of his usual stamping grounds. All the boarding houses in the city were visited by policemen early this morning, and no trace of a stranger answering the thief's description could be found.

Mrs. Slonim said this morning that the value of the thief's hauld could not be stated until an inventory had been taken. It could only be said with certainty that he had the ring in his finger, and at least two secured when he snatched at the tray.

Mrs. Hannah Linke, wife of Frank Linke, whose liquor store is on the same block with the Slonim place, said this morning that she saw a man answering exactly the description of the Slonim robber pacing up and down before the jewelry store of Leo Silbert, up the street, late last Friday night. When Mrs. Silbert heard the description of the man seen by Mrs. Linke she declared it tallied in every particular, except as to the hat, with that of the crook who robbed her husband.

Fred Work's Advancement

Fred Work, of Prospect place, who has been a train dispatcher in the New Jersey Central offices at Communipaw for several years, has been appointed chief dispatcher of the Lehigh and Hudson railroad. He will be located at Warwick, N. Y., and will enter upon his new duties once. The office is an important one and Mr. Work's selection was brought about by the ability he displayed while with the New Jersey Central. He has a host of local friends who, while regretting to see him leave Plainfield, are pleased at his advancement.

An Important Event.

One of the important events of the week not to be overlooked is the supper to be given Thursday night at Trinity Reformed church, from 6 to 9 o'clock, under the auspices of the Young Women's Mission Band. A fine supper will be served and in addition Charles Suhr's orchestra will be present and give a popular programme of music. In patronizing the affair you will not only get a first class supper, but will be assisting the young women in furthering the cause of missions.

Eastbound Traffic Held Up.

An eastbound freight was stalled on the main track near the North avenue station at 6:30 this morning, and held up eastbound passenger trains for over an hour. The tie-up was due to a disabled engine. There was no damage.

Juniors Entertain.

Following a brief meeting last evening, at which two candidates were elected, Plainfield Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., held a "ladies' night" entertainment. Refreshments were served. William Richards was chairman of the committee in charge.

Frank W. Runyon, of Madison avenue, is slowly convalescing from a severe illness. There is still a trained nurse in attendance. As soon as possible Mr. Runyon will arrange to go south for the winter.

—The Plainfield Band will give a parade in "rube" uniform tonight to remind folks of the fact that it is to hold a barn dance in its hall Friday night.

Blame Easily Placed.

Mrs. Jones—I wonder what it is that makes baby so wakeful?

Mr. Jones (savagely)—Why, it's hereditary, of course—this is what comes of you sitting up at nights waiting for me.—Stray Stories.

Don't Want to Climb.

Hardly Reason Enough.

Some of our neighbors are permitted to live because it takes all kinds of people to make a world. That's the answer.

Avoid alum and alum phosphate baking powders. The label law requires that all the ingredients be named on the labels. Look out for the alum compounds.

NOTE.—Safety lies in buying only Royal Baking Powder, which is a pure, cream of tartar baking powder, and the best that can be made.

WATCHUNG AVE. and FIFTH ST.

SQUELCHED THE PROUD ONE.

Old Traveler Took the Starch Out of the Staff Officer.

A gorgeous staff officer, glittering attendant of a visiting governor, stood at the entrance to the platform in the Philadelphia station of the Pennsylvania road the other day. There had been a historic anniversary celebrated down the Delaware and the guests were about to board their special train for New York. The haughty staff officer had been stationed where he was in order to pass in on to the platform where the "special" was awaiting the invited guests. He was very, very proud. To him appeared an irate old man, dictatorial of temper and apoplectic of build.

"When does the next train for Harrisburg leave?" snapped the portly and fiery man.

The staff officer drew himself up haughtily and replied in accents meant to be chilling: "I am sure I don't know."

"You don't, hey?" roared the irate inquirer, being, of course under the impression that the staff officer was one of the uniformed employes of the road; "you don't, hey? Well, I'll find out why you don't. What in thunder are you paid for, any way?"

By this time a crowd of the expected guests had arrived and were standing by, listening with amusement to the conversation. The last pointed question of the old man was too much and a "snicker" broke out which swelled into a laugh as the staff officer, completely taken aback, stammered out:

"I—I—don't know."

PITY THE BUTTONED-BEHIND.

The Victim of Modern Feminine Clothes Needs Sympathy.

The man was looking quizzically around the theater, evident in search of something or somebody. "Do you see her anywhere?" coldly asked the maiden at his side.

He laughed. "I wasn't looking for any 'her,'" he said. "I was merely confirming my belief that the majority of women who wear waists buttoned in the back go around with the sixth button from the top unbuttoned. Of course, I know it is difficult for a woman to fasten her shirt-waist properly when it closes in the back, but why is it always the sixth button from the top; why not the third or the fifth?"

The maiden at his side looked at him pityingly. "That's easy," she said. "If you'd tried to wear such a waist you'd know just why. It's because the sixth button marks the point where we cannot reach up or down to. By twisting and squirming we can manage to fasten the fifth button from the top, and by twisting our arms up we can reach the seventh from the top, but the sixth is impossible. So we leave it, expecting to ask some kind friend to button that one button for us, and then we go out and forget all about it, until we're reminded. Would you mind buttoning that sixth button on my waist now before the show begins?"

DONKEYS FOR CHILDREN.

They Cost Too Much to Be Common in This Country.

The little donkey cart, as it trudled along the white beach, attracted much attention. Under their red silk parasols the ladies in white looked at the small, gray donkey and smiled. The gentlemen, raising their eyes from their novels, patted the small and dainty animal as it passed.

"That donkey cost a hundred," said a veterinary surgeon. "It is a very fine specimen. What I want to know is, why are not cheap donkeys bred here in America, the same as abroad? Then every child, at an expense of $5 or $10, might have a donkey no bigger than a Newfoundland dog to ride and drive.

"London is full of donkeys. The costers use them. Every tiny huckster cart is drawn by a tiny gray donkey." The animals are bred in Ireland and in Wales, and it is possible to buy little ones for $4, $5 and $7, and so on up to $100 or more for the fancy grades.

"The donkey is docile, intelligent, industrious, moral. He never runs away. He never loses his temper. He is an ideal pet for children, and, if he were bred here, he would be within the reach of nearly all.

"Think how nice it would be if you could do here what you can do in England—give a child a nice little donkey that only costs $5."

Automobile Dragnet.

New York, Dec. 4.—Short was the shift for automobile speeders when the police caught them in the city yesterday. In every borough, but particularly in Manhattan, arrests were numerous. Orders went out Saturday for especial vigilance in this regard. As a result there were policemen on foot, bicycle policemen and policemen in automobiles everywhere on the lookout. Deputy Commissioner Waldo's big machine carried a roundsman and two policemen all through the upper reaches if Manhattan and the Bronx and did valiant service.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON, AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

"Talk?—yes, I'll talk! We've had mobs and the very scum of hell to boil over here. This is Saturday, the 19th, ain't it? Well, Brockman marched against this stronghold of Israel jest a week ago, with 800 men. Tuesday, along comes a committee of 100 to negotiate peace. Well, Wednesday evening they signed tefms, spite of all I could do. I'd 'a' fought till the white crows come a-cawin', but the rest of 'em wasn't so het up with the Holy Ghost, I reckon. Anyway, they signed. The terms wasn't reely set till Thursday morning, but we knew they would be, and so all Wednesday night we was movin' acrost the river, and it kept up all next day—day before yesterday. You'd ought to 'a' been here then; you wouldn't wonder at my comin' down on you like a thousand of brick jest now, takin' you for a mobocrat. You'd 'a' seen families druv right out of their homes, with no horses, tents, money, nor a day's provisions—jest a little foolish household stuff they could carry in their hands—sick men and women carried on beds, mothers luggin' babies and leadin' children. My sakes! but I did want to run some bullets and fill my old horn with powder for the consolation of Israel! They're lyin' out over there in the slough now, as many as ain't gone to glory. It made me jest plumb murderous!"

The younger man uttered a sharp cry of anguish. "What, oh, what has been our sin, that we must be proved again? Why have we got to be chastened?"

"Then Brockman's force marched in Thursday afternoon, and hell was let loose. His devils have plundered the town, thrown out the bedridden that jest couldn't move, thrown their goods after 'em, burned, murdered, tore up. You come up from the river, and you ain't seen that yet—they ain't touched the lower part of town—and now they're bunkin' in the temple, defacin' it—that place we built to be a house of rest for the Lord when he cometh again. They drove me acrost the river yesterday, and promised to shoot me if I dast show myself again. I sneaked over in a skiff last night and got here to get my two pistols and some money and trinkets we'd hit out. I was goin' to cross again to-night and wait for you and the wagons."

"Do you know, Bishop, I've thought that he might mean us to save ourselves against this Gentile persecution. Sometimes I find it hard to control myself."

The Bishop grinned appreciatively.

"So I heer'd. The Lute of the Holy Ghost got too rambunctious back in the States on the subject of our wrongs. And so they called you back from your mission?"

"They said I must learn to school myself; that I might hurt the cause by my ill-tempered zeal—and yet I brought in many—"

"I don't blame you. I got in trouble the first and only mission I went on, and the first time I preached, at that. When I said, 'Joseph was ordained by Peter, James and John,' a drunken wag in the audience got up and called me a damned liar. I started for him. I never reached him, but I reached the end of my mission right there. The Twelve decided I was usefuller here at home. They said I hadn't got enough of the Lord's humility for outside work. That was why they put me at the head of—that little organization I wanted you to join last spring. And it's done good work, too. You'll join now fast enough, I guess. You begin to see the need of such doin's. I can give you the oath any time."

"No, Bishop, I didn't mean that kind of resistance. It sounded too practical for me; I'm still satisfied to be the Lute of the Holy Ghost."

"You can be a Son of Dan, too."

"Not yet, not yet. We must still be a little meek in the face of Heaven."

"You're in a mighty poor place to practice meekness. What'd you cross the river for, anyway?"

"Why, for father and mother, of course. They must be safe at Green Plains. Can I get out there without trouble?"

The Bishop sneered.

"Be meek, will you? Well, mosey out to Green Plains and begin there. It's a burned plains you'll find, and Lima and Morley all the same, and Bear Creek. The mobbers started out from Warsaw, and burned all in their way, Morley first, then Green Plains, Bear Creek and Lima. They'd set fire to the houses and drive the folks in ahead. They killed Ed Durfee at Morley for talkin' back to 'em."

"But father and mother, surely—"

"Your pa and ma was druv in here with the rest, like cattle to the slaughter."

"You don't mean to say they're over there on the river bank?"

"Now, they's a kind of a mystery about that—why they wa'n't throwed out with the rest. Your ma's sick abed—she ain't ever been peart since the night your pa's house was fired and they had to walk in—but that ain't the reason they wa'n't throwed out. They put out, other folks was sick out into that slough. I guess what's left of 'em wouldn't be a supper-spell for a bunch of long-billed mosquitoes. But one of them milishy captains was certainly partial to your folks for some reason. They was let to stay in Phin Daggin's house till you come."

"And Prudence—the Corsons—Miss Prudence Corson?"

"Oh, ho! So she's the one, is she? Now that reminds me, mebbe I can guess the cute of that captain's partiality. That girl's been kind of lookin' after your pa and ma, and that same milishy captain's been kind of lookin' after the girl. She got him to let her folks go to Springfield."

"But that's the wrong way."

"Well, now, I don't want to spleen, but I never did believe Vince Corson was anything more'n a hickory Saint—and there's been a lot of talk—but you get yours from the girl. If I ain't been misled, she's got some ready for you."

"Bishop, will there be a way for us to get into the temple, for her to be sealed to me? I've looked forward to that, you know. It would be hard to miss it."

"The mob's got the temple, even if you got the girl. There's a verse writ in charcoal on the portal:

"'Large house, tall steeple,
Silly priests, deluded people.'

"That's how it is for the temple, and the mob's bunked there. But the girl may have changed her mind, too."

The young man's expression became wistful and gentle, yet serenely sure.

CHAPTER III.

The Lute of the Holy Ghost Breaks His Fast.

In his cautious approach to the Daggin house, he came upon her unawares—a slight, slender, shapely thing of pink and golden flame, as she poised where the sun came full upon her. One hand clutched her flowing blue skirts snugly about her ankles; the other opened coaxingly to a kitten crouched to spring on the limb of an apple tree above her. The head was thrown back, the vivid lips were parted, and he heard her laugh low to herself.

Stepping from the covert that had shielded him, he called softly to her.

"Prudence—Pru!"

She had reached for the kitten, but at the sound of his low, vigorous note, she turned quickly toward him, coloring with a glow that spread from the corner of the crossed kerchief up to the yellow hair above her brow. She answered with quick breaths.

"Joel—Joel—Joel!"

She laughed aloud, clapping her small hands, and he ran to her—over beds of marigolds, heartsease and lady slippers, through a row of drowsy looking, heavy-headed dahlias, and past other withering flowers, all but choked out by the rank garden growths of late summer. Then his arms opened and seemed to swallow the leaping little figure.

"You dear old sobersides, you—how gaunt and careworn you look, and how hungry, and what wild eyes you have to frighten one with! At first I thought you were a crazy man."

He held her face up to his eager eyes, having no words to say, overcome by the joy that surged through him like a mighty rush of waters. In the moment's glorious certainty he rested until she stirred nervously under his devouring look, and spoke.

"Come, kiss me now and let me go."

He kissed her eyes so that she shut them; then he kissed her lips—long—letting her go at last, grudgingly, fearfully, unsatisfied.

"You scare me when you look that way. You mustn't be so fierce."

"I told him he didn't know you."

"Who didn't know me, sir?"

"A man who said I wasn't sure of you."

"So you are sure of me, are you, Mr. Preacherman? Is it because we've been sweethearts since so long? But remember you've been much away. I've seen you—let me count—but one little time of two weeks in three years. You would go on that horrid mission."

"Is not religion made up of obedience, let life or death come?"

"Is there no room for loving one's sweetheart, in it?"

"One must obey, and I am a better man for having denied myself and gone. I can love you better. I have been taught to think of others. I was sent to open up the gospel in the eastern states because I had been endowed with almost the open vision. It was my call to help in the setting up of the Messiah's latter-day kingdom. Besides, we may never question the commands of the holy priesthood, even if our wicked hearts rebel in secret."

"If you had questioned the right person sharply enough, you might have had an answer as to why you were sent."

"What do you mean? How could I have questioned? How could I have rebelled against the stepping-stone of my exaltation?"

A querulous voice, rough wit[illegible]

"Here, I tell you, is the prophecy of Joseph to prove it, away back in 1832—"
He broke off, for the girl came leading in the son, who, as soon as he saw the white-haired old man with his open book, sitting beside the wasted woman on the bed, flew to them with a glad cry.
They embraced him and smoothed and patted him, tremulously, feebly, with broken thanks for his safe return. The mother at last fell back upon her pillow, her eyes shining with the joy of a great relief, while the father was seized with a fit of coughing that cruelly racked his gaunt frame and left him weak but smiling.
The girl had been placing food upon the table.
"Come, Joel," she urged, "you must eat—we have all breakfasted, so you must sit alone, but we shall watch you."
She pushed him into the chair and filled his plate, in spite of his protests.
"And now we must be about our preparations for the journey. The time is short—who is that?"
He sprang to the door. Outside, quick steps were heard approaching. The girl, who had risen in some confusion, stood blushing and embarrassed before him. The mother rose feebly on her elbow to reassure him.
"'Tis Capt. Girnway, laddie. Have no alarm—he has befriended us. But for him we should have been put out two days ago, without shelter and without care. He let us be housed here until you should come."
There was a knock at the door, but Joel stood with his back to it. The words of Seth Wright were running roughshod through his mind. He looked sharply at Prudence.

Cicero's Tomb Discovered?

Naples, Dec. 4—What would appear to be a most important archaeological discovery has been made at Formiae, near which place Cicero was assassinated nearly twenty centuries ago. This discovery consists of remains which are thought to be the tomb of the great orator. They stand on a hill dominating both the Appian and Herculaneum ways.

FOOTBALL.

A well-known football authority has the following to say regarding a former Plainfielder: "Biglow of Yale also played consistently throughout the season. He had fewer off moments than come to the lot of most players. He was noticeably a man on the spot in emergencies and was perhaps the best of tackles in breaking through and spoiling plays by teh other side. He struck a high average of offence and defence and was a tireless worker. He sized up play shrewdly and was a very active man in the open ,especially in getting down under punts. He is the sort of player who puts life into others. Draper of Pennsylvnia gave a stiffening effect to the whole side of his wing and many a play aimed at his point broke and dissolved without gain. He was very steady on the defence and pulled down not a few men behind their own line. He generally was on the spot to back up his ends and nail his man in case one of the ends missed an opponent running back a punt, which in the case of the Pennsylvania team was not often. Like Biglow, the times when he was boxed were few and far between, and for work which counted but which was attended with no fuss or splurge, he was dependable—one of the strongest points in the Quaker line. He was pretty good at running with the ball from in the line."

The last football game has been played the last race has been run at Benning, the intercollegiate cross-country run is over and the outdoor sporting season of 1906 has passed into history. The golfers will putter around more or less all winter, the trap shooters will not be driven indoors and the association football players will tuble about, if the ground is frozen or not; but, for all all that, the outdoor sporting season in local circles wos formally closed when the Army beat the Navy on Saturday. From now on intrest will centre in hockey, bowling, billiards, pool, indoor lawn tennis, racquets, cycling, indoor athletic games and the various sporting shows in Madison Square Garden. These at least will bridge over the closed season until the outdoor sports can be welcomed again in the spring. After the suppressed excitement of the college football season this week will seem unusually quiet.

The college football season of 1906 came to an end on Saturday, when the Navy team won such a clean-cut victory over the Army eleven in Philadelphia. The game furnished a fitting climax to a season that in every respect was the most successful, the most interesting and the most exciting in the history of the sport. This was largely due to the revised rules and the better game which they produced. It is cause for congratulation that the sport has been saved through the earnest efforts of those who legislated so wisely and so well last winter when the outlook was so dark. The game was on trial this fall, and the best judges have pronounced it a success, and do not hesitate to express themselves forcibly on the subject, even while suggesting a few minor changes.

SPLENDID CANVASES SHOWN AT LIE EXHIBIT

TWO ROOMS ARE DEVOTED TO PLAINFIELD ARTIST'S NOTEWORTHY WORK.

The exhibition of paintings by Jonas Lie opened yesterday in the Babcock building with an evening reception. In spite of the blustery night, a representative body of Plainfield society and art lovers thronged the studio and all were enthusiastic over the works displayed. The two rooms in which the pictures hang are artistically and tastefully decorated. They are thrown open to the public for the rest of the week.

The first room contains among other canvasses "Sundown," a familiar canvas to the art-loving public in New York and other cities, and little can be added to that which has already been said about the picture by critics in New York. It represents a barren hillside covered with snow; one feels rather than sees the depression of a road, lined on either side by dried weeds, bent by their burden of snow, which leads up and around to the summit, gloriously gilded by a shaft of light from the setting sun. "A Gale," shows a single tree tossed by the wind, scattering its leaves heavenward. The whole canvas is one of motion and nature's power and activity. The gray clouds fairly dash across the sky. This canvas alone would make for Mr. Lie an enviable reputation.

The most notable of the pictures in the other room are "Glittertint," "Beeches and Sunset," "The Dance of the Norwegian Peasants."

LIKE ATHENIAN ASSEMBLY.

S. B. Howe, Jr., Introduces Novel Plan at P. H. S.

Samuel B. Howe, Jr., instructor in history, economice and English at the Plainfield High School, has introduced a new feature in the sixth period ancient history class. It is a novel experiment, an Ecclesia modeled after the Athenian assembly which is presided over by an Archon. At present William Briggs, of the sophomore class, is acting as this official. The officers are elected for two weeks and all recitations of the class are conducted by them.

There are two political parties in the Ecclesia, the Gyne and the Andros. The former are the girls and the latter the boys. Keen rivalry has started between the two parties to secure the greater number of points. One point is gained by a correct recitation. The whole system has served to increase the interest in ancient history, as well as to increase the knowledge of parliamentary practice.

GOVERNORS TO ACT

Insulting Remark Alleged to Have Been Made to Young Woman by Shainwald Resented by Zeman.

With the boiling over of a secret too big to be confined in the social kettle of the exclusive Middlebrook Country Club, the good people of Somerville are discussing a sensation which club members did their best to cover up. The episode waits on the action of the club's Board of Governors in the cases of R. L. Shainwald and August Zeman.

Shainwald is the son of President Shainwald, of the Standard Paint Company, of No. 100 William street, New York. Mr. Zeman is also engaged in business in New York. Both are leaders in the younger social set which enjoys membership in the Middlebrook Country Club.

Shainwald was observed to trip lightly after Miss Elting, a belle of the village, at the Thanksgiving night dance of the club, and, catching up with her, was heard by those nearest them to say, with an apparent attempt at galantry:

"Miss Honeylips, may I have the honor of the dance?"

August Zoman apparently overheard the words with which Shainwald had addressed Miss Elting. He took a quick step forward, and landed a blow between the eyes which sent Shainwald to the floor. They fought furiously, guests clearing out of their path until several of the oldef members of the club rushed in, separated them and forced them, still resisting, into the Governor's room.

A window was heard to raise in the room. Zeman, refusing to apologize, had opened it and leaped out on the lawn, where he turned about and invited Shainwald to follow him and fight it out. Shainwald jumped through the window on the word.

Zeman made up in activity what he lacked in science. Crimson stains quickly spotted their broad expanse of shirt, and the tails of their evening coats punctuated their swift evolutions. Before a score of men could run through the club-house and reach the lawn, both gallants were painfully pummelled.

It was reported in club circles last night that the Board of Governors intends to take stringent action.

NEW ENGLAND SUPPER DREW A BIG CROWD

FEAST OF GOOD THINGS AT VINCENT CHAPEL LAST NIGHT.

Under the auspices of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary societies of the First M. E. church, a New England supper and sale of useful articles, candy, ice cream and cake was held in Vincent chapel last night. The attendance of members and friends was large and the patronage liberal.

The supper, which was served from 6:30 to 8:30 o'clock, was the main attraction and during those hours the supper room was crowded with patrons. The menu was an excellent one, comprising all the things that go to make up an appetizing New England repast.

Mrs. N. W. Pike was the general chairman, and among those assisting her as a supper committee were Mrs. Nelson T. Hull, Mrs. William Camp, Mrs. Wilbur Clifton, Mrs. James Love, Mrs. Samuel Bingaman, Miss Minnie Sharp, Mrs. Maurice McGrath and Mrs. Judd Stewart. Those who presided at the various supper tables were Mrs. George M. Rittenhouse, Mrs. George H. Whitney, Mrs. L. M. French, Mrs. J. C. Peck, Mrs. Henry DeMott, Mrs. John McNaughton, Mrs. Matthew Ewart, Mrs. E. S. Apaugh. The waitresses were the Misses Pryor, DeMott, Frances Rittenhouse, Bertha Tamm, Susie Jackson, Ewart, Hannah Bingaman, Mrs. Joseph Dunham, Mrs. R. W. Davis, Mrs. E. W. French. Dr. F. W. French also assisted. Miss Gertrude Sharp was the cashier.

In the Sunday-school room of the chapel there was a sale. Those who had charge of the candy table were Miss Helen Whitney, Miss Leila Druse and the Misses Pryor. Those at the useful articles' table were Mrs. Nelson A. Miller, Mrs. J. W. Jackson, Mrs. A. C. McCrea, Mrs. L. M. French and Mrs. George Burgess. Mrs. David S. Dunavan and Miss Mary Clayton had charge of the ice cream and cake table. During the evening there was an informal programme of music.

Coroner Schlemme, of Jersey City, telephoned to police headquarters yesterday morning that an unidentified man had been hun over and killed in West Hoboken Saturday night by a struck in charge of two men, who gave their names as Frank Kurll and John Randall, and their address as Fanwood. They gave the names to a bystander and then drove away. The coroner wanted them located. The police were unable to find trace of any men bearing the names in Fanwood. They were almost certainly fictitious.

Two Still Alarms.

A still alarm was received at fire headquarters at 9 o'clock this morning for a slight blaze at the home of Dr. J. T. Fritts on Park avenue. The outer cloth covering on a section of steam pipes caught fire and had to be pulled away. There was practically no damage. The West End company was sent out at 2 o'clock this afternoon for a grass fire on West Sixth street near Monroe avenue.

The funeral of Franklin Wilson, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Zachariah Wilson, was held at the parents' home on Harmony street, yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. C. E. A short time ago he came to New York city, where he has just completed a course at the New York Post Graduate School. At present he holds a position in the Eye and Ear Clynic in the latter institution, where he practices on Monday and Friday afternoons of each week. Autoist Explains.

A. H. Chamberlain, of Rahway, whose auto grazed W. E. Lowe's carriage on Park avenue Thanksgiving day, has issued a statement controverting the version told by the coachman. He declares that the auto was going at a speed of nearly ten miles an hour, and that he signalled the driver of his intention to pass him on the left. The latter, he says, pulled across his path without warning. He looked out at the side of the machine, saw only a bent mud guard in the way of damage, noted that the driver was going on as if undisturbed, and concluded that there was no need for him to stop. He did not sneak away, he protests. Mr. Lowe, he says, blames his coachman for carlessness in disregarding the signal.

PERKINS THE CENTER OF THE POLITICIANS.

Dryden Was Absent and Discussion Was Over Senate Presidency.

Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, of Union county, the recognized leader of the anti-Dryden forces in the fight for the United States Senatorship, was the center of attraction among the politicians gathered at the State House at Trenton yesterday.

The gathering of political lights and "glimmers" was the smallest, numerically, that has been witnessed since before election, but to the few that lounged about the corridors during the morning and early afternoon hours, Mr. Perkins displayed numerous letters he has received from his constituents in his home county, in which they urged him to continue his fight against the return of Mr. Dryden to Washington. He has received hundreds of such letters, Mr. Perkins said, and they invariably complimented him upon the stand he has taken.

Senator Dryden did not put in an appearance, but his son-in-law and campaign manager, Colonel Kuser, spent some time at the capitol.

Frequent remarks were made in reference to Mr. Dryden's absence, as his friends were confident that even in view of the fact that congress opened Monday, he could have made arrangements to be at the State House at least for a short time.

The anti-Drydenites displayed signs of being unusually optimistic and predicted freely the election of a South Jerseyman. As usual, the prevailing sentiment among Mr. Dryden's opponents was that either Governor Stokes or State Treasurer F. O. Briggs would be the man chosen.

Interest was added to the gossip by the discussion of the candidacy of Senator Bloomfield Minch of Cumberland for the presidency of the Senate, an honor that was confidently expected to go to Senator Thomas Hillery, of Morris county. Both Mr. Minch and Mr. Hillery were "among those present" and each avowed the intention of making a fight for the presidency.

It is the pupular belief that Senator Minch's candidacy has the support of Governor Stokes' but he declares that it is a matter that must be settled among the members of that body, as he will have nothing to do with.

H. C. RANDOLPH'S FUNERAL.

Service Conducted by Dr. Zelie Assisted by Dr. Schenck.

The funeral of Henry Clay Randolph, who died Saturday morning after a long illness, was held at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. Frank French, of Washington avenue, yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue church, assisted by Dr. Cornelius Schenck, of Trinity Reformed church, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. The floral tributes were numerous.

Interment was made in Hillside cemetery, the pall bearers being L. W. Randolph, Fred Valentine, Lemuel B. Hart, Frank Jones, Fred Mellick and N. W. French.

Out One Barn In Another.

Two of Miller Hill's horses broke out of his barn at 1128 Prospect avenue and he asked the police to help him find them yesterday morning. A short time after he left headquarters, Joseph Vanderhoef came in to report that two big horses had broken into his barn on Lake street Monday night, and rummaged around the place until it looked as if a cyclone had struck it. They were the Hill horses. Mr. Hill offered a reward for tneir return, so some agreement as to the salving of Mr. Vanderhoef's feelings will probably be arranged.

HOLD-UP FIZZLED.

George Becker's Charge Against Young Men Laughed Out of Court.

Haldar Peterson and Axel Peterson, employees at the Country Club, asked George Becker, a Polish South Plainfield farmer, for a ride to town on lower Park avenue Monday night. Becker refused. Then he followed the young men to town and had them arrested. He said he wasn't sure, but he had a notion they might be highwaymen.

Judge Runyon pooh-poohed the nervous Becker in court yesterday morning, and dismissed the case. Becker, who has had more trouble of a legal nature than any seven ordinary people, was shoved out of headquarters.

OFFERS $50 REWARD.

No Trace of the Slonim Robber Has Been Discovered.

Hope of the capture of the man who robbed and shot Leo Slonim, the jeweler, Monday night diminished yesterday as the police search continued. Not the faintest trace of the crook was picked up. A rumor that the thief had escaped in an auto was unfounded. Chief Kiely said today that there was no truth in the report that the robbery was a "plant."

Mr. Slonim was still in bed, this morning, recovering from a feverish night. He announced through his wife that he would pay $50 reward for the capture of the thief.

PLAINFIELD BOWLERS DEFEAT RARITAN TEAM

TAKE FIVE OF THE SIX GAMES ROLLED ON LOCAL ALLEYS.

The Plainfield Bowling Academy team and The Raritan Five met on McLaughlin's alleys last night in two matches of three games each. The Plainfielders were in splendid fettle and walked away with 5 of the six games, taking three of them with comfortable leads. The last of the six was one of the hottest games ever rolled on the alleys and went to the local team by one pin, the scores being 930 to 929.

Sam Felver made the highest score on the Plainfield side, handing in a 234 in the third game, although he had hit the timber for 209 just before it. The best on the Raritan side and also for the evening was capped by J. Schaub, a former Plainfielder, who piled up 255 the first crack out of the box. HAWAII THE TOPIC OF MISSIONARY WORKERS.

Miss Clyde Burnett Reads Paper Before First Baptist Foreign Missionary Society.

A paper of unusual interest was presented yesterday afternoon at the meeting in the lecture room of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church on the subject "The Hawaiian Islands: Missionary Influence: Present Problems," by Miss Clyde Burnett. The change from idolatrous barbarians to church-going and God-fearing people was vividly described by Miss Burnett. She told of a native from the Sandwich Islands who in visiting this country was greatly pained at the public games and non-observance of the Sabbath in many cities.

The labor question was given as one of the serious problems, Chinese labor interfering with that of the natives.

At the close of the meeting, curios from the islands were shown by Miss Burnett, consisting of flags, cards, native fabric, manufactured articles and many beautiful photographs.

Current events of interest were given by Mrs. F. E. Kinsman.

Reference was made to the recent death of a constituent member, Miss Anna O. Marsh, and resolutions of appreciation and sympathy were adopted.

WIDOWS' 4 BA

Locked in Their Cabin Mother Went to Work, of Them Perish.

COTTAGE A FURNA

Identification of Little Ones After the Fire Impossible —Mothers Collapse.

As they turned the lock of the door in a little cottage which they called home on the outskirts of Westfield, Mrs. W. F. Wezel and Mrs. Oscar Felter started for town yesterday with light hearts. They said it was blessing enough that their four children were quartered snugly in the humble home, where a wood fire crackeled merrily against the cold into which the mothers set forth to their work.

Each was left a widow last summer and each had two children. Before the deaths of their husbands the women were friends of long standing. They shared the sorrows of their bereavement and decided to face the future together. The problem of a home was solved when they took possession of the cottage. It was only sixteen by twenty feet in size, but they had patched it up for the winter and made it cozy within.

Townspeople of Westfield who knew of the brave struggle the two widows were making, gave them employment. While they were away at work the children kept house. Mrs. Felter's daughter, Louise, aged five, was the oldest of the four. Next came little Charles Felter, three; Samuel Wezel three, and baby Susie, four months old.

Each day when possible, either Mrs. Wezel or Mrs. Felter hurried home at noon to see how the children were getting along. It chanced yesterday that both the widows were working near enough to the cabin home to visit it during the hour's rest. All was well save that the fire had died down in the stove and the place was cold. The mothers bustled about to see that the children did not suffer during the afternoon, and after filling the stove a little store of wood was placed on the hearth. Departing, they locked the door as was their custom.

It was just getting dusk last night when the nearest neighbors saw flames leaping above the roof of the cabin. Those first to arrive pressed forward until they were nearly suffocated by the heat and smoke, but the flames precluded all human possibility of succoring the children within the structure.

Word had been sent to the Westfield firemen, who made all haste to the scene. While the spectators were viewing helplessly the destruction of the shanty two figures were seen, staggering as if their strength was spent, toward the illumination. The crowd fell back as Mrs. Wezel and Mrs. Felter approached. They had just left the homes where they had been employed for the day, and read the meaning of the light on the outskirts of the town. Their strength had been exhausted in their desperate haste reach the shanty and save their children. They collapsed after reaching the scene, and were well-nigh crazed with grief.

The firemen put out the flames, but not until three of the children had been so burned that identification was impossible. Babby Susie was also dead, but the crib had protected the body somewhat.

The New York Daily Tribune,

Of course, a great deal depends on your own taste in the matter of newspapers. The Tribune is written by intelligent gentlemen, for intelligent gentlemen. If that it not what you want, try something else. If you want a publication that serves up so much gore and so many thrills in every issue, and do not care whether what you read is true or false, it is money thrown away to buy The Tribune. If, however, you are looking for a daily history of the world, carefully collated and sifted and presented in the most attractive form that the facts and the laws of good taste will permit, you cannot make any mistake in reading The Tribune every day. But The Daily Tribune is more than a continuous history. It is, as it has been for over sixty years, the great exponent of progressive national thought, and fills a larger place in American history than any other newspaper. It contains special articles on nearly every subject which interests intelligent and clean-minded people, to say nothing of the illuminating and instructive editorial articles and reviews of books, music, art and the drama. Just by way of knowing the best of life, why don't you invest $1 and get The Daily and Sunday Tribune by mail for a month? With The Sunday Tribune goes a handsome Illustrated Supplement and a Magazine, with colored covers, equal to anything sold for ten cents.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The term "emotional play" has become as synonymous with that which is risque or frankly immoral, that it is with relief we note Lincoln J. Carter's recent success, "Her Only Sin." The leading role stands the highest and lowest depths of emotion, and yet withal portrays only the best and purest that is in the human nature. It will be shown at the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

One cannot neglect seeing "Dora Thorne," which will be at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night. The play teaches a strong moral lesson, and should be seen by both young and old. "Dora Thorne" is a story that appeals to people in all walks of life and is certainly worth going to see.

One of the most delightful entertainments of the age will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre Friday night. The attraction is Lyman H. Howe's latest exhibition of moving pictures. Mr. Howe always has a complete change of programme at each appearance, and to say that his new programme surpasses all previous ones is putting it mildly. A pleasing feature of this entertainment is the careful reproduction of the natural sounds as they would emanate from the real scenes. The crack of firearms, the puffing of engines, the cheering of multitudes, the shouts of individuals and all other sounds are so cleverely imitated that the scenes impress the mind the same as if viewing them in reality.

Mr. Daniel Sully seems to be surpassing his success of last season this year by playing "The Matchmaker" to very prosperous results. Reports coming from cities where he has played his two-year success this season more than confirm this assertion in that they treat of artistic prosperity of the triumphant nature. This is most gratifying to Mr. Sully's friends who saw him in "The Matchmaker" here during his last visit, for they so thoroughly enjoyed his performance as to be convinced of its entertaining propensities. Edward L. Bloom has surrounded Mr. Sully with a most pleasing company of players and offers them to be judged at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night by local amusement seekers. The performances will be under the auspices of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus.

At the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night George W. Monroe, the funniest of stage Irishwomen, will break away from his accustomed woman's frills and feathers to dally with the light comedy role of Owen Moore, a promising, very promising, young lawyer in Charles Klein's musical topical farce on hypnotism and other polite fads and fancies of the hour entitled "The Time of Your Life," but the break is only a temporary one for Mr. Monroe soon returns to skirts to raise a bedlum of fun for his audience and consternation for the arch deceivers of "divine woman" who have forced him from pantaloons to petticoats to perpetrate their "horrid deception." The star, the play and the supporting company are endorsed by authorities whose O. K. insures "The Time of Your Life" to all who see the performance.

—All of the proposed improvements at the postoffice are completed and the work is greatly facilitated in consequence.

THE POWER OF STEAM.

Many May See But It Takes Genius to Realize.

When James Watt saw the steam causing the kettle lid to jump up and down he said "There must be power in that steam that it can lift such a weight."

There was.

Millions prior to him had seen the same phenomenon and regarded it as an unexplained mystery.

Recent scientific research has put its finger on the "cause" of Dandruff, Falling Hair, and consequent Baldness, and has unearthed a tiny germ which eats the life from the roots of human hair.

Newbro's Herpicide destroys this germ and consequently restores the hair to its natural state.

Newark's Store Beautiful

BROAD NEW'K, HALSEY STREETS

A Forest Full of Useful Gifts

America's Greatest Furniture Store.

It is a grand sight, just now—this gigantic Furniture Store of ours—spread out over the acres on our Second Floor. It has never been so crowded with gifts at once useful, lasting and ornamental. We say a "forest full of gifts," and so it is, for it would take a forest of choicest timber to furnish material for so many hundreds of pieces, and it would require the labors of a thousand skilled woodsmen, millmen, designers, cabinet makers and painters months to transform the trees into the finisht, beautiful product you behold here.

There is this to be said in favor of a gift of furniture: It is sensible and lasting, and, if bought right, may be economical.

There is this to be said in favor of Hahne & Co.'s: Nowhere in America is there assembled a superior stock—in quality, variety or beauty.

Prices are lower, of course, than anywhere in New York—positively lower.

LOTS OF COMPANY.

This is Not an Isolated or Individual Case in Plainfield.

What is told by this resident of Plainfield will prove invaluable to many people who go t hrough the same daily experience. This short statement of the relief obtained from far too prevalent annoyances should convince the greatest skeptic that the merit of the article referred to is just as represented.

Mrs. J. Mottley, of 546 Sixth St., Plainfield, N. J., says: "About two months ago I was seized with a severe backache and dull pains in the top and back of the head. I could not rest nights, and had little desire to do housework and my strength seemed to be about all gone. I tried Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Randolph's drug store and can truthfully say that they gave me relief from my sufferings. My back and head do not ache and I am strong and vigorous, rest well at night, and have some ambition again. I am convinced that Doan's Kidney Pills are a first-class remedy for troubles arising from the kidneys."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

—One case was contested in the District Court yesterday morning, that of Catherine Wieda against F. W. Hand, on replevin. Judge Newcorn granted a non-suit. William Wood & Co. against D. C. Adams, on contract, got a verdict by default. Amos Stites, suit for possession, against William Sofield, was thrown out because of a defective affidavit.

—Attention is called to the advertisement of the Y. M. C. A. Star Course in another column.

—Judge William Newcorn, of the district court, has had a telephone installed in the court rooms. This will be a great convenience to those having business with the court.

—Joseph Vertilosky, the West Third street butcher, who was struck by a train on the Lehigh Valley Railroad Saturday night, is still at the hospital. His condition is much improved.

"Billy" Leland, one of the crack graduates from the Hope
M. L. alley, has been geting in limelight at McLaughlin's with som pretty scores. "Billy" has full control of what is known as the "ridge" ball and it generally does awful execution.

James B. Duke, the tobacco king, has contracted the bowling fever and is having four alleys installed at his beautiful place in Raritan. In a short time they will be the scene of many interesting matches. Duke was a baseball enthusiast a few years ago and piloted a semiprofessional team about the country.

All the local bowling records were smashed in the Suburban Club alleys at Fanwood, Saturday night, when Augustus Sheelen, the crack bowler of that club, rolled up a score of 299 pins in the second game of a match with E. F. Gahagan, also of that place. Sheelen had captured the first game with a total of 225 pins after making a wind-up of five strikes. In the two games he made sixteen straight strikes. In the second game
Sheelen continued to bang the pins with great precision and registered eleven strikes. On his twelfth ball he hit the pins well and it looked good for another strike and a perfect score, but the number seven pin refused to topple over, after waggling around for several seconds. Gahagan captured the third game, winning out by the score of 201 to 191 pins.
Sheelen's average for the three games was 238.1 pins. He is considered one of the best bowlers in this section, and last year was the winner of the individual high average prize in the Plainfield City Bowling League. Sheelen is entered in the coming tourney at McLaughlin's, having Joe Alberts, of Scotch Plains, as partner.

MESSAGE IN A NUTSHELL.

The recommendations made by President Roosevelt in his message to Congress briefly summarized are as follows:

A law prohibiting all corporations from contributing to the campaign expenses of any party; a law conferring upon the government the right of appeal in criminal cases on questions of law; that the crime of rape should always be punished with death, as is the case with murder; assault with intent to commit rape should be made a capital crime, at least in the discretion of the court, and provision should be made by which the punishment may follow immediately upon the heels of the offence; the number of hours of employment of railroad employees should be limited, with the aim of the general introduction of an eight-hour law; a thorough investigation of the conditions of child labor and of the labor of women in the United States; a more stringent employers' liability act than the one passed at the last session of Congress; provision for the compulsory investigation by a commission on conciliation and arbitration of disputes between employers and employees; legislation to provide for the withdrawal from sale or entry of all public lands containing, or in all probability containing, coal; in connection with the Packing House Inspection law to provide for putting a date on the label and for charging the cost of inspection to the packers; to provide for more complete governmental control of corporations to prevent the evils of excessive overcapitalization and to secure proper publicity; when next our system of taxation is revised the national government should impose a graduated inheritance tax and, if possible, a graduated income tax; a constitutional amendment which will relegate the whole question of marriage and divorce to the authority of the national congress which would give it power to deal radically and efficiency with polygamy; the passage of an act for the developing of American shipping embodying the views expressed in the report made at the last session to the House; legislation to carry out the recommendations of the Secretary of the Treasury for currency reform and the relief of stringency in the money market; a lower tariff on or else absolute free trade in Philippine products; American citizenship for the people of Porto Rico and the administration of the affairs of all insular possessions by one executive department; an act for the naturalization of Japanese who come here intending to become American citizens; that the criminal and civil statutes of the United States be so amended and added to as to enable the President acting for the United States government, which is responsible in our international relations, to enforce the rights of aliens under treaties; not an increase in the navy, but its maintenance at its present strength by replacing obsolete and outworn ships by new and good ones, and in both army and navy a principal of selection which will bring into the higher ranks fewer men and these at an earlier age.

The President says in regard to Cuba: "If the elections become a farce, and if the insurrection habit becomes confirmed in the island, it is absolutely out of the question that the island should continue independent; and the United States, which has assumed the sponsorship before the civilized world for Cuba's career as a nation, would again have to intervene and to see that the government was managed in such orderly fashion as to secure the safety of life and property."

THE MOTE IN THY BROTHER'S EYE.

The effort to have Congress take some action in the matter of the Congo horrors is rather an unusual and questionable proceeding. Just what right this country would have in interfering with the King of Belgium's affairs in the absence of any treaty giving that privilege is not explained by those who are fomenting the agitation. Would they have the United States meddle in the affairs of Europe and at the same time hold fast to the Monroe Doctrine? Such a position would be a most inconsistent one and as can be readily seen would lead to all sorts of international difficulties.

If this country should pursue such a course, who could say but what it would have to mix up in China and make the Empress Dowager stop chopping off the heads of her subjects whenever she takes a fancy to do so? And who could say but what it would have to interfere with the Czar of Russia in his treatment of those who have incurred his displeasure? To follow the proposition out to a logical conclusion when once such a position is taken Uncle Sam would be setting himself up as a master of the world's conduct. Of course this would be the condition of affairs were such a practise once started, but who thinks for one moment that the King of the Belgians or any other potentate is going to allow us to meddle with his affairs? In next to no time, this country would be plunged into war. And so long as we should continue such a meddlesome conduct would there be strife.

In his message to Congress, President Roosevelt yesterday called "the attention of the nation to the prevalence of crime among us, and above all to the epidemic of lynching and mob violence that springs up, now in one part of our country and now in another." At much length he dilated upon and deplored the prevalence of horrible crimes. Mr. Roosevelt is striving to end the horrors in his own land and finds the task so big that he has no time bothering with crime in other countries. So long as lynching and other terrible offenses continue to be prevalent throughout the land, Uncle Sam can not well afford to throw stones from his glass house and therefore no matter how much petitioning is done Congress, that intelligent body is not likely to attempt to regulate the affairs of other countries.

"First cast out the beam out of thine own eye; and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye."

After reading the President's message, we are convinced that there are three great political parties, the Republican, the Democratic and Mr. Roosevelt—and the last is not the least by any means.

Walter Vail, who was struck by a trolley car in California and died from the effects, was a native of New Market and resided there prior to his departure for California, where he lived on a ranch and became very wealthy.

Park avenue, where the two men were struck by a Lehigh Valley train, is not the only dangerous crossing near here. At Samptown is one more dangerous than Park avenue, on account of the sharp curve around the cemetery at this point, and from which an approaching train cannot be seen. Another equally dangerous, is near the Tingley farm. Recently a young couple driving, barely escaped being struck by an express train at this point. The train grazed the hind wheels of the buggy and the concussion almost upset the vehicle. A flagman should be placed at all these places, in order to protect life and prevent accidents.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The special services at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church will be concluded Sunday night. After that the paster, Rev. E. E. Roberson, will still maintain the interest by holding inquiry meetings at intervals. It is expected that a large number of converts will unite with the church soon.

"The North Reformed Church of this city, which will celebrate its semi-centennial next week, is the largest church of the denomination in the United States, and, doubtless, also the largest Protestant church in Newark. It has nearly 1,600 members and about the same number of pupils in its three Sunday schools. But size alone is not a safe test of the success of churches. Spiritual power is the best guage, and there is gratifying assurance that under the leadership of the Rev. Dr. Vance the North Church is none other than a house of God, where men and women learn to estimate the various affairs of life at their true value, and receive inspiration to lead good lives and do battle for every good cause. To everyone, therefore, who desires to have righteousness prevail in this community the jubilee of the North Church is an event of deep interest."—The Newark Sunday Call.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

BY HARRY LEON WILSON AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1905 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

"A mobocrat—our enemy—and you have taken favors from him—a minion of the devil?—shame!"

The girl looked up.

"He was kind; you don't realize that he has probably saved their lives. Indeed, you must let him in and thank him."

"Not I!"

The mother interposed hurriedly.

"Yes, yes, laddie! You know not how high-handed they have been. They expelled all but us, and some they have maltreated shamefully. This one has been kind to us. Open the door."

"I dare not face him—I may not contain myself!"

The knock was repeated more loudly. The girl went up to him and put her hands on his shoulders to draw him away.

"Be reasonable," she pleaded, in low tones, "and above all, be polite to him."

She put him gently aside and drew back the door. On the threshold smiled the young captain. His cap was doffed, and his left hand rested easily on the hilt of his sword. He stepped inside as one sure of his welcome.

"Good morning, Miss Prudence, good morning, Mr. Rae, good morning, madam—good morning—"

He looked questioningly at the stranger. Prudence stepped forward.

"This is Joel Rae, Capt. Girnway."

They bowed, somewhat stiffly. Each was dark. Each had a face to attract women. But the captain was at peace with the world, neatly uniformed, well fed, clean-shaven, smiling, pleasant to look upon, while the other was unshaven, hollow-cheeked, gaunt, roughly dressed, a thing that had been hunted and was now under ban. Each was at once sensible of the contrast between them, and each was at once affected by it: the captain to a greater jauntiness, a more effusive affability; the other to a stonier sternness.

"Her Goal Is Zion, Not Babylon—Remember That!"

"I am glad to know you have come, Mr. Rae. Your people have worried a little, owing to the unfortunate circumstances in which they have been placed."

"I—I am obliged to you, sir, in their behalf, for your kindness to my father and mother and to Miss Corson here."

"You are a thousand times welcome, sir. Can you tell me when you will wish to cross the river?"

"At the very earliest moment that God and the mob will let us. To-morrow morning, I hope."

"This has not been agreeable to me, believe me—"

"Far less so to us, you may be sure; but we shall be content again when we can get away from all your whiggery, democratism, devilism, mobism!"

He spoke with rising tones, and the other flushed noticeably about the temples.

"Have your wagons ready to-morrow morning, then, Mr. Rae—at eight? Very well, I shall see that you are protected to the ferry. There has been so much of that tone of talk, sir, that some of our men have resented it."

He turned pleasantly to Prudence.

"And you, Miss Prudence, you will be leaving Nauvoo for Springfield, I suppose. As you go by Carthage, I shall wish to escort you that far myself, to make sure of your safety."

The lover turned fiercely, seizing the girl's wrist and drawing her toward him before she could answer.

"Her goal is Zion, not Babylon, sir—remember that!"

She stepped hastily between them.

"We will talk of that to-morrow, captain," she said, quickly, and added: "You may leave us now, for we have much to do here in making ready for the start."

"Until to-morrow morning, then, at eight."

He bowed low over the hand she gave him, gracefully saluted the others, and was gone.

CHAPTER IV

A Fair Apostate.

She stood flushed and quick-breathing when the door had shut, he bending toward her with dark inquiry in his eyes. Before she spoke, he divined some resolution lay stubbornly fixed.

"Let us speak alone," she said, in a low voice. Then, to the old people, "Joel and I will go into the garden awhile to talk. Be patient."

"Not for long, dear; our eyes are aching for him."

"Only a little while," and she smiled back at them. She went ahead through the door by which they had first entered, and out into the garden at the back of the house. He remembered, as he followed her, that since he had arrived that morning she had always been leading him, directing him as if to a certain end, with the air of meaning presently to say something of moment to him.

She led him to a rustic double chair under the heavily fruited boughs of an apple tree, and made him sit down. She began with a vivacious playfulness, poorly assumed, to hide her real feeling.

"Now, sobersides, it must end—this foolishness of yours——"

She stopped, waiting for some question of his to help her. But he said nothing, though she could feel the burning of his eyes upon her.

"This superstitious folly, you know," she blurted out, looking up at him in sudden desperation.

"Tell me what you mean—you must know I'm impatient."

She essayed to be playful again, pouting her dimpled face near to his that he might kiss her. But he did not seem to see. He only waited.

"Well—this religion—this Mormonism——"

She shot one swift look at him, then went on quickly.

"My people have left the church, and—I too—they found things in Joseph Smith's teachings that seemed bad to them. They went to Springfield. I would have gone, too, but I told them I wanted first to see you and—and see if you would not come with us—at least for awhile, not taking the poor old father and mother through all that wretchedness. They consented to let me stay with your parents on condition that Capt. Girnway would protect them and me. He—he is very kind—and had known us since last winter and had seen me—us—several times. I hadn't the heart to tell your father; he was so set on going to the new Zion, but you will come, won't you?"

"Wait a moment!" He put a hand upon her arm as if to arrest her speech. "You daze me. Let me think." She looked up at him, wondering at his face, for it showed strength and bitterness and gentleness all in one look—and he was suffering. She put her hand upon his, from an instinct of pity. The touch recalled him.

"Now—for the beginning." He spoke with aroused energy, a little wistful smile softening the strain of his face. "You were wise to give me food, else I couldn't have solved this mystery. To the beginning, then: You, Prudence Corson, betrothed to me these three years and more; you have been buried in the waters of baptism and had your washings and anointings in the temple of the most high God. Is it not so? Your eyes were anointed that they might be quick to see, your ears that they might be apt at hearing, your mouth that you might with wisdom speak the words of eternal life, and your feet that they might be swift to run in the ways of the Lord. You accepted thereby the truth that the angel of God had delivered to Joseph Smith the sealing keys of power. You accepted the glorious articles of the new covenant. You were about to be sealed up to me for time and eternity. Now—I am lost—what is it?—your father and mother have left the church, and because of what?"

"Because of bad things, because of this doctrine they practice—this wickedness of spiritual wives, plural wives. Think of it, Joel—that if I were your wife you might take another."

"I need not think of it. Surely you know my love. You know I could not do that. Indeed I have heard at last that this doctrine so long gossiped of is a true one. But I have been away and am not yet learned in its mysteries. But this much I know—and it is the very cornerstone of my life: Peter, James and John ordained Joseph Smith here on this earth, and Joseph ordained the twelve. All other churches have been established by the wisdom or folly of man. Ours is the only one on earth established by direct revelation from God. It has a priesthood, and that priesthood is a power we must reverence and obey, no matter what may be its commands. When the truth is taught me of this doctrine you speak of, I shall see it to be right for those to whom it is ordained. And meantime, outside of my own little life—my love for you, which would be always single—I can't measure the revealed will of God with my little moral foot-rule. Joseph was endowed with the open visions. He saw God face to face and heard His voice. Can the standards

"Listen. I was afraid to tell yo[illegible] fore—ashamed—but I told my peo[illegible] It's three years ago. I was 17. [illegible] was just after we had become en[illegible] gaged. My people were then strong in the faith, as you know. One morning after you had left for the East, Brigham Young and Heber Kimball came to our house for me. They said the Prophet had long known me by sight, and wished to talk with me. Would I go with them to visit him and he would bless and counsel me? Of course I was flattered. I put on my prettiest frock and fetchingest bonnet and set off with them, after mamma had said yes. On the way they kept asking me if I was willing to do all the Prophet required. I said I was sure of it, thinking they meant to be good and worshipful. Then they would ask if I was ready to take counsel, and they said, 'Many things are revealed unto us in these last days that the world would scoff at,' but that it had been given to them to know all the mysteries of the Kingdom. Then they said, 'You will see Joseph and he will tell you what you are to do.'"

He was listening with a serious, confident eagerness, as if he knew she could say nothing to dim the Prophet's luster.

"When we reached the building where Joseph's store was, they led me up-stairs to a small room and sent down to the store for the Prophet. When he came up they introduced me and left me alone in the little room with him. Their actions had seemed queer to me, but I remembered that this man had talked face to face with God, so I tried to feel better. But all at once he stood before me and asked me to be his wife. Think of it! I was so frightened! I dared not say no, he looked at me so—I can't tell you how; but I said it would not be lawful. He said, 'Yes, Prudence, I have had a revelation from God that it is lawful and right for a man to have as many wives as he wants—for as it was in the days of Abraham, so it shall be in these days. Accept me and I shall take you straight to the celestial Kingdom. Brother Brigham will marry us here, right now, and you can go home to-night and keep it secret from your parents if you like.' Then I said, 'But I am betrothed to Joel Rae, the son of Giles Rae, who is away on mission.' 'I know that,' he said—'I sent him away, and anyway you will be safer to marry me. You will then be absolutely sure of your celestial reward, for in the next world, you know, I am to have powers, thrones, and dominions, while Brother Joel is very young and has not been tried in the Kingdom. He may fall away and then you would be lost.'"

The man in him now was struggling with his faith, and he seemed about to interrupt her, but she went on excitedly.

"I said I would not want to do anything of the kind without deliberation. He urged me to have it over, trying to kiss me, and saying he knew it would be right before God; that if there was any sin in it he would take it upon himself. He said, 'You know I have the keys of the Kingdom, and whatever I bind on earth is bound in heaven. Come,' he said, 'nothing ventured, nothing gained. Let me call Brother Brigham to seal us, and you shall be a star in my crown for ever.'

"Then I broke down and cried, for I was so afraid, and he put his arms around me, but I pushed away, and after awhile I coaxed him to give me until the next Sabbath to think it over, promising on my life to say not one word to any person. I never let him see me alone again, you may be sure, and at last when other awful tales were told about him here, of wickedness and his drunkenness—he told in the pulpit that he had been drunk, and that he did it to keep them from worshipping him as a God—I saw he was a bad, common man, and I told my people everything, and soon my father was denounced for an apostate. Now, sir, what do you say?"

When she finished he was silent for a time. Then he spoke, very gently, but with undaunted firmness.

"Prudence, dearest, I have told you that this doctrine is new to me. I do not yet know its justification. But that I shall see it to be sanctified after they have taught me, this I know as certainly as I know that Joseph Smith dug up the golden plates of Mormon and Moroni on the hill of Cumorah when the angel of the Lord moved him. It will be sanctified for those who choose it, I mean. You know I could never choose it for myself. But as for others, I must not question. I know only too well that eternal salvation for me depends upon my accepting manfully and unquestioningly the authority of the temple priesthood."

Football and General Sports

FOOTBALL.

The task of ranking the teams is a complicated affair, one on which no two persons will agree. Things to be considered are form at the end of the season, form throughout the season and comparative scores. What with the X team beating the Y team which beat the Z team which beat the X team, the matter becomes involved indeed. Among the first sixteen teams ten may be ranked as follows: Yale, Princeton, Harvard, Cornell, Carlisle, Pennsylvania, Brown, Annapolis, West Point, Pennsylvania State. Then there are Swarthmore, Lafayette, Syracuse, Dartmouth, Williams and Colgate, which all figure in the first sixteen.

Of the fourteen Harvard men who played in the Yale game this year, nine will be iligible for next year's football team. Considering this fact and the large number of other men available, the indications are that from the point of view of material Harvard will start the season in a promising condition. Were it not for the new eligibility rule debarring graduate students the university squad might not lose a single man, but as it is the following seven men will be graduated: Captain H. Foster, Jr., S. Fraser, N. L. Hall, H. E. Kersburg, P. C. Lockwood, C. G. Osborne and W. Pierce.

The college football season of 1906 came to an end on Saturday, when the Navy team won such a clean-cut victory over the Army eleven in Philadelphia. The game furnished a fitting climax to a season that in every respeect was the most successful, the most interesting and the most exciting in the history of the sport. This was largely due to the revised rules and the better game which they produced. It is cause for congratulation that the sport has been saved through the earnest efforts of those who legislated so wisely and so well last winter when the outlook was so dark. The game was on trial this fall, and the best judges have pronounced it a success, and do not hesitate to express themselves forcibly on the subject, even while suggesting a few minor changes.

DIAMOND DUST.

Things are beginning to hum in the baseball world, for both of the big leagues will hold their annual fall meeting next week. On Tuesday the National League will meet at the Victoria Hotel in New York, while on Wednesday the American League will convene at the Auditorium, Chicago. A hot time is expected at the National League meeting when the re-election of H. C. Pulliam as president comes up. Brush of New York and Herrmann of Cincinnati are openly opposed to the re-election of the man who has made a vigorous crusade against rowdy baseball, but it is said that the six other club members will line up for him with a resolution that his next term of office be lengthened to three years. The American League has already gone on record as in favor of a 140 game schedule next year, but it is not generally expected that the National League will advocate a plan that means slightly smaller gate receipts, so that in all probability the old 154 game schedule will prevail once more. A move to increase the world's championship games to nine or eleven will be discussed and there may be a change.

HAPPY AMONG HIS PINKS

Man Who Planted Three-Fourths of Local Shrubbery Has a Trust in Carnations.

TALKS ON DESTROYERS

Fears the Insects Will Kill All of Plainfield's Beautiful Trees Unless Something Is Done.

Outside, the chill winds of December and the brown, barren fields; inside, the warm, soft air of summer, laden with the perfume of flowers and the smell of fresh, live earth. Just the change from outdoors to the interior of the greenhouse of W. H. Forrestel, nurseryman and expert in pinks, on Belleview avenue.

All seasons are the same to Mr. Forrestel. Give him his greenhouse, some warmed over air, and the merest beginning of a flower and he will make it grow for you though the heavens crack with cold, and the mercury freeze in its bulb. If the flower be a pink, so much the better. He knows pinks as other men know their a, b, cs; and the growing thereof even to making of new kinds, is an open book to him.

Mr. Forrestel is chief of the clan of nurserymen and flower shepherds in this corner of the State. He has forgotten a lot that the pert and cocksure young sprigs think they have just discovered for themselves. People who must hear big names before they will take stock in a thing may note that Mr. Forrestel was the man who had charge of the landscape work on Cornelius Vanderbilt's Newport place, "The Breakers." That having been properly assimilated, it is readily agreed that Mr. Forrestel is not among the least of those who make barren hillsides and backyards to be terraces and Italian gardens.

When Mr. Forrestel came here in 1891, to take charge of the landscape work on C. J. Fisk's place—he came directly from "The Breakers"—there was room for a citizen of his attainments. Only two places in the city were laid out, those of H. G. Runkle and W. B. Wadsworth. The others were decorated by—backyards and front lawns. And the disconcerting fence was everywhere. Mr. Forrestel saw that Plainfield needed guiding as to landscape work, and as he needed the money a good guide could get, he cut the traces that bound him to James W. Bowditch, of Boston, for whom he was working, and became an expert on his own account.

The guiding was a success. Everybody here knows what Plainfield looks like now, and the difference between its present looks and what it must have looked like when Mr. Forrestel first saw it must be plain. Seventy-five per cent. of the shrubbery in the city was laid out by Mr. Forrestel. And the guiding has been profitable, which, of course, is of no importance at all. Such things will happen when a man does good work for people who appreciate it. Mr. Forrestel's business has grown so that he has been compelled to lease the old Stelle farm next to his place on Belleview avenue, to make room for his treelets, his shrubs and his posy beds. With the newly-leased farm he has a range of about fourteen acres in which to marshal growing things.

Mr. Forrestel's nursery stock is a general one. Not large, but complete. He has something of everything worth growing, from shade trees to currant bushes. His collection of evergreens is a joy of large dimensions to the lover of things verdant.

But if one wants to find the short way to the Forrestel heart, he must say "Pink." Pinks have been Mr. Forrestel's real specialty for only about two years, but he is making up for lost time as a specialist. He has a greenhouse full of the shaggy blooms, and in his heart is the burning desire for the discovery of that unattainable pink—that pink of pinks for all time—which every true pink grower cherishes.

He thought he had it last year, in the scion of a promising seedling, but the dream faded with the ragged, rowdy bursting of the flowers that promised so much. Still, he has undiminished hope yet, and to cheer him on there is the Mrs. Eugenia L. Babcock, a cross between the Manley and the Enchantress, which he has raised to the strength and standing of a permanent variety. Mrs. Babcock is a winsome bloom, larger even than the famous Robert Craig, and of a soft pink in tint. The Craig is also a child of the Manley and the Enchantress.

The greenhouses are warmed by a hot-water system, automatically regulated by a heat generator that is the only one of its kind in the city. A battery of sprayers and kill-'em-quicks stand ready to guard its tenants and the trees and shrubs out-

WARRANT ISSUED IN ROBBERY CASE

PRIVATE DETECTIVE SAYS HE IS ON TRAIL OF MAN WHO ROBBED SLONIM.

Upon the complaint of Leo Slonim, the West Front street jeweler, and at the instance of D. R. Masterson, a private detective from New York, who is working on the case, Justice Hand issued a warrant yesterday afternoon for the arrest of one William Wallace, alias Brown, alias Arnold, alias Devrin, who is charged with having committed a theft and shot Mr. Slonim in his jewelry store late Monday night. The warrant was given to the detective from New York, who informed the court that the man wanted is out of the State but that he knows where he is.

The detective called on Justice Hand in the afternoon related to him a story and produced a picture of the alleged burglar. The back of the photo is alleged to have written on it certain marks indicating that it is recorded in the Rogues' Gallery, New York. He explained that Mr. Slonim was unable to leave the house and at his request, Justice Hand, accompanied by Clerk Horace G. Adams, went to the home of the jeweler, where the latter set forth the facts regarding the robbery and shooting, which comprised the complaint.

Masterson called at the Daily Press office yesterday afternoon and said he was on the trail of the man.

SIXTEEN-YEAR-OLD'S FIRST RIDE ON A TRAIN.

The Important Event Came Yesterday to Harry Ellingham, J. H. Staats' Adopted Son.

Though he has had sixteen birthdays and will soon pass another, Harry Ellingham, the adopted son of J. H. Staats, of the Hotel Kensington, rode on a railroad train, yesterday, for the first time in his life. The trip was in connection with a run over to New York with Mr. Staats and incidentally gave Harry his first glimpse of the metropolis, the two events coming so close together that he still feels the effects. The young man enjoyed them in the fullest sense of the term but no more so than his foster parent, who chuckled over his delight and the wonderment that filled his eyes.

Harry was born and reared at Chester, Morris county, and remained there until a short time ago when he came to Plainfield. His life previously had been spent on a farm and when he was ready to start out, he was driven over in a wagon. Mr. Staats was unaware of the fact that he had never been on a train until last week and he declared then that Harry should have a steam car ride at the first opportunity. It came yesterday and the initial trip was made on one of the P. and R. expresses. Since returning home, the word has been passed around and Harry has been kept busy telling all about it.

Frank C. Milligan Married.

Miss Mayme R. Ferris, of Watchung avenue and Fifth street, and Frank C. Milligan, of West Sixth street, were married quietly yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, at his home on West Front street. The couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Holder, relatives of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Milligan will reside in this city. The groom holds a position in Jersey City and both he and his wife are well known here.

Dr. Lindsay's New Chair.

At a meeting of the trustees of Columbia University held Monday it was announced that funds had been provided by gift sufficient to permit the establishment of a professorship of social legislation, and Dr. Samuel McCune Lindsay, now professor of sociology in the University of Pennsylvania, was appointed to the chair. Dr. Lindsay spoke at the Organized Aid meeting at the Crescent Avenue church last week, on "Child Labor." He will begin his new duties in the autumn of 1907.

Plumbers to Meet Here.

The State Association of Journeymen Plumbers and Steam Fitters will meet in Findlay's hall, this city, Sunday afternoon, for the purpose of discussing several matters of great importance to the trade. Sixty delegates, two from each local in New Jersey, will be in attendance and the gathering will be followed by others in nearby cities.

Bank Election.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the First National Bank for the election of nine directors to serve for the ensuing year will be held at the bank, 111 East Front street, Tuesday afternoon, January 8, from 1 to 2 o'clock.

A new castle was instituted by the Golden Eagles at Princeton, Tuesday night. This makes the seventy-fourth in the State.

MARTIN I. COOLEY DEAD

Plainfielder Expires Suddenly in His Temporary Apartments in New York.

FROM HEART TROUBLE

Lived Here for Thirty-Two Years and Was Well Known—Leaves Widow and Two Children.

With little more than a few moments' warning, death came suddenly at 12:30 this morning to Martin I. Cooley, for many years a local resident. While in his apartments at the Hotel Chelsea, West Twenty-third street, New York, he was stricken with heart trouble and passed away almost before medical aid could be summoned. Mrs. Cooley and her sister, Mrs. Lusk, of Washington, were with him at the time the end came.

Mr. Cooley had been indisposed for the past three or four years and a short time ago decided to give up his home on Rockview Terrace and seek another climate in the hope that it might prove beneficial. He had Cuba in mind, as his daughter, Mrs. Mason Patrick, has been there since leaving Muhlenberg hospital after an illness, and he and Mrs. Cooley had practically agreed upon the plans. They had been making their home at the Chelsea for the past three weeks while the details were being arranged.

Mr. Cooley was at his office for a short while yesterday and in the afternoon was met by several Plainfielders on Broadway. He was then in good spirits and to all appearances in about the same condition of health as he had been for six months or more. It was not until late at night that he complained of feeling very much indisposed and the fatal attack soon followed.

Mr. Cooley was sixty-five years old and was one of the best known commission merchants in New York. His place of business is located at 88 Leonard street and the firm name now is Martin I. Cooley & Son, though it was only a few years ago that Gifford W. Cooley, the son, became a member. In his commercial life, Mr. Cooley was always regarded as a man of upright character and his word was all that was necessary in transactions involving large sums of money. Because of his health not being of the best, he had not been active in the business of the firm in recent years, as a rule simply supervising.

Thirty-two years ago Mr. Cooley came to Plainfield and he purchased the house on Rockview terrace which he had occupied ever since. Though he was a good citizen and one who watched municipal affairs in a quiet way, he was not regarded as a public man. He was frequently asked to accept office but declined, yet his opinion in borough matters was always sought. He joined the First Baptist church directly after he moved here and that congregation has numbered him as one of its most valued member. He was quiet, kind, genial and affable to a degree and there are scores in the city and borough who can attest to his unostentatious method of lending a helping hand.

Beside his widow, who was a Miss Webster, Mr. Cooley is survived only by his son Gifford and one daughter, Mrs. Patrick, the wife of Captain Patrick, of the regular army, now stationed at Cuba.

The funeral arrangements have not been completed but the service and interment will probably be in this city.

Won Prizes at Poultry Show.

Plainfielders were presented with honors at the Paterson Poultry Pigeon and Pet Stock Association show in Paterson, yesterday. In a large class of fine white Wyandotte, Frank M. Smalley, of this city, had four entries and he received second prize for a pullet, a second prize for a hen and a third prize for a hen. B. G. Elliott, who lives near Scotch Plains, received a first prize for a single comb buff Leghorn, another first for a blue Andulusian and a third prize for a buff Orpington pullet.

Death of James M. French.

James M. French, aged sixty-four years, well known in this city, died yesterday at his home in Westfield, after a long illness with kidney trouble. He leaves a widow and two daughters, the Misses Anna and Bessie French. The funeral services will be held at the late home, 255 Clark street, Westfield, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be in Fairview cemetery, Westfield.

Bachelors' Club Elect.

The Bachelor Club, one of the leading social organizations of Somerville, reorganized yesterday by electing the following officers: President, Job C. Kenyon; vice president, Thomas G. Winsor; secretary, Azariah M. Beekman; treasurer, C. D. McMurtry; chamberlain, Chester A. Cawley.

HOLD-UP MAN CONFESSES

Jesse Tyrell Admits That He Pounced on Two Men in True Western Style.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Nabbed on Complaint of Kyle and Becker Who Say He Aimed Pistol at Their Heads Demanding Money.

In true Jesse James style, Jesse Tyrell, who claims South Plainfield as his home, held up Robert Kyle and George Becker on Park avenue, near the city line, Saturday, just after the pair alighted from a trolley car and proceeded to walk home. Tyrell called out: "Your money or your life!" At the same time he whipped out a revolver. The cold steel was placed so uncomfortably near Becker's face that he turned on his heels and ran for his life. Kyle stood still and responded to Tyrell's request, giving up sixteen cents. He had between $8 and $10 hidden away in his clothes, but decided to keep it as long as the smaller amount would answer the purpose.

Kyle and Becker reported the hold-up to Chief Kiely and the police were at work on the case all day Sunday and Monday. They gave a good description of the highwayman, which made it practically certain that Tyrell was the man wanted.

Yesterday morning while Chief Kiely and Roundsman Morris Higgins were at headquarters, the latter noticed Tyrell passing. He followed and at East Front street and Watchung avenue the officer placed him under arrest. At first he denied all knowledge of the matter, but when Chief Kiely put him through the third degree he admitted meeting Kyle and Becker, but at that time would not admit that he held them up or asked for money. This morning prior to the opening of court, Chief Kiely got after Tyrell again and he finally confessed the whole business before Judge Runyon.

Tyrell was held in $500 bail for his appearance before the Grand Jury, and in default was taken to the county jail at Elizabeth, this afternoon, by Roundsman Higgins.

The prisoner is a young man and from the time of his arrest has not appeared to realize the seriousness of his offense, looking at it more in the light of a joke.

COUNCILMANIC BUSINESS.

To Hold Adjourned Meeting Monday Night, December 17. Profits Over $400.

The Common Council will meet in adjourned session on Monday night, December 17, for the purpose of passing on third reading the ordinance which provides for the purchase of the land for the southside sewer pumping station. The ordinance has been passed on two readings. Another meeting will be held later in the month to make arrangements for the appropriation to buy the land.

The land desired by the city is owned by Clifton & Campbell and is located on Randolph road, near Arlington avenue. Owing to the lateness of the season the work on this sewer will not be started before next March, when it is hoped to push it through to an early completion. Peter Morgan, of Poughkeepsie, has the contract for the sewer work, and Warren B. Travell, of this city, the contract for installing the pumping station.

New Course of Study.

The Young People's Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church begins a new course in its winter's work tomorrow night. It consists of a series of studies in the Book of Isiah and promises to be as interesting as it will be instructive. Robert Davis, of Union Theological Seminary, will be the leader. The meetings begin at 7:45 and close promptly at 8:45. All interested, whether members of the society or not, are invited.

A Card of Thanks.

The officers of the Children's Home desire most cordially to thank all the friends whose generous gifts made Thanksgiving Day such a happy one for the children.

Fire Loss Adjusted.

The loss by fire and water at the home of Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur, on Westervelt avenue, has been satisfactorily adjusted by the insurance company.

HUGE LIGHTNING PLANT

The P. S. C.'s Central Light and Power Plant Has Grown to Mammoth Proportions.

SUPPLIES MANY TOWNS

Plainfield, Dunellen, Bound Brook, Somerville and Other Places Supplied from Metuchen.

Although it is not generally known, there is located in Metuchen borough one of the most modern electric plants in the country, and it is said, one of the three largest plants in New Jersey. This is the mammoth station of the Public Service Corporation, situated on Durham avenue, along the Lehigh Valley Railroad tracks.

The huge plant was erected in 1899 on the McAdams farm near Dismal Swamp. The ground is low at this point and there is plenty of water suitable for boiling purposes. The water supply system alone is a big thing and it means a saving of many thousands of dollars. The water is taken from brooks converted into steam, the stream put through the condensers and then the hot water flows through a canal to the lower end of a lake and is cooled off by this process and used over again. This system works better in winter than in summer as the water holds heat longer in warm weather. An effort is being made to overcome the difficulty by chilling wells, in order that there may be plenty of cold water in summer.

In 1904 the Public Service Corporation took the Central Electric to its mighty bosom.

The original plant of the General Electric was contained in a three-story brick structure, 100x100 feet, in which were two 800 horse Corliss engines. When Public Service took charge a fifty foot extension was added to the main building and two 1,500 horse steam turbines were installed, making a plant three times larger in generating capacity and even now it is plain to be seen that the capacity of the plant will have to be further increased in the very near future. It takes five 750 horse power boilers to run the plant. This new and larger station will be required to its full capacity to take care of the December and January business. On account of the rapid development of the power and lighting business in the towns operated from Metuchen a lot of new machinery has been ordered in anticipation of the greater increase for 1907 and 1908.

The power stations which formerly existed in Plainfield, Rahway, Cateret, Bound Brook, Somerville, Raritan and New Brunswick and Perth Amboy have all been closed down during the last few years, and in these towns there are substations which receive and store the electricity generated in Metuchen.

The principal towns lighted from Metuchen are New Brunswick, Perth Amboy, Sewaren, Woodbridge, Port Reading, Chrome, Carteret, Rahway, Westfield, Plainfield, Dunellen, New Market, Bound Brook, Somerville, Raritan, Highland Park and Metuchen.

In addition to furnishing electricity for lighting and power for these towns and smaller places not named, power is also furnished for running the Perth Amboy trolley cars, which formerly received power from the Raritan Copper Works. The street railway systems of Rahway, Somerville, Bound Brook and Raritan are also operated from Metuchen. The Bound Brook, Somerville and Raritan system was formerly operated from Metuchen.

All of these towns and sub-stations are connected by an independent telephone line with an exchange at the Metuchen Station. Jersey City and Newark are also included in the system.

Attended Society Wedding.

PLAINFIELD ELKS HAVE A BIG NIGHT

SONGS, MAGIC AND INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC FOLLOWED BY SUPPER.

The congeniality that marks all social affairs conducted by the Elks was in evidence last night when Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, held an "old fashioned" gathering in Findlay's Hall on East Second street. The "old fashioned" feature reposed in the fact that formality was dispensed with and everybody helped in making the session successful. More than 200 Elks and their friends were present and the programme extended beyond the midnight hour.

Exalted Ruler George O. Stevens was master of ceremonies and under his direction the various entertainers performed. The principal number was given by Professor Krueger, of New York, a clever sleight-of-hand artist, who amazed and delighted the gathering with feats of magic. He had an inexhaustible supply of tricks and gave many that are put on only by the best known illusionists. Messrs. Hawthorne and Barry, also of New York, played and sang and several delightful tenor solos were contributed by Herbert Schutt, formerly of the borough, but now a New Yorker. Songs were given by James Stewart, George O. Stevens, Tom Muir, Chief Kiely, W. J. Counihan and other 885 members, the entire gathering joining in the choruses. Paroubek's orchestra occupied seats on the platform and gave a splendid programme of selections, introducing popular airs and accompanying the soloists.

Shortly after midnight, a supper was served by Caterer Thomas Timbo and an hour or more was devoted to general sociability.

The affair was arranged and conducted by a committee composed of Thomas Hanna, chairman; Herbert W. Stover, Harry B. MacDonald, Fred Sanford and Charles J. Ward.

WOMEN'S GUILD HOLD SUCCESSFUL FAIR AND SALE.

In the Parish House of the Church of the Heavenly Rest.

Under the auspices of the Women's Guild, of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, a successful fair and sale opened in the parish house yesterday afternoon, was continued last night and will also be held this afternoon and evening. The rooms were attractively decorated and there were several pretty booths. The proceeds from the affair will go toward the church treasury.

Mrs. Dudley Gerguson is the general chairman of the fair. The reception committee is composed of Mrs. Charles Graves and Mrs. William Grannatt. F. H. Merrill is chairman of the fancy and apron table, and her assistants are Mrs. Daniel F. Lamberson and Mrs. William I. Shrieve. Miss Elizabeth Forster is chairman of the committee at the candy table and her assistants are Miss Violet Hallard, Miss Clara Hallard and Miss Margaret Hulit. Mrs. Eden B. Bennett is in charge of the cake table and she is assisted by Mrs. James Campbell, Mrs. Christian Peterson and Mrs. Charles Stace.

Those in charge of the ice cream include Mrs. Edward Brown, Mrs. Harry Fraleigh and Mrs. A. Bunting. Mrs. Sutton, Miss Eleanor Williams and Miss Maxson were in charge of the orange tree and the members of the Sunday-school were at the toy and doll table.

Escaped Man Caught.

It has been learned that Daniel Whipert, who was arrested at Bound Brook Monday by Officer Gregory and committed to the county jail in Somerville on a disorderly charge, was the man who escaped from the State Village for Epileptics at Skillman last summer. Nothing had been heard of Whipert until he landed in Bound Brook. He is in the county jail under a five-day sentence and will probably be sent back to the State Village.

Senator a Machine Maker.

At a special meeting held yesterday the Somerville Board of Trade took steps to form a local company for the manufacture of a typewriter to be sold at retail at $50. The New Jersey Central Railroad was the means of acquainting Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen with G. M. A. Fecke, the owner of the patents on this machine. The Senator has already subscribed for a liberal amount of the stock.

MAY TEAR DOWN

Scheme on Foot to Pur the Buildings, For a Club House.

TO DECIDE WEDNESDA

Mayor Fisk Has Received Offer From Men Who Want to Erect Fine Residences on the Valuable Tract.

Will the Casino and clubhouse on West Seventh street be torn down and become a thing of the past, or will it continue to be a center of pleasure and amusement to the society folk of Plainfield and vicinity? This is a question that is soon to be decided. A meeting will be held in the parlors of the Casino Wednesday night, December 12, to consider the proposition of forming a club and keeping the property intact. If sufficient interest is taken in the proposition there will be no change in the property. But if not the land will be sold and the buildings removed.

Mayor-elect Charles J. Fisk, who owns the property, has received two flattering offers from Plainfielders for the property, who want to build two handsome dwellings there. But Mr. Fisk does not want to dispose of the property until those who are especially interested in the Casino have an opportunity to consider the question.

In the call sent out for the meeting, Mr. Fisk says: "I realize a building of this kind is needed in Plainfield to provide for many social affairs, and the Casino is particularly adapted for club purposes. Before taking any definite action I desire to find out if there is sufficient interest in the community to form a corporation to take over the property and keep it in existence."

Since learning that Mr. Fisk has received offers to sell the property, a number of well-known society men have begged Mr. Fisk to withhold further action until they have an opportunity to discuss the matter. They realize that it would be a regrettable thing to allow the Casino and clubhouse to be demolished, thus taking away such a suitable building for the holding of social functions.

Mr. Fisk has maintained this property for various affairs, social and otherwise, at his own expense, and he feels that unless a goodly number of people are willing to interest themselves in the project, he can see no reason why he should do so.

On the reading room tables will be found current numbers of the weekly and monthly magazines. New books just given to the library and fresh in juvenile fiction will be ready for distribution. The thirty-dollar gold badges for Westfield councilmen have arrived, and the question as to who is responsible to the maker for payment is causing agitation. No member of the council seems to be willing to stand for them, and C. D. Reese, of New York, who made the badges, has placed the matter of collecting pay for them in the hands of his attorney. It was partly decided that Councilman Eakholm, who is now in Chicago, gave the order for them, but as he was not present at the last meeting to speak for himself, the final settlement of the matter was left open until his return. Mayor Randolph Perkins offered to pay for the badges and present them to the members of the council but this they would not listen to.

Owing to so much opposition, the hotel at the corner of Front street and Dublin road, formerly occupied by Joseph Stearer, has as yet not been able to obtain a license. John Geary, whose home is opposite, condemned the place as a nuisance and headed a complaint to that effect, and all the residents in the neighborhood signed the complaint, which was sent to New Brunswick for Judge Booraem's consideration. The license this year has been raised to $150 and small saloons find it difficult to raise that amount.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

One cannot neglect seeing "Dora Thorne," which will be at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. The play teaches a strong moral lesson and should be seen by both young and old. "Dora Thorne" is a story that appeals to people in all walks of life and is certainly worth going to see.

Familiar though they are, the modern moving picture is one of the greatest—if not the greatest achievement and invention of modern times. The wildest imagination of our forefathers could not conceive or admit the possibility of such a wonderful exhibition as Lyman H. Howe's Lifeorama which has been presented here during the past few years to crowded houses on each visit. An entirely new programme of notable scenes contributed by many lands and events will be shown at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night.

Daniel Sully, one of the best known and most popular stars of the American stage, will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night, in his latest and greatest comedy success, "The Matchmaker," by Jerrold Shepard. Mr. Sully will be seen as Father Daly, pastor of the village church in Boom City, Idaho, a role offering opportunities that will be appreciated by playgoers who have seen him in "The Parish Priest." The production will be under the auspices of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus.

A topical farce on the fads and fancies of the hour by Charles Klein, the author of "The Lion and the Mouse" and "The Music Master," with George W. Munroe in the stellar role, is announced for the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night. Mr. Munroe's new departure, a digression from pantaloons to petticoats, comes highly endorsed by the Metropolitan Press as an opportunity to see him as a funny man and the funniest woman the stage has yet known.

When Edward R. Salter's company, headed by Charles J. Stine and Olive Evans in "It's All Your Fault," the latest New York comedy hit from the Savoy theatre comes to New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night, the audience is sure to be tremendously amused at a young actor bearing the front name of Pincus, who, according to the New York critics, is the most gifted young laugh maker in the business. Young Pincus' last name sounds like an explosion of gasoline. It is one of those Persian words in six syllables you always skip when you see delicatessen signs. The unpronounceable Pincus is quite as broad as he is long, and is said to be excruciatingly funny.

McWilliam, reported $2,210, and a balance on hand of $411. These officers were elected: President, Mrs. E. C. Wise; vice-presidents, Mrs. A. G. Anderson, Mrs. G. C. Olendorf and Mrs. E. J. Bellis; secretary, Mrs. George Vanderveer; treasurer, Mrs. G. S. Cook; auditors, Mrs. John Webely and Mrs. E. T. Harvey.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

When the National League convenes the veteran magnates, A. H. Soden and W. H. Conant, who have owned the Boston club for thirty years, will step down and out. They have sold their plant to George B. and Joseph Dovey, St. Louis men, who are said to have argreed to pay $275,000 for the club. The Doveys planked down $75,000 in cash last week, with notes for $100,000 and Soden taking a mortgage on the balance. The new magnates are close friends of Barney Dreyfus, of Pittsburg, who also holds a block of stock in the Philadelphia club. They have signed Fred Tenney to manage the team, and say that they will spend money for new players. Soden, Conant and Billings were known in baseball for many years as the Boston Triumvirs. They made more than $1,000,000 out of the game in the Hub in the days when they had no opposition, but they were big losers during the Brotherhood fight in 1890, and when the American League went into modern Athens their game was practically knocked in the head. Soden, one of the most concervative men in the National League, has been the presiding officer at annual meetings for a decade. He and Covant are wealthy business men in Boston, and are probably glad to get rid of the burden of which the Doveys will relieve them.

Christy Mathewson, the star pitcher of the New York Nationals, arrived in town yesterday from a hunting trip in Michigan. He shook hasnd with a number of fans on Broadway, to whom he impared the interesting information that he had shot three deer and had taken twenty-three snap shots of the wild country where he spent his vacation. Mathewson looked to be in splendid health. Mathewson said he weighed 200 pounds, and that he had entirely recovered from the effects of typhoid which caused him to lose his effectiveness in the box a greater part of last season. The great pitcher feels confident that he will be himself again in 1907. He will winter at his home in Pennsylvania.

—For the purpose of closing up the year's business and giving City Treasurer W. F. Arnold an opportunity to get in all the bills and pay them before January 1, the Common Council will meet a few days before the last days of the month.

THE CONGO.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, whose opinion on any matter upon which he might speak is worthy of the most respectful consideration, takes issue with this paper in its contention regarding the wisdom and right of America interesting itself in the Congo horrors. In a communication received from the scholarly divine today, the doctor says:

"Editor, The Daily Press:

"Your vigorous editorial today under the title "The Mote in Thy Brother's Eye" seems to call for a word of reply, and perhaps from me especially, as pastor of the church where last Sunday a representative of the Congo Reform Association was heard with profound interest.

"Permit me to say that your sharp criticism of the purpose of the association is based upon an apparent misapprehension of the situation. The Congo Free State, created in 1884 by the powers led by the United States, is not a part of Leopold's Kingdom. His relation to that state is virtually that of overlord by appointment of the powers.

"Unlike the Czar of Russia or the Empress Dowager of China, whom you mention by way of comparison, he has no claim either by inheritance or by conquest. He is in effect a trustee, not only for the European powers but for the whole civilized world. He has been monstrously unfaithful to his trust, and the effort of this association in Europe and America, is to have him brought to account. Indeed, he has been called to account by the powers more than once, and only by trickery and falsehood has been able to hold his position. The governments most deeply concerned are large bodies and move slowly. The association is seeking so to arouse public sentiment on both sides of the Atlantic that there shall be no more delay on the part of the powers; to expose so clearly the horrible conditions—not of the past, as a writer in yesterday's New York Tribune asserts, but of the present—that Leopold shall no longer be able to deceive the world.

"What the United States government can do in the case the association on this side of the water does not undertake to say, but it is believed that as one of the great world powers, it may legitimately make its voice heard in a way that cannot well be disregarded.

"Pray consider that the members of this association throughout the world are not ignorant fanatics, but many of them among the ablest and sanest men of the day, who are fairly well informed on international obligations and limitations of action.

"May I ask you to consider also whether you have quite fitly used the old adage about people who live in glass houses. Do you really think that there is any analogy between the state of things in the United States, with all the sporadic cases of lynching and other brutal crimes that can be cited, and the world-paralyzing horrors that constitute the normal condition of life for the natives in the Congo Free State?

"J. A. CHAMBLISS."

There is no misapprehension as to how the King of the Belgians comes to exercise control in the Congo. So long as the present arrangement with the powers exists, the territory is virtually his own personal property. But so far as the United States is concerned we do not see that it has any more "claim" to meddle in the Congo than in China or any other country other than those in the East.

Dr. Chambliss will recall that the President did not submit the Act of Berlin to the Senate for radification because he knew that its adoption would draw this country into foreign entanglement. The Congo, we believe, is an affair for the nations of Europe, who do not have any Monroe doctrine.

Dr. Chambliss admits that he does not undertake to say what the United States could do, but isn't it of vital importance that the agitators should know just what could be done by this government before they go any further? True, America might "make its voice heard in a way that cannot well be disregarded," but when it does that would it not be meddling with European affairs? We certainly do think that there is an analogy between the conditions in the Congo and in the United States so long as lynchings continue to be so prevalent. If the doctor will read Mr. Roosevelt's message to Congress he will find that the President of the United States declares that lynchings and other brutal and heinous crimes are "prevalent" throughout this country—they are not "sporadic cases."

PENNY A VOTE SCHEME DROPPED AT HIGH SCHOOL.

Pupils to Take Part In Picture Presentation to Be Chosen by Another Method.

One of the features of the Christmas exercises at the Plainfield High School, this year, will be the presentation o fa picture by the pulpils to the school. At present the pupils are engaged in balloting on four pictures: "The Cumaean Sibyl," by Vedder; "Cicero's Denunciation of Catiline," by McCarry; "The Oath of Knighthood," by Abbey, and Alexander's "The Evolution of the Book," which consists of six pictures showing the advance made in printing since the prehistoric man. The last two named are the most popular in school and the selection will unquestionably be between them. There will also be chosen two pupils, one to present the picture and the other to receive it.

Contrary to the one cent a vote method advanced yesterday for the selection of these two pupils, they will be elected by the entire school at the morning assembly tomorrow morning. Principal I. W. Traveil says that this will be final and will determine the choice.

CHAMBER CONCERT.

Second in Series to Take Place at Casino Tomorrow Night.

The second of the McIntyre chamber concerts will be given tomorrow night at the Casino. The Arensky Trio, which will be played at this concert, was dedicated to the memory of the great Russian 'cellist, Davidoff, and has all the characteristic and serious moods pertaining to the wonderful Russian temperament. It contains a Scherzo which has made the trio famous. By special request Mr. McIntyre includes in his programme an exquisite composition by the Frenchman, L. Ganne, which is a dainty and highly pleasing work. It is also for trio. In addition to these numbers Mr. Cupy, the violinist, will give Sarasate's "Faust" as his solo number. His appearance as soloist is anticipated with much pleasure by those who heard his work at the last concert. The vocal artist of the occasion is Miss Edith Rodgers, of New York, who will be recalled as the protege of Miss Callender, who made such a brilliant success with her song recital at Lennox last year.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Will you kindly grant me sufficient space to register a kick against the voting machine? Your article in Tuesday's issue concerning the bill for $92.55, for the protection, insurance, storage and instruction in the use of these machines, prompts the following: You call them junk. They are not exactly that, but the quicker they are reduced to that commodity, the better. And I don't think our Councilmen would have much trouble in getting the job done. Most any voter who used a machine at the last or previous elections, would volunteer to furnish a good sledge hammer, and do a good job. They are not what we want, for a number of reasons. To an illiterate man, they are worse than a Chinese puzzle. And to the average voter, who has not had time to study them, "some thing the most of us do not have," they are an unsolved problem. They are not an expression of the voters' will, because after he has followed what instructions he is able to get, he is not certain whether he has voted as he wished, turned in a fire alarm, or called for the ambulance to remove his bewildered self, from the scene of his attempted vote, and wreck of his hopes. If he is brave enough to attempt a split vote, the clicking of the levers betray him, to anyone in the polling place, and he is "spotted" by the politicans present. These machines may be what the politicians want, but the average voter don't; I know of several men who did not, nor will not vote in future, because of the machines, and I express the sentiments of over thirty men, when I say, Out with them, and give us back the old ballot and ballot box of our Fathers, with an honest election board, that will give us an open and honest count of the printed ballot that every man can read and see for himself.

Banquet for School Commission.

Princeton, Dec. 6.—Some time ago the New Jersey Legislature empowered Governor Stokes to appoint a commission to investigate and report on the condition of the foreign-born residents of this State. With the authority the Governor named as that commission Professor J. Dynley Prince, of Columbia University; S. F. Merritt, of Montclair, and Miss J. Maud Campbell, librarian of the public library of Passaic. These reported to Governor Stokes, and at once started in their work of establishing night schools in various cities of New Jersey. Four such schools are now being successfully run. Only the English language and a study of American citizenship are taught. The commission will hold a banquet at the Princeton Inn on December 14. Here the problems conected with the work will be discussed by prominent speakers of the State and others associated with the subject of immigrant population.

—The Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. will meet tonight.

—An informal dance will be held at the Park Club on Saturday night, December 15.

doors from all manner of insects, be they ever so scaley.

As with all nurserymen, scales are the bugaboos that most affright Mr. Forrestel. He is bloomy as to the future of every tree in Plainfield. Unless general and consistent spraying is done, he declares as an expert, there will be a horrid slaughter of trees by rapacious creatures all over the city. Speak to him about it, and he will read a roll of hard and soft maple, ash and tulip scales, not to mention the chestnut fungi, that is thoroughly calculated to wake on to a feverish desire to see somebody doing something to save the trees before it becomes a case of fighting an overwhelming scourge.

Mr. Forrestel believes the Council should take up the matter of tree protection. He has a plan that would kill two birds with one stone. Let the city appoint a man or a commission, he suggests, to mark certain trees to be saved, and then spray those trees. The unmarked to be left to die under the assaults of the scaley things. This would bring about a very necessary thinning of shade about town. And it would be rather a nice way to treat the visiting bugs, who can't help their appetites, although that feature of the plan is not one advanced by Mr. Forrestel. The idea of entertaining a tree scale will probably horrify him.

Mr. Forrestel so hates bugs that he reads all the bulletins on them and hunts up a method of quick death for every new kind he learns of. He took grim pride this week in the discovery of a new Japanese insect, found in some Jap shrubbery in Boston. If the Myresa Flavescens Walk—that is what they call the poor little exile—comes within reach of Mr. Forrestel he will smite it with a terrible "cide" or "ite" of some kind and knock the spots out of it.

Mr. Forrestel has a particular pet in the way of a kill-'em-quick now. It is called "Downicide," and is guaranteed to slay at sight. It works like a charm in the greenhouse, and if it does as well outdoors—Mr. Forrestel has still to try it in the open—it will discount the spray used on the trees early this year by a good deal. That spray smelled to heaven, and the stink made people wonder if a treeless city wasn't better than a paralyzed nose. "Downicide"—suggestive name, hints of a bug Down-and-Out Club—has absolutely no odor. It is colorless, as well; but probably will get there just the same. As soon as he can, Mr. Forrestel will try it on the trees, and if it works right, the city will have Mr. Forrestel, an ideal spray, and a two and one-half horse-power sprayer ready to help in saving the trees from denudation and death.

GIFT OF A LAKE TO OLD NASSAU.

Three-and-a-Half Mile Body of Water Presented by Andrew Carnegie.

Princeton, December 6.—Andrew Carnegie yesterday made the formal presentation of the lake which he has caused to be built, to Princeton. He arrived on a special train yesterday morning at 10:58 o'clock, accompanied by a large number of friends.

At the station he was met by the students of the university, who cheered him as he walked through Blair Hall rach to Nassau Hall, where he was received by the faculty. Here the academic procession formed and marched with Mr. Carnegie to Alexander Hall, and the exercises began upon his arrival there.

The exercises included an address by Mr. Carnegie in presenting the lake, and President Wilson's acceptance of the gift.

The gallery of Alexander Hall was occupied by the undergraduates. After the exercises Mr. Carnegie and his party were entertained by President Wilson at luncheon, after which they accompanied the lake committee on an inspection of the lake in automobiles and carriages.

Leaving "Prospect," the president's residence, they drove down Washington street road and round the lake boulevard to the Harrison street bridge, which they crossed and took the road for Kingston.

They returned from there by Nassau street later..

There has been some discussion as to how the lake would be maintained, as the university does not care to assume the expense. It is expected that some time today Mr. Carnegie will announce his plans in that direction. He has recently had the "Lake Carnegie Association" formed under the laws of New Jersey. It will hold the lake and administer the affairs of the property.

Charity Ball Plans.

Austin's orchestra has been engaged for the annual charity ball to take place at the Casino on New Year's Eve. Owing to the illness of Nat Goodwin, "The Genius" will not be the attraction at the theatre that night. The booking agents have promised the committee a show equally as good. The tickets will admit to both the theatre and the Casino as well as the supper.

Dr. Hedges to Speak.

Dr. B. vanD. Hedges will make an address on the "The Methods of Treatment and Prevention of Tuberculosis" at a meeting to be held at Elizabeth on January 14. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the State Society for the Prevention and Treatment of Tuberculosis.

Trenton, Dec. 6.—The New Jersey State Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, re-elected most of the old officers for the ensuing year yesterday morning. The officers are:

Worthy master, George W. F. Gaunt, Mullica Hill; worthy overseer, Charles Chalmers, Vineland; worthy lectrurer, David H. Agans, Three Bridges; worthy steward, John M. Woolman, Elmer; assistant steward, Henry H. Loveland, Cohansey; chaplain, Robert H. Torbet, Paterson; treasurer, Charles Collins, Moorestown.

Resolutions were presented and adopted commending President Roosevelt for the part of his message to Congress which says: "Such a movement as the grange is good in itself, and is capable of a well-nigh infinite further extension for good so long as it is kept to its own legitimate business.'

The resolutions pledged the efforts of the order to continue to merit the respect and confidence thus given it, also to unite with all other good citizens to maintain all free institutions upon the lines of equality, justice and honesty. It was further resolved that a copy of the resolutions be telegraphed to President Roosevelt.

Master and hand them down as we surprised that these words have d a wide and lasting influence and at they may teach us useful lessons.

Christ spoke seven times during the six hours He was on the cross. Matthew and Mark each record one of these utterances, Luke three and John three. Three of these words concerned those who were about Him, and the other four concerned Himself—His sufferings, His finished work and His death. More sacred words were never uttered, and we should approach their study with the deepest reverence and humility and give them the widest possible influence in our lives.

The first word teaches us Christ's attitude toward His enemies—"Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." These words were spoken to the enemies of Christ, the Pharisees, who had falsely accused Him; the mob about the cross, who reviled Him, and the Roman soldiers, who were putting Him to death. (1) They teach that Christ did not return enmity with enmity. He hated not those who hated Him. Nor should we. There is no place in the Christian religion for retaliation. Vengeance belongs to God. We should leave those who injure us to Him. (2) Christ forgave His enemies. His prayer for them proves that. Christians should forgive their enemies. They should love them.

The second word teaches Christ's attitude toward repentant sinners. "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, today shalt thou be with Me in paradise." These words were spoken in answer to the prayer of the dying repentant thief. They gave to him an assured entrance into heaven. This is the attitude of Christ toward all sinners who repent of their sins and ask His forgiveness. No matter how far we may have wandered into sin, there is forgiveness for us at the foot of the cross and assurance of an entrance into heaven.

The third word teaches us the attitude of Christ toward His mother. In his dying hour He did not forget His mother, but made provision for her future by leaving her in the care of John in these words: "Woman, behold thy son; behold thy mother." This lesson needs to be deeply impressed upon the minds of the young people of today. Many young people in our age are indifferent to the needs of aged fathers and mothers. They give them little of their companionship, are disobedient and disrespectful and put forth no effort to make their declining days full of peace and happiness. Christ did not so treat His mother nor should we so treat our parents.

The fourth and fifth words of the cross teach us a lesson on the sufferings of Christ. In the fourth, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" we see the full extent of His soul suffering. For a time God Himself, as needed to be, was hidden from Him. This was the darkest hour on the cross, the greatest soul suffering possible. The fifth, "I thirst," illustrates Christ's greatest physical suffering. He had refused the vinegar mingled with myrrh because it was intended to deaden His pain, but now in His great pain He did not refuse the vinegar alone offered by the Roman soldiers. This, however, would not alleviate His sufferings. He suffered the extremest agonies on the cross and all for us. Therefore we should love Him and be willing to suffer for Him.

The sixth and seventh words concern Christ's death. The sixth—"It is finished"—declares the completion of His life work. Are we doing, as He did, the work which God has for us to do? The seventh, "Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit," gives us a glance at Christ's faith and assurance for the future. Are we so assured concerning our future? We ought to be, for we know neither the day nor the hour when we must face death.

Make Your Plans Large.

Mr. Moody has written in his Bible at the fifth and sixth chapters of John this sentence: "If God be your partner, make your plans large."

Christian Endeavor implies partnership with God, and Christian Endeavor calls for planning on broad lines. The field of the society is the entire community. We must not fence it in and say that its efforts shall extend to the membership of the individual church and no farther. The spirit of Christian Endeavor is missionary, and whenever there is a soul needing light there it should carry the message of the Light of the World. The glory of Christian Endeavor lies in this—that it has got the eyes of the young people away from the narrow boundary of life and given them a wider vision and a more glorious prospect; large plans, then, because of large vision; large plans because of greater opportunity; large plans plus partnership with God, and the result a glorious fruitage and a heavenly blessing.—John R. Clements in Cortland Echo.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Dec. 9: "Association Unto Salvation."

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

A justification of incongruous association.—Matt. xi, 19. A disciple won from an unpromising source.—Luke xix, 5-10. A friend of former days brought to Jesus.—Luke v, 29-32.

A man is known by the company which he keeps. We are so made that we seek companionship, and, while it is a truth everywhere recognized that like begets like, it is equally true that like seeks like, or, in the words of the old saying, "Birds of a feather flock together." We do not expect to find the dove flocking with crows, nor do we look with approval on the one who seeks goodness and right living if he seeks constant companionship among the vicious and depraved. It is well known that "evil communications corrupt good manners." We become like those with whom we consort. No one can be constantly hearing vile language without acquiring to greater or less extent the taint of such speech. On the other hand, no one can be long in the company of the gentle and refined without taking on somewhat of their manners and tone.

The Bible is emphatic in this matter. The Proverbs are full of admonition against companionship with the evil, and the young person who makes the reading of that book a daily religious exercise soon comes to a way of looking at things that leads him to instinctively avoid evil associations. There is no manual of conduct and advice in existence which approaches in value this ancient book of wise sayings. The New Testament is equally strong in advice to "come out from among them and touch not the unclean thing." There is a vast difference between clean and unclean in religious and moral things, and this difference is shown all through the Bible. We are to be a peculiar people separated unto God and good works.

But all this does not in any way imply that we may not have dealings with the morally wrong ones if our purpose is to bring them out of their evil into companionship with Christ and His church. Our Lord was friend to the publicans and sinners, but never partaker of their evil deeds. He met with them to show them the path to a better life. So we are warranted and commanded to seek the lost ones as He did, that we may bring them to salvation. We must, however, not fail to accomplish their reformation—at least they must not be allowed to deform us and make us come to their standard. We must associate with the evil only to reform them.

Levi makes a great feast for Jesus. Levi is a publican and is accounted by the goodish people as a very bad man because he collects the revenue for the government, which they hate. Jesus discovers in him the craving after a godly life in spite of his unpopular occupation and so eats at the feast, not as a gluttonous man and a wine bibber, as he is called by the goodish people, who have never tried to reach Levi, but he eats as a friend of sinners and as their best helper.

So he goes to the house of Zacchaeus. The crowd may murmur at it as improper, but Jesus has come to seek and to save the lost, and in the strength of His rightness and sympathy for those not right He can safely to Himself and to them go to these out of the way and bring them into the right path of life.

This association is unto salvation. No one can safely walk in the way of sinners or stand in the councils of the ungodly or pass close by the seats of the scornful unless he is strong in the Lord and upheld by His mighty power.

There is a vast difference between the man of God and the ordinary man of the world. The Christian must do business with the men of the world, but he must not do business as they do otherwise he is no longer the man of God. We must meet to some extent in social life with them, but not "seek the intimacy of friendly society except among our kind," and not partake of their frivolities and dangerous dissipations of many kinds.

Be friendly with all men that you may bring them to know your Christ as their personal Saviour, but you will never so bring them unless they see that you live in close companionship with Him yourself. They must see Him in you.

He Knows Best.

The outward features of our life may not be all that we should choose them to be. There may be things we wish for that never come to us. There may be much we wish away that we cannot part from. The persons with whom we live, the circumstances by which we are surrounded, the duties we have to perform, the burdens we have to bear, may not only be other than what we should have selected for ourselves, but may even seem inconsistent with that formation and discipline of character which we honestly wish to promote. Knowing us better than we know ourselves, fully understanding how greatly we are affected by the outward events and conditions of life, God has ordered them with a view to our entire and final, not only our immediate, happiness. And whenever we can be safely trusted with pastures that are green and waters that are still in the way of earthly blessing the Good Shepherd leads us there.—Arnold W. Thorold.

The Love For Nature.

We shall find that the love of nature wherever it has existed has been a faithful and sacred element of human feeling—that is to say, supposing all the circumstances otherwise the same with respect to two individuals, the one who loves nature most will be always found to have more capacity for faith in God than the other.—John Ruskin.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

BY HARRY LEON WILSON AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1905 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

"But I know Joseph was not a good man."

"I believe with all my heart Joseph was good; but even if not—we have never pretended that he was anything more than a prophet of God. And was not Moses a murderer when God called him to be a prophet?"

"And this awful journey into a horrid desert. Why must you go? Surely there are other ways of salvation." She hesitated a moment. "I have been told that going to heaven is like going to mill. If your wheat is good, the miller will never ask which way you came."

"Child, child, some one has tampered with you."

She retorted quickly.

"He did not tamper, he has never sought to—he was all kindness."

She stopped, her short upper lip holding its incautious mate a prisoner. She blushed furiously under the sudden blaze of his eyes.

"So it's true, what Seth Wright hinted at? To think that you, of all people—my sweetheart—gone over—won over by a cursed mobocrat—a fiend with the blood of our people wet on his hands! Listen, Prue; I'm going into the desert. Even though you beg me to stay, you must have known—perhaps you hoped—that I would go. There are many reasons why I must. For one, there are 640 poor hunted wretches over there on the river bank, sick, cold, wet, starving, but enduring it all to the death for their faith in Joseph Smith. They could have kept their comfortable homes here and their substance, simply by renouncing him—they are all voluntary exiles—they have only to say 'I do not believe Joseph Smith was a prophet of God,' and these same Gentiles will receive them with open arms, give them clothing, food, and shelter, put them again in possession of their own. But they are lying out over there, fever-stricken, starving, chilled, all because they will not deny their faith. Shall I be a craven, then, who have scarcely ever wanted for food or shelter, and probably shall not? Of course you don't love me or you couldn't ask me to do that. Those faithful wretched ones are waiting over there for me to guide them on toward a spot that will probably be still more desolate. They could find their way, almost, by the trail of graves we left last spring, but they need my strength and my spirit, and I am going. I am going, too, for my own salvation. I would suffer anything for you, but by going I may save us both. Listen, child; God is going to make a short work on earth. We shall both see the end of this reign of sin. It is well if you take wheat to the mill, but what if you fetch the miller chaff instead?"

"Joel,—dear, dear Joel!—indeed I pity and sympathize—and care for—but I cannot go—even after all you say. And don't you see it will always be so! My father says the priesthood will always be in trouble if it sets itself above the United States. Dear Joel, I can't go, indeed I can't go!"

He spoke more softly now.

"Thank God I don't realize it yet—I mean, that we must part. You tell me so and I hear you and my mind knows, but my heart hasn't sensed it yet—I can feel it now going stupidly along singing its old happy song of hope and gladness, while all this is going on here outside. But soon the big hurt will come. Oh, Prue—Prue, girl—can't you think what it will mean to me? Don't you know how I shall sicken for the sight of you, and my ears will listen for you! Prudence, Prue, darling—yet I must not be womanish! I have a big work to do. I have known it with a new clearness since that radiance rested above my head last night. The truth burns in me like a fire. Your going can't take that from me. It must be I was not fit to have you. With you perhaps I could not have had a heart single to God's work. He permitted me to love you so I could be tried and proved."

"You—My Sweetheart—Gone Over—Won Over by a Cursed Mobocrat."

He looked at her fondly, and she could see striving and trembling in his eyes a great desire to crush her in his arms, yet he fought it down, and continued more calmly.

"But indeed I must be favored more than common to deserve that so great a hurt be put upon me, and I shall not be found wanting. I shall never wed any woman but you, though, dear. If not you, never any other."

He stood up.

"I must go in to them now. There must be work to do against the start to-morrow."

"Joel!"

"May the Lord deafen my ears to you, darling!" and squaring his shoulders resolutely away from her, he left her on the seat and went in.

The old man looked up from his Bible as his son entered.

"It's sore sad, laddie, we can't have the temple for your sealing-vows."

"Prudence will not be sealed to me, father." He spoke dazedly, as if another like the morning's blow had been dealt him. "I—I am already sealed to the Spirit for time and eternity."

"Was it Prudence's doings?" asked his mother, quickly.

"Yes; she has left the church with her people."

The long-faced, narrow-browed old man raised one hand solemnly.

"Then let her be banished from Israel and not numbered in the books of the offspring of Abraham! And let her be delivered over to the buffetings of Satan in the flesh!"

CHAPTER V.

Giles Rae Beautifies His Inheritance.

By eight o'clock the next morning, out under a cloudy sky, the Raes were ready and eager for their start to the new Jerusalem. Even the sick woman's face wore a kind of soft and faded radiance in the excitement of going. On her mattress, she had been tenderly installed in one of the two covered wagons that carried their household goods. The wagon in which she lay was to be taken across the river by Seth Wright—for the moment no Wild Ram of the Mountains, but a soft-cooing dove of peace. Permission had been granted him by Brockman to recross the river on some needful errands; and, having once proved the extreme sensitiveness, not to say irritability, of those in temporary command, he was now resolved to give as little eclat as possible to certain superior aspects of his own sanctity. He spoke low and deferentially, and his mien was that of a modest, retiring man who secretly thought ill of himself.

He mounted the wagon in which the sick woman lay, sat well back under the bowed cover, clucked low to the horses, and drove off toward the ferry. If discreet behavior on his part could ensure it there would be no conflict provoked with superior numbers; with numbers, moreover, composed of violent-tempered and unprincipled persecutors who were already acting with but the merest shadow of legal authority.

On the seat of the second wagon, whip in hand, was perched Giles Rae, his coat buttoned warmly to the chin. He was slight and feeble to the eye, yet he had been fired to new life by the certainty that now they were to leave the territory of the persecuting Gentiles for a land to be the Saints' very own. His son stood at the wheel, giving him final directions. At the gate was Prudence Corson, gowned for travel, reticule in hand, her prettiness shadowed, under the scoop of her bonnet, the toe of one trim little boot meditatively rolling a pebble over the ground.

"Drive slowly, Daddy. Likely I shall overtake you before you reach the ferry. I want but a word yet with Prudence; though"—he glanced over at the bowed head of the girl—"no matter if I linger a little, since Brother Seth will cross first and we must wait until the boat comes back. Some of our people will be at the ferry to look after you—and be careful to have no words with any of the mob—no matter what insult they may offer. You're feeling strong, aren't you?"

To Fight Against Disease Unless They Strike at the Underlying Cause.

To treat Dandruff, and Falling Hair, with irritants or oils on which a parasitic germ will prosper, is like scooping water from the ocean to prevent the tide from rising.

An alarm was turned in at two o'clock this afternoon for a fire in the basement of D. H. Pound & Bro's. plumbing establishment, located in the brick block at Second street and Central avenue. It evidently started from combustion in a lot of oakum and other material. It caused a dense smoke but was quickly put out by the department.

BOWLING.

The Married and Single Men's bowling teams of the Gesang and Turn Verein met on the Saengerbund alleys, last night, the former winning two out of the three games played. The scores were as follows:

Harold, B.	165	181	163
Menzenbach, Jr.	213	127	133
Blatz, F. J.	142	133	195
Meyer, C., Jr.	221	155	197

MARRIED MEN.

Wirth, J.	149	140	220

Carty, T.	182	188	234
Rummel, H.	164	200	151
Voehl, G.	142	133	212
	749	810	1007

J. Forrestell, umpire; V. W. Nash, Sr., E. Luthman, scorers.

In the third game the Married Men broke all city records for high team scores by rolling 1,007. Carty proved to be the most consistent bowler, having an average of 201.1 for the three games. The second series will be rolled between the same teams on Monday, December 17, at the same alleys.

The bowling record for local newspapermen is now held by Tom Muir. In a match game at McLaughlin's alleys, yesterday afternoon, he hit the pins for 210, beating the previous best record, made by "Fozzy" Firstbrook, by six. In the same match, Judge Runyon rolled 192, the next best score.

It is reported at McLaughlin's that Sam Cunningham "went crazy with the heat" at getting 214 and issued a challenge to "Wizard" Voorheis, of Brooklyn, for a series of nine games. Voorheis has been in Baltimore with the Eastern League and a reply may be expected from him as soon as he returns. Another rumor has it that "Bill" Warnock has also asked to have a try at the wizard.

BASKETBALL.

The Y. M. C. A. first basketball team was defeated Saturday night on the home court by the crack team from Brooklyn Central, the score being 44 to 19. The local team was crippled and could not do effective work.

The girls' second basketball team of the Plainfield High School will play the girls' team from the Whittier School, tomorrow at the P. H. S. court.

The first basketball team of the Plainfield High School will play the team of the Bayonne High School tomorrow night at Bayonne.

The first and second basketball teams from the Y. M. C. A. will play the first and second teams from the Newark association at Newark, Saturday night. The game between the first teams will be one of the league series.

SOPHOMORES' WIN.

The first of the inter-class basketball games of the Plainfield High School was played yesterday afternoon between the freshmen and sophomores and resulted in the defeat of the former by a score of 38 to 1. Loizeaux and Murphy made the goals for the sophomores, and Vail scored the one point for the freshmen. The lineup:

Sophomores—Forwards, C. Loizeaux, Murphy; center, Osgood, Parsons; guards, Wilcox, Robins.

Freshmen—Forwards, Vail, Morris; center, Bond; Rickets, Miller.

Baseball and Hockey Managers.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

At the meeting of the women of the Christian church last evening, it was determined to give a oyster supper for the benefit of the church on the evening of December 21. A plate supper will be provided for those who prefer it.

The result of the entertainment given by the Young Ladies' Sodality of St. Joseph's church, on November 15, has been announced. The amount realized, clear of expenses, is over $400. The committee in charge comprised the Misses A. Fitzgerald, M. Egany, K. McMahon, M. Jacot, K. Duffy, J. Smith, M. Caffrey and K. Whalen. They were assisted by a committee of men and the decorations were in charge of Mrs. Arthur Cannon.

THE GOVERNOR'S ACT UP TO THE COURTS.

His Right to Sign Bills After Legislature Adjourns, Sine Die, to Be Decided.

Trenton, Dec. 6.—Although there seems to be little prospect now that the Legislature will be summoned in special session to consider the Passaic River purification matter, a condition has arisen which makes it probable that the lawmakers may be called together before long for another purpose.

The Governor has been informed that the Supreme Court is now squarely confronted with the question whether the Chief Executive has the power, under the constitution, to sign, bills after the Legislature has adjourned and that the question must be decided directly either in the affirmative or the negative. This question has been raised in the Supreme Court many times before this, but judges have been able, in one way or another, to dodge the real point and dispose of the case at hand without committing themselves definitely on the much discussed question.

The Governor has requested the attorney general to represent the Executive in the matter, and it is understood that Mr. McCarter will present a brief upholding the Governor's position that he had all the authority necessary to sign the bills after the Legislature has adjourned sine die.

NEW NORMAL SCHOOL BIDS ARE TO BE SOUGHT.

Plans and Specifications for It Are Approved by the Governor.

Trenton, Dec. 6.—At a meeting of the State Board of Education, held at the State House yesterday, the plans and specifications of the new North Jersey Normal School at Upper Montclair were received from the Governor with his approval.

The board will immediately advertise for bids, and they will be opened December 27.

The board at its meeting also received annual reports and transacted considerable routine business.

No action was taken on the filling of the vacancies for county superintendents in Morris, Monmouth and Salem. The matter will come up at the February meeting.

Pierce's Property Sales.

The following sales were made during November through the agency of Robert L. Pierce, of Dunellen: House and lot of Lewis Titsworth to Andrew Mullen; 4 lots of Lewis Titsworth to Abraham Nelson; 26 acres Mrs. E. A. English to C. E. Kelley & Co.; 4 houses and lot at Lincoln for receivers to a Newark man; house and lot Mrs. Stein to Abraham Nelson; large building and land of estate of Nathan Vais to Alvah Gray; 35 acres of David Dunn estate to New York man.

City Flag Pole All Right.

It is the old flag pole that stood for many years in the playground between the old Stillman High and the Franklin School, buildings that was condemned and taken down on Tuesday, and not the old city flag pole which is to be erected in front of the Plainfield High School building. This pole is in an excellent state of preservation and will soon be put in position by the telephone company, which took the contract.

Visitors at P. H. S.

Miss Ellis, of the North Plainfield High School faculty, visited the Latin department of the Plainfield High School, this morning. Another visitor was Miss Mary Brackett, of New York, assistant editor of Plant World, and secretary of the Wadleigh High School, New York. She called on Chester Mathewson, instructor in the department of biology, who is also a contributor to Plant World.

"Bob" Hoffman Still Very Ill.

Robert V. Hoffman, the former local newspaperman, who has been very ill with typhoid fever, is still in a dangerous condition. The crisis has not been reached but for the past two nights he has barely survived. He is at his apartments in Kearny, where he has been living since assuming the editorship of the West Jersey Press.

FARMER JIM MARTINE AND THE FOURTH ESTATE

Grand Old Man of New Jersey's Democracy Gives Banquet in Honor of His Newspaper Friends.

LOVING CUP FOR HIM

When Charles McBride Presents Token of Esteem, "Farmer Orator" Is Deeply Affected.

To quote the words of Mayor-elect Charles J. Fisk, "Big-hearted, whole-souled," Jim Martine was in his element, last night. Next to a political contest there is nothing that pleases the sage of Cedar Brook more than to commune with newspapermen and last evening he was with forty of them. They came, at his request, from various parts of the Fifth Congressional District, in which he has waged many a hot campaign, and also Newark, and to show his appreciation for what they have done for him in his Congressional battles, dined them at the Hotel Kensington. He had left nothing undone to add to the pleasure of the occasion and it will long be remembered by every attendant and the host as one of the happiest times of their lives.

It was 8:30 when "Jim" (the newspapermen never call him by any other name) and his guests took their places at the tables. There were several short of forty and the number included some of the best known writers in the State. For an hour and a half their entire attention was devoted to the splendid menu and at 10 o'clock cigars were lighted as the "farmer orator" rapped for attention. He had decided to act as his own toastmaster and it was his intention to have the gathering settle back for a reminiscent discussion, as everyone of the men who were before him knows of his political career.

He first called upon Charles C. McBride, editorial writer for the Newark Evening News, whose virile pen has supported "Jim" time and again. The two have been warm personal friends for years and when Mr. McBride began talking it was to pay tribute to "Jim" for all the lovable traits he possesses. His integrity and ability were touched upon and with a smile on his face Mr. McBride said, "We love him because he's a newspaperman on the quiet; and what would the Republicans do if they didn't have him to prod at election time and the Democrats to put him up for office."

While he continued speaking, Mr. McBride quietly drew an object covered with tissue paper from beneath the table and when he had removed the wrapping, a handsome silver loving cup, over a foot high, stood revealed. In the name of the Plainfield newspapermen, he presented it to "Jim," declaring that it was given as "a model of esteem and kindly appreciation to a farmer among farmers, a Democrat among Democrats and a noble citizen."

For at least once in his life, the "farmer orator" was visibly affected, but he quickly rallied and with his customary quick-wittedness made a fitting reply. He thanked the donors heartily and paid a high tribute to the newspapermen of the State, while again expressing his gratitude to the men connected with them for their interest in his behalf, irrespective of party affiliation. After that, the host called upon every one in the room and to a man they seized the opportunity to express in words the kind thoughts that were in the hearts for the upholder of Democratic principles. It was nearly midnight before the affair terminated and by that

WOMEN S.P.C.A. AGENTS

Society is to Have Feminine Special Officers In Its Circle.

VOLUNTEERS SERVICE

Another Preliminary Meeting of S. P. C. A. Organizers—L. V. F. Randolph Will Probably Be President of the Organization.

For the protection of dumb beasts, society women of this city will take on the authority of special police officers and hold themselves in readiness to stop, personally every case of cruelty or abuse that comes under their notice on their journeyings through the streets. The impending creation of women "specials" was made known this morning, after a meeting of the proposed S. P. C. A. organizers at Judge W. A. Coddington's office in the Stirling.

The meeting was attended by a dozen women, virtually the same as those at the first gathering. Permanent organization was again deferred, but a week from today was fixed definitely as the date when the society will be regularly organized. It is expected that L. V. F. Randolph will be president. Mr. Randolph has been approached regarding his service as head of the society and it is understood he is willing to assume the duties of the position. Other officers will be chosen at the organization meeting.

Several of the women interested in the movement have volunteered their services as agents of the proposed association, and they will be accepted. Their names will not be made public at present, but their identies will become known after they receive their commissions. They will be invested with police power and full authority to make arrests in cruelty cases.

There will be several other agents. Chief of Police Kiely will be one, and probably head of the humane force. By reason of their positions, all the police officers will, of course, be agents in effect, particularly as Chief Kiely is much interested in the movement. The patrolmen, it is expected, will receive special instructions to watch for cases of cruelty or abuse, and to report them to the society.

Active work will be engaged in just as soon as the S. P. C. A. is fully organized. The membership list will be opened next Friday and not less than 100 names are expected to go down in a short time. An executive committee of seven or nine will be appointed to push the society's work from the beginning.

FREEHOLDERS RECEIVE PICTURE OF THEMSELVES.

Incident of Union County Board's Meeting in Elizabeth Yesterday.

An incident connected with the December meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholders, held at Elizabeth, yesterday, was the presentation of a large photograph of the freeholders' committee, architect, the late collector, Edward M. Wood, and Director J. Frank Hubbard, together with the present director, Benjamin King, who had charge of the work of building the new Court House. The photograph was presented by the surviving members in memory of those who have passed away and will be hung in the freeholders' room. Those in the group consist of the late Director J. Frank Hubbard and County Collector Edward M. Wood; Freeholders John Farrell, John Bruchlacher, Director Benjamin King and Architect W. S. Ackerman.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the building of wing walls on the West End avenue bridge at a total expense not to exceed $2,600, provided that Somerset county will stand its share of the cost.

An extension of one year's time was granted the Morris County Traction Company to complete its work under certain stringent conditions.

Commander Peary Was There.

Commander Robert E. Peary was a guest at the quarterly meeting and banquet of the New York Commandery, Military Order Loyal Legion, held at Delconico's Wednesday night, and made a short address, referring to his last trip to the artic regions. The principal address was by Gen. Rippley, who led his brigade in taking Richmond during the Civil War. Another feature was a short illustrated sketch of the Civil War by Secretary Ellsworth, of the Century Company. The Plainfield members attending were Rev. Dr. Hubbell, DeWitt Hubbell, Dr. Frank S. Wells, Captain S. C. Peck, Captain M. C. Dobbins and Walter C. Dobbins.

OPERATION TO RELIEVE JEWELER OF BULLET

X-RAY DISCLOSES THE BALL; NOTHING SHOWS WHEREABOUTS OF CROOK.

Surgery will be necessary to free Leo Slonim, the jeweler, from the bullet fired into him by the hold-up man Monday night. The ball was located in his arm by means of an X-ray examination yesterday afternoon at Dr. G. W. Endicott's office, and arrangements were made to cut it out. The operation will be performed in a day or two, Mr. Slonim's condition making haste unnecessary.

The police end of the case remains the same. Chief Kiely said this morning that he had no clue to the crook, and could only keep out his dragnet in the hope of landing a bit of helpful information if not the robber himself. The police do not take the New York private detective, who had a warrant issued Wednesday afternoon, seriously.

Mrs. Slonim said this morning that she expected another visit from the mysterous sleuth. She was not communicative as to his work on the case.

SAMUEL RANDOLPH DIES AFTER A WEEK'S ILLNESS

WAS THE MAN WHO HAD ASSISTED IN THE HANGING OF BRIDGET DURGAN.

Following an illness of about one week, Samuel F. Randolph, for many years a familiar figure in Plainfield, died at his home on West Fourth street, near Liberty, last night. He was born in Piscataway township in 1824 and had lived in this vicinity all his life. He served in the Civil War and was a member of the G. A. R. Surviving him are two sisters, the Misses Kate and Hannah Randolph, and one brother, James Randolph, of Dunellen.

Mr. Randolph was known all through Middlesex and Union counties as the man who had assisted in the hanging of Bridget Burgen, the New Market murderess, who was executed at New Brunswick thirty years ago. The woman killed the wife and child of Dr. Coriell because of jealosey and the case attracted widespread attention. Randolph was assistant to the sheriff and adjusted the noose about her neck, afterwards keeping the rope. He had it in possession until he moved to his Fourth street home when a truckman used it to tie up some furniture and it got lost in the shuffle.

The funeral will be held at his late home on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

YANKEE SCHOOLMASTER, ERASTUS E. POTTER, DEAD.

Known Throughout the State for Years as Stump Speaker and Politician.

Erastus E. Potter, known throughout the State as the "Yankee schoolmaster," died yesterday at his home in Wharton. He celebrated the thirty-fifth anniversary of his service as principal of the public schools at Wharton on Friday. He was sixty-six years old.

Mr. Potter was long active in politics, and was an accomplished speaker. He was a pronounced radical. He was a candidate for United States Senator in 1898, opposing "Jim" Smith.

He was born in East Killingly, Windham county, Conn., on August 10, 1840. He worked in a cotton mill for a time, and then went to public school and later to Westfield Academy and the Lapham Institute, at North Scituate, R. I. On leaving there he took up teaching, continuing until August 9, 1862, when he enlisted in Company K, 18th Connecticut Volunteers, serving throughout the war. At Winchester, Pa., on June 15, 1863, he was captured and spent some time in Libby Prison and Belle Isle.

He resumed teaching at the close of the war, going to East Killingly, Conn., and remaining there until he came to New Jersey, in 1870. He took charge of the school at Green Village, Morris county. The next year he went to Port Oram, now Wharton, where he had since been. A wife and four children survive him.

MASONS-LATHERS DISPUTE

Question as to What Trade Shall Handle New Material.

STRIKE TALK IS HEARD

Lathers Are Said to Be Ready to Go Out If Masons Set Expanded Metal In Anderson Building.

The question as to whether masons or lathers shall put up expanded metal now being used in the construction of buildings by the Consolidated Engineering Company, of America, a peculiar construction material of its own invention, has raised a fine point and all the mechanics now engaged in construction work in Plainfield and vicinity are likely to be called out on a strike. The Masons' Union met Wednesday night and decided that masons should do this work pending an investigation.

The question was raised in the construction of Dr. A. W. Anderson's building on Watchung avenue, near Front street. The Consolidation Engineering Company of America, which is represented here by Thad. Doane, Jr., of Park avenue, is superintending the construction of Dr. Anderson's building and the expanded metal is being used. Titus H. Laury, of East Front street, has the contract for the cement work, and the Penn Iron Company, of Philadelphia, the contract for the steel work.

Mr. Laury maintains that his men should put up the expanded metal. These men as well as the lathers receive $4.50 per day. The matter, as stated, was presented at a meeting of the Masons' Union, Wednesday night, and the other members agreed with Mr. Laury, believing that it is the work of the masons.

On the other hand the Lathers' Union maintain that the work should be done by lathers and rather than concede the point stand ready to quit the job and take the men off of all other work in Plainfield and vicinity.

Mr. Laury, in an interview with a reporter for The Daily Press, stated today that his work would not stop; that the Masons' Union had informed him that it considered the putting up of expanded metal a part of its branch of the trade and he proposed to continue his work until he received instructions to the contrary.

A meeting of the Board of Arbitration, comprising bosses who represent all branches of the trade in the city, was held last night to consider the dispute. Mr. Laury was not present, as was expected, and little could be done. Now the board will make an investigation for itself and report within a day or two.

William C. Smith, a member of the board, in speaking about the matter today, said that if the work referred to is re-inforced concrete or cement it would clearly come within the jurisdiction of the masons, but if not, it would be work to which the lathers are entitled. This appears to be the question to be settled. Mr. Smith said that until a full investigation is made no action will be taken one way or the other.

Miss Sophie Barlow Engaged.

Miss Sophie Barlow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Barlow, of Prospect place, gave a charming tea this afternoon in honor of Miss Katherine Hartshorne, of Freehold, who is her guest. At the social function was also announced the engagement of Miss Barlow to Edward H. Hobbie, son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hobbie, of Watchung avenue. There were sixty young people at the tea, most of whom were from the city and borough.

He was afterward taken to his home.

M. E. BISHOP ACCEPTS PRIEST'S CHALLENGE; CLAIMS THE $100 HE OFFERED FOR CHARITY

Dr. Neely Presents His Argument Through the Daily Press to Prove His Aspersions on Roman Catholic Teaching.

REPLY TO FR. BOGAN

Quotes Documents to Prove His Assertion That Church Teaches Wicked Man Can Buy His Way Through Purgatory.

Bishop Thomas B. Neely, Methodist Episcopal bishop of Buenos Ayres, South America, whose assertion that the Catholic church "teaches that a man can be wicked all his life and then be prayed out of purgatory for a small sum" brought forth an immediate offer from Father B. M. Bogan, the rector of St. Mary's church, to pay $100 to Muhlenberg Hospital provided the Methodist prelate would produce proper documentary evidence to prove his statement, presents his case through The Daily Press today. In concluding his argument, the bishop asks that the $100 be paid over by the priest to the charity he named.

The Daily Press received the following message todoy from Bishop Neely:

"In regard to Father Bogan's attack, permit me to say that I never attack the people called Roman Catholics, but as a Protestant I cannot agree with the errors of Romanism.

"Father Bogan criticises a remark attributed to me and offers one hundred dollars to the Muhlenberg Hospital if an accredited document can be found that teaches any such thing in relation to the doctrine of purgatory. I have not had time to read the report of my discourse, and write this in haste as I am traveling from point to point. However, we note that it is the common understanding among Roman Catholics (first) that human sinners go into purgatory, (second) that masses are said for their deliverance, (third) that money is paid to have masses said, (fourth) that it is asserted that these masses which are paid for with the money of this world help the souls in purgatory in the other world. This is the common understanding which presumably is based upon some supposed authority. But for Father Bogan's allusion to the common practice and the common understanding is not enough. It must be citation from a document and that must be authoritative. Does he mean that nothing but the original document hidden away in the Vatican at Rome will satisfy him?

"But beyond this common understanding which comes from the teaching and practice within the Roman church there is documentary evidence. There are authoritative documents which the Roman church has recognized and continues to recognize. We cite a few from among many:

"The Douay Catechism contains the following:

"Q. Whither go such as die in venial sin, or not having fully satisfied for the punishment due to their mortal sins? A. To purgatory, till they have made full satisfaction for them, and then to Heaven.'

"The Council of Trent, an authoritative Roman Catholic Council, said: 'The Catholic church, instructed by the Holy Spirit from the sacred writings and the ancient tradition of the fathers, hath taught in holy councils, and lastly in this ecumenical council, that there is a purgatory.'

It further says 'that the souls detained there are assisted by the suffrages of the faithful, but especially by the acceptable sacrifice of the mass.'

"The Council of Trent further declared:

"'If any one shall affirm that the sacrifice of the mass is only a service of praise and thanksgiving, or a bare commemoration of the sacrifice made on the cross, and not a propitiatory offering, or that it only benefits him who receives it, and ought not to be offered for the living and the dead, for sins, punishments, satisfactions, and other necessities; let him be accursed.'

"The Council of Trent was an authoritative council and its decisions are documentary proof that such ideas as the masses for dead sinners are taught by Roman Catholicism.

YOUNG WOMEN GIVE A SUPPER FOR MISSIONS

TRINITY BAND'S MENU PATRONIZED BY UNUSUALLY LARGE CROWD.

The members of the Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church, in arranging a supper for the cause of foreign and home missions, were well rewarded, last night, the affair being liberally patronized. The lecture room of the church, where the supper was served, presented a holiday appearance in its attractive decorations of red and green, arranged with crepe paper. The paper was used in profusion and with striking effect. In addition there was a booth in the center of the room, of the red and green colors, where fancy and useful articles and candy were sold. This booth was the clever work of William Olmsted. There was also a cake table, prettily decorated. In the main room were a number of tables where supper was served. These were garnished with effective decorations. The menu was an exceptionally good one and generous portions were served. This was the menu: Boullion, croquets, cream potatoes, chicken salad, cold slaw, pie, coffee.

An extra attraction and one that helped to make the evening one of great pleasure to all was the excellent programme of music rendered by Charles Suhr's orchestra. The musicians were very generous and played frequently during the hours of the supper from 6 to 9 o'clock.

Miss Lillian A. Force, the president of the Band, and an efficient committee of which Mrs. F. S. Cutter was the chairman, had supervision of the affair. The members of the kitchen committee consisted of Mrs. Leonard Smith, Mrs. Corra Ryno, Miss Mabel Wilson, Mrs. Peter B. Hodge and Mrs. Harry F. Crawford.

Those in charge of the fancy and candy booth were Mrs. William Olmsted, Mrs. Theodore Mantz, Miss Achsa Holmes. Miss Cora Lairé and Miss Cora Miller had charge of the cake table.

The women presiding at the supper tables were Mrs. George Mantz, Mrs. F. S. Cutter, Mrs. Anna Leggett, Mrs. H. C. VanEmburgh, Mrs. William Alleger, Mrs. H. W. Marshall, and they were ably assisted by these waitresses: Miss Margaret Leggett, Miss Helen Smith, Miss Cora Gano, Miss Alice Vroom, Miss Mamie Davenport, Miss Lyda Wyman, Miss Hazel Martin, Miss Jessie Hockridge, Miss Edna Cole, Miss Ida VanArsdale, Miss Rose Kling, Miss Marie Kling, Miss Edna Dilts and Miss Anna Bodine.

The attractive menu cards were the artistic work of Miss Elizabeth Randall and were much admired. The patronage was greater than anticipated and before the supper hour was over everything was sold out. The committee regretted that it was unable to serve a complete supper to those coming late, but had to content themselves with doing the best possible under the circumstances. Over 200 suppers were served.

AUTO ACCIDENT AGAIN.

W. E. Lowe Corrects the Statement by A. H. Chamberlain.

W. E. Lowe denies A. H. Chamberlain's statement, that he, Mr. Lowe, blamed his coachman for carelessness in connection with the crash between Mr. Chamberlain's auto and the Lowe carriage Thanksgiving Day.

"My coachman at the time of the accident was going from home and had reached the corner of Ninth street," says Mr. Lowe in a statement. "After the accident he turned about, got out, examined the damage, picked up Chamberlain's lamp, (which in his hurry to get away he left behind him) and instead of going on his way returned home. I have never though that any blame was to be attached to my coachman. When Mr. Chamberlain called on me I told him that if he signaled, the coachman did not hear it. Nether did four persons in the immediate vicinity who saw the accident hear the signal. At the same time Mr. Chamberlain stated that there was a signal, and I told him that I would let it rest there, and that I had no complaint to make. The coachman certainly was not to blame if he did not hear the signal which Mr. Chamberlain says he gave."

Mary Cahill Pinched.

Mrs. Mary Cahill was arrested this morning, to save her from a futile struggle with legs tangled by too much of the crather. Mrs. Cahill is known to the police of old.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

"Gus" Sheelen's high score of 299, made on the Suburban Club's bowling alleys Saturday night, will probably remain the high water mark for the club's alleys for some time. Gus has been one of the strongest of the club's bowling team for several years and can generally be counted upon a 200 or better score in a game. He and Joe Alberts are in the two-men tournament on McLaughlin's alleys. Joe is another of the club's standbys and the two will no doubt be heard from before the tournament is finished.

Anderson, of Jersey City, will conduct the services.

This will be the main office of the Plainfield Water Company, to which the Union Water Company recently sold out. The office of the Union Water Company in Elizabeth being closed.

The Westfield Board of Education has ordered a stereopticon machine to be used in the educational work of the High School.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Many farmers in this vicinity have been obliged to give up farming, not being able to secure help. The help stay one month until they get their wages, and then skip for parts unknown. One farmer living near here rang the breakfast bell several times and received no response, and upon going to the barn found the horses unfed and the cows not milked, the farm hand having been paid off the night before and left during the night.

There is quite a number of bad boys in South Plainfield and Saturday night's hold-up by Jesse Terrell is not the first time he has gotten into difficulty. If these half grown boys wont work they should be placed in some reformatory where a trade will be taught them.

Congress Labor Victory.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—After a bitter all-day fight over the Littlefield bill designed to relieve coastwise sailing vessels of the necessity of employing pilots in Southern waters from Norfolk to Galveston, in which the entire House organization, from Speaker Cannon down, was ranged on one side and the influence of the Pilots' Association and Samuel Gompers and the American Federation of Labor on the other, the Speaker went down in defeat yesterday by the overwhelming vote of 164 to 110. It was a remarkable victory of the labor interests and a stinging defeat for Speaker Cannon and Representatives Littlefield, of Maine; Payne, of New York; Dalzell, of Pennsylvania; Grosvenor, of Ohio, and Watson, of Indiana. Its effect on pending labor legislation will be marked.

Say "Terrible Terry" Improves.

New York, Dec. 7.—"Terry" McGovern, who since Tuesday has been an inmate of the observation ward in the Kings County Hospital, was reported to be slightly improved yesterday. The physicians in charge encouraged his wife and relatives with the report that they believe McGovern will improve steadily under treatment and that it may not be necessary to have him committed to an insane asylum. Several violent outbreaks by McGovern have caused the attendants at the Kings County Hospital to keep an unusually close watch on him.

Indicted As Slaveholder.

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 7.—A surprise was sprung in the United States Court yesterday when the Grand Jury brought in an indictment against F. J. O'Hara, for carrying a white man away from Jacksonville with intent to hold him as a slave. Under this indictment the government has only to prove that the man was held for debt. The Grand Jury also brought in four indictments against O'Hara charging peonage and one for conspiring with other persons to hold a man in slavery.

Plainfield, N. J., December 7, 1906.

As the day for the opening of the Legislature draws nearer and nearer, the organs of the "machine" in Trenton, Newark and Jersey City must possess a growing suspicion that the Senator and Assemblymen of Union county are not builded on the lines which characterize a great many of their colleagues. That this county's legislators would be "whipped into line" for John F. Dryden, they apparently took for granted when the "rebellion" started. They are getting to be a little wiser now and have apparently given up all hope of converting Messrs. Ackerman, Perkins and Tillman to the belief that Mr. Dryden is "the logical candidate."

To the end that they may be equipped for service in the State and Federal halls of legislation, the New Jersey State Grange has decided to have the young farmers throughout the State taught practical politics and political economy. Why not make "Farmer Jim" Martine the schoolmaster?

The Elizabeth Journal must certainly believe that the jackass is the true symbol of the Democratic party when it argues that Hearst would make a better run than Wilson as its candidate for the Presidency in 1908.

Will Congress put a lemon in the President's Christmas stocking?

ACCEPTS PRIEST'S CHALLENGE

"Then the Creed of Pope Pius IV contains this:

"'I constantly hold that there is a purgatory, and that the souls therein detained are helped for the suffrages of the faithful.'"

"The Council of Trent shows that the chief of these suffrages is 'the sacrifice of the mass' and that the souls detained in purgatory are assisted by the acceptable sacrifice of the mass.'

"It is well known that masses can be secured for the dead upon payment of money and that they have been secured many a time as every Roman Catholic knows.

"The Council of Trent said:

"'Let the bishops take care that the suffrages of the living faithful, viz., masses, prayers, alms, and other works of piety, which the faithful have been accustomed to perform for departed believers, be piously and religiously rendered, according to the institutes of the church; and whatever services are due to the dead, through the endowments of deceased persons, or in any other way, let them not be performed slightly, but diligently and carefully, by the priests and ministers of the church, and all others to whom the duty belongs.'

"This recognizes the saying of masses for the dead and other service by the living for the dead 'through the endowments of deceased persons,' as well as in other ways.

"That is to say the man before his decease can by his endowments purchase the right to these masses and other services, which he is taught will help him after he is dead. He may die a sinner but leave his money to help him in and out of purgatory, and the living can give their money on the supposition or assertion that the masses or other services will help their dead friends who are in purgatory. The teaching is that a sinner's money can secure for him when he is dead what will help his soul after death, or the money of his friends will thus help his soul. As the Roman Catholic Dens said: 'Suffrages infallibly profit the souls for which they are made.' So a man may go on sinning imagining that he thus can be saved after death. This is not calculated to keep him from sinning, and, it may be asked, whether it does not give the rich man an unfair advantage over the poor man, for the rich can pay for a greater number of masses and other services. So the rich man may be taught that his legacy will be instrumental in saving his soul.

"This is in contrast with New Testament salvation through faith in Christ—a salvation that is 'without money and without price.'

"All this is a shrewd invention calculated to increase the revenues of the Roman church.

"Even for the poor people Purgatorian Societies have been instituted, so that the members 'wishing to contribute to the relief of the suffering souls in purgatory shall pay one penny per week, which shall be appropriated to the procuring of masses to be offered up for the repose of the souls of the deceased parents, relations, and friends, of all the subscribers to the institution in particular, and the faithful departed in general' and the subscribers themselves after their decease were to receive similar benefits and thus they would be prayed through after they had died.

"The preamble to the Constitution of such a Purgatorian Society, recites that the object of the organization is to relieve the suffering souls in purgatory' and the 'shortening the duration of their sufferings by the most easy means imaginable,' that is to say by paying their money into the coffers of the church, which is practically buying salvation. So a man can go on in life sustained by the notion that masses which have been paid for will shorten the duration of his sufferings. Surely these are 'the most easy means imaginable.'

"How different are the simple means set forth in the New Testament: 'Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved,' and, 'By him, all that believe are justified from all things.'

"The 'easy means' which have been invented by men are not the Gospel means.

"We have cited a few of the documents. Did time permit much more proof could be presented. This, however, is sufficient to show what Romanism does teach as declared.

"Father Bogan should pass over his $100 to the hospital, where it will at least do the living good even if it does not help souls out of purgatory."

MARTINE GIVES BANQUET

time, from words, cheers and manner, there was no mistaking the regard that "Jim" Martine and the newspapermen of the Fifth Congressional District and Newark have for each other.

The guests who responded to Mr. Martine's invitation and attended the dinner were as follows: Charles C. McBride, State Editor A. L. Dunphy, Assistant State Editor Harry Hughes, Telegraph Editor Frank Higgins, Joseph Gunn and George E. Firstbrook, Newark Evening News; Alfred A. Zimmerman, New York World; Editor J. Madison Drake, Jr., Elizabeth Sunday Leader; Alfred A. Foote, Elizabeth Daily Journal; Editor Charles G. Adams, Morristown Express; Editor Alfred Lane, Summit Herald; Editor J. W. Clift, Summit Record; Michael F. Gannon, free lance, Elizabeth; James McMasters, free lance, Elizabeth; Editor J. Alfred Potter, Cranford Chronicle; Editor E. R. Collins, Westfield Farm Journal; Editor Henry J. Talford, Plainfield Evening Star; Business Manager Charles H. Frost, Editor W. W. St. John, Harry Knowles, John Gaffney, William Lambert, William Morrison, Chauncey F. Stout and John Nichol, Plainfield Courier-News; City Editor Ralph L. Morrow, Thomas M. Muir, Walter C. Dobbins, Archibald Hacquer, Corra Ryno, William R. Buckley and Edward C. Searing, Plainfield Daily Press; David J. Carney, free lance, Plainfield.

Messages were received by one of the newspaper workers from William Jennings Bryan and other Democratic leaders praising Martine for his services to the party. Some of these letters follow:

From William Jennings Bryan, twice Democratic candidate for President of the United States:

"I take great pleasure in sending a message of congratulation to Mr. Martine. He has for the past ten years been a loyal political supporter of Democratic principles—that long to my personal knowledge—and I rejoice in the splendid race he recently made for Congress.

"To come so near winning against such great odds was really to achieve a victory.

"Please present my compliments as well as my congratulations and say that I trust he may live to share in the political triumph to which he is so earnestly and ably contributing." W. J. BRYAN.

From Charles C. Black, former Democratic candidate for Governor:

"Mr. Martine is one of the most lovable and attractive characters personally that I have ever met; courteous, warm-hearted, generous and magnetic; the more you know of him the more you are attracted to him.

"I would heardly add a word as to his attractiveness as a public speaker, because that is known by that wide circle of friends who have heard him and followed him on public questions. It is the personal character and worth, of the attractiveness, generous and warm-hearted nature that I wish to add my tribute as a friend to James E. Martine." CHARLES C. BLACK.

From Congressman William Sulzer, an ex-newspaper worker:

"I am sorry I a mnot in my old job as correspondent to the Elizabeth Daily Journal so that I could be present, eat a good dinner, make a speech—a speech from my heart—telling just what I think of Brother Martine. But alas, I left dear old Union county in my early youth and became a lawyer in the city of New York, and finally drifted into Congress, where I am liable to remain for a long time to come, if I do not resign, or die, or get the bosses of New York to give me a chance to run for Governor.

"I have known James E. Martine for many years and can testify, of my own personal knowledge, to his sterling qualities as a man and as a citizen. He is loved and respected by all who know him and his name is a household word throughout the State which is honored by his citizenship. He is honest, erudite, eloquent, sun-shiney, optomistic, philosophical and a Democrat of the old school, who stands like a giant oak in the forest of fears and doubts withstanding the tempest and the storm. In the language of dear old Rip Van Winkle, made memorable by the pen of Washington Irving and the inimitable acting of Joseph Jefferson: 'Here's to James E. Martine, one of God's noblemen, may his shadow never grow less.' Rise, boys, rise, and drink to the toast, and remember that, if I am not with you in the flesh I am with you in spirit." WILLIAM SULZER.

From former United States Senator James Smith, Jr.:

"In common with all Democrats I feel under obligation to Mr. Martine for his long unselfish and always zealous and effective service to the cause of Democracy. He has labored in all seasons and under all conditions, and undaunted by defeat, and ever with his eyes fixed upon the time, sure to come, when sanity should reassert its compelling power to carry the State and Nation back to the old Democratic moorings and make the people truly the sovereign. His example of sterling Democratic manhood is an inspiration for the young voter. In his recent campaign in the Fifth Congressional District, as the Democratic candidate, he was confronted by a majority of more than 5,000 to overcome. His resources were limited but he reduced that majority to a fraction, and if he had been as well provided with the legitimate means for election as his opponent was he would have won handsomely. I regard Mr. Martine's defeat in his district as a moral victory. It was certainly a great tribute to him as a Democrat and as a citizen. * * * And two years hence, if the veteran Martine shall then accept the Congress nomination in his district, his election will be a question only of majority. * * * I express only the sentiment of all true Democrats when I say, 'May his shadow never grow less,' and 'May he live long and prosper.'" JAMES SMITH, JR.

From Congressman John Sharp Williams, minority leader in the House of Representatives:

"In all my rounds over the greater part of the United States, while engaged in the task and pleasure of preaching Democratic gospel, of the sound and fundamental sort, no dearer recollection of any more attractive and stalwart Democrat remains in my mind than that of James E. Martine. He is one of those men with whom the fundamental, underlying idea of American Democracy, to wit: 'Equal opportunities for all, and special privileges for none, equal governmental burdens for all, and special discriminations against none'—is a working-day religion.

"For forty years the old warhorse, Martine, has been talking Democratic principles and aidin Democratic candidates, expending time, nerve power and fortune in devotion to the greatest of all earthly causes. May God speed him to the goal of success, when he may add to the Scriptural words—'I have kept the faith and fought a good fight'—the consolatory sentence, 'I have won the fight.'" JOHN SHARP WILLIAMS.

From George B. McClellan, LL.D., Mayor of New York:

"I am very glad to join with the many other friends of Mr. Martine in hearty congratulations on his notable achievement of November 6. It was one of the many things which have marked his service to the party to which we both have the honor to belong." GEO. B. McCLELLAN.

From former United States Senator Rufus Blodgett:

"Mr. Martine's career as a Democrat in this State has been familiar to me for many years. He is the kind of a man that the people like to vote for.

"When the dark days of the Democratic party have passed, as they undoubtedly will, I shall hope that Mr. Martine may again be called upon to serve the people as a candidate—this time for the office of Chief Executive of this State. When that time comes, if in the land of the living, I shall certainly be enrolled as one of his ardent supporters." R. BLODGETT.

From Charles Joel Fisk, Mayor-elect (candidate of both parties) and once opponent of Mr. Martine for the Mayoralty.

"A big-hearted whole-souled good fellow." CHARLES J. FISK.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The ablest exponent today of all that pertains to moving pictures is Lyman H. Howe. His name stands for all that is progressive, original, legitimate, successful. His Lifeorama possesses a certain beauty, charm and originality that is all its own. Like every successful institution, scores of imitators have striven in vain to present its equal, but all have signally failed in imitating that subtlety, atmosphere and high tone that characterizes Lyman H. Howe's Lifeorama to be seen at the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

The part of Father Daley in "The Matchmaker," the successful comedy in which Daniel Sully comes to the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night under the auspices of Watchung Council, K. of C., fits him perfectly. To praise his "acting" of the past would be to do his impersonation injustice by giving a wrong impression to many minds. He "lives" the part, "realizes" it; he "is" rather than "acts" Father Daley, and he holds his audience in the hollow of his hand to do with as he pleases; making old and young relish the same thrills, he convulses them with laughter one minute and forces them to surrender sympathetic tears the next, and last in admiration they are, one and all, carried on through the entire gamut of human emotion.

Another Charles Klein success is announced for the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night. "The Time of Your Life," a musical topical farce on the hypnotic craze and other fashionable fads and fancies written expressly for George W. Monroe by the author of "The Lion and the Mouse" and "The Music Master," is Manager Counihan's latest announcement.

Among the pleasing things that have been printed by the press about the new comedy-drama this season is the following: "Thorns and Orange Blossoms," the exceptionally clever dramatization of Bertha M. Clay's novel, by Lem Parker, appeals to all the people in any community and elsewhere. It will have the indorsement of those who rarely go to the theatre, and as such it deserves to live." The above is one of the many favorite expressions that have been tendered the Rowland & Clifford production of "Thorns and Orange Blossoms," which will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday, matinee and night.

There have been plays that have made use of an automobile before, but they were not of the genuine motor breed, which is to be witnessed in the great automobile racing play, "The Governor's Pardon," which will be offered at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night. There have been effects that purported to show an automobile traveling at a high rate of speed, but none that exhibited the actual machines, and high-powered racing cars at that, moving at a breath-taking speed across a stage. All this and many more startling effects go to make up one of the best dramas which has been presented in some time.

BOWLING.

Evidently afflicted with "bad eye-itis" and also paralysis in the arm, the clerks bowling team from the local post office were left at the post in their match with the carriers, last night, rolled at McLaughlin's. The men in grey were not in such exceptional form either, but they took all three games in the series. Mack, for the carriers, and Squier, for the clerks, were the stars individually, handing in some good figures. "Bob" Loughlin and A. E. LaPorte got a bad dose of stage fright and pulled up at the small end in all three games. The scores:

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

BY HARRY LEON WILSON, AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1905 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

"Ay, laddie, that I am! Strong as an ox! The very thought of being free out of this Babylon has exalted me in spirit and body. Think of it, boy! Soon we shall be even beyond the limits of the United States—in a foreign land out there to the west, where these bloodthirsty ones can no longer reach us. Thank God they're like all snakes—they can't jump beyond their own length!"

He leaned out of the wagon to shake a bloodless, trembling fist toward the temple where the soldiers had made their barracks.

"Now let great and grievous judgments, desolations, by famine, sword, and pestilence come upon you, generation of vipers!"

He cracked the whip, the horses took their load at his cheery call, and as the wagon rolled away they heard him singing:

Lo, the Gentile chain is broken!
Freedom's banner waves on high!

They watched him until the wagon swung around into the street that fell away to the ferry. Then they faced each other, and he stepped to her side as she leaned lightly on the gate.

"Prue, dear," he said, softly, "it's going hard with me. God must indeed have a great work reserved for me to try me with such a sacrifice—so much pain where I could least endure it. I prayed all the night to be kept firm, for there are two ways open—one right and one wrong; but I cannot sell my soul so early. That's why I wanted to say the last good-by out here. I was afraid to say it in there—I am so weak for you, Prue—I ache so for you in all this trouble—why, if I could feel your hands in my hair, I'd laugh at it all—I'm so weak for you, dearest."

She tossed her yellow head ever so slightly, and turned the scoop of her bonnet a little away from his pain-lighted face.

"I am not complimented, though—you care more for your religion than for me."

He looked at her hungrily.

"No, you are wrong there—I don't separate you at all—I couldn't—you and my religion are one—but, if I must, I can love you in spirit as I worship my God in spirit—"

"If it will satisfy you, very well!"

"My reward will come—I shall do a great work, I shall have a Witness from the sky. Who am I that I should have thought to win a crown without taking up a cross?"

"I am sorry for you."

"Oh, Prue, there must be a way to save the souls of such as you, even in their blindness. Would God make a flower like you, only to let it be lost? There must be a way. I shall pray until I force it from the secret heavens."

"My soul will be very well, sir!" she retorted, with a distinct trace of asperity. "I am not a heathen, I'd thank you to remember—and when I'm a wife I shall be my husband's wife—"

He winced in acutest pain.

"You have no right to taunt me so. Else you can't know what you have meant to me. Oh, you were all the world, child—you, of your own dear self—you would have been all the wives in the world to me—there are many, many of you, and all in a heavenly one—"

"Oh, forgive me, dearest," she cried, and put out a little gloved hand to comfort him. "I know, I know—all the sweetness and goodness of your love, believe me. See, I have kept always by me the little Bible you gave me on my birthday—I have treasured it, and I know it has made me a better girl, because it makes me always think of your goodness—but I couldn't have gone—and that marrying is so odious—"

"You shall see how little you had to fear of that doctrine which God has seen fit to reveal to these good men. I tell you now, Prue, I shall wed no woman but you. Nor am I giving you up. Don't think it. I am doing my duty and trusting God to bring you to me. I know He will do it—I tell you there is the spirit of some strange, awful strength in me, which tells me to ask what I will and it shall be given—to seek to do anything, how great or hard soever, and a giant's, a god's strength will rest in me. And so I know you will come. You will always think of me so—waiting for you—somehow, somewhere. Every day you must think it, at any idle moment when I come to your mind; every night when you waken in the dark and silence, you must think: 'Wherever he is, he is waiting for me, perhaps awake as I am now, praying, with a power that will surely draw me.' You will come somehow. Perhaps, when I reach winter quarters, you will have changed your mind. One never knows how God may fashion these little providences. But He will bring you safe to me out of that Gentile perdition. Remember, child, God has set His hand in these last days to save the human family from the ruins of the fall, and some way, He alone knows how, you will come to me and find me waiting."

"As if you needed to wait for me when I am here now ready for you, willing to be taken!"

"Don't, don't, Prue! There are two of me now, and one can't stand the pain. There is a man in me, sworn to do a man's work like a man, and duty to God and the priesthood has big chains around his heart dragging it across the river. But, low, now—there is a little, forlorn boy in me, too—a poor, crying, whimpering, babyish little boy, who dreamed of you and longed for you and was promised you, and who will never get well of losing you. Oh, I know it well enough—his tears will never dry, his heart will always have a big hurt in it—and your face will always be so fresh and clear in it!"

He put his hands on her shoulders and looked down into the face under the bonnet.

"Let me make sure I shall lose no look of you, from little tilted chin, and lips of scarlet thread, and little teeth like grains of rice, and eyes into which I used to wander and wonder so far—"

She looked past him and stepped back.

"Capt. Girnway is coming for me—yonder, away down the street. He takes me to Carthage."

His face hardened as he looked over his shoulder.

"I shall never wed any woman but you. Can you feel as deeply as that? Will you wed no man but me?"

She fluttered the cherry ribbons on the bonnet and fixed a stray curl in front of one ear.

"Have you a right to ask that? I might wait a time for you to come back—to your senses and to me, but—!"

"Good-by, darling!"

"What, will you go that way—not kiss me? He is still two blocks away."

"I am so weak for you, sweet—the little boy in me is crying for you, but he must not have what he wants. What he wants would leave his heart rebellious and not perfect with the Lord. It's best not," he continued, with an effort at a smile and in a steadier tone. "It would mean so much to me—oh, so very much to me—and so very little to you—and that's no real kiss. I'd rather remember none of that kind—and don't think I was churlish—it's only because the little boy—I will go after my father now, and God bless you!"

He turned away. A few paces on he met Capt. Girnway, jaunty, debonair, smiling, handsome in his brass-buttoned uniform of the Carthage Grays.

"I have just left the ferry, Mr. Rae. The wagon with your mother has gone over. The other had not yet come down. Some of the men appear to be a little rough this morning. Your people are apt to provoke them by being too outspoken, but I left special orders for the good treatment of yourself and outfit."

With a half-smothered "thank you," he passed on, not trusting himself to say more to one who was not only the enemy of his people, but bent, seemingly, on deluding a young woman to the loss of her soul. He heard their voices in cheerful greeting; but did not turn back. With eyes to the front and shoulders squared he kept stiffly on his way through the silent, deserted streets to the ferry.

Fifteen minutes' walk brought him to the now busy waterside. The ferry, a flat boat propelled by long oars, was landing when he came into view, and he saw his father's wagon driven on. He sped down the hill, pushed through the crowd of soldiers standing about, and hurried forward on the boat to let the old man know he had come. But on the seat was another than his father. He recognized the man, and called to him.

"What are you doing there, Brother Keaton? Where's my father?"

The man had shrunk back under the wagon-cover, having seemingly been frightened by the soldiers.

"I've taken your father's place, Brother Rae."

"Did he cross with Brother Wright?"

"Yes—he—" The man hesitated. Then came an interruption from the shore.

"Come, clear the gangway there so we can load! Here are some more of the damned rats we've hunted out of their holes!"

The speaker made a half-playful lunge with his bayonet at a gaunt, yellow-faced specter of a man who staggered on to the boat with a child in his arms wrapped in a tattered blue quilt. A gust of the chilly wind picked his shapeless, loose-fitting hat off as he leaned to avoid the bayonet-point, and his head was seen to be shaven. The crowd on the bank laughed loud at his clumsiness and at his grotesque head. Joel Rae ran to help him forward on the boat.

"Thank you, brother—I'm just up from the fever-bed—they shaved my head for it—and so I lost my hat—thank you—here we shall be warm if only the sun comes out."

Joel went back to help on others who came, a feeble, bedragged dozen or so that had clung despairingly to their only shelter until they were driven out.

"You can stay here in safety, you know, if you renounce Joseph Smith and his works—they will give you food and shelter." He repeated it to each little group of the disparited wretches as they staggered past him, but they replied staunchly by word or look, and one man, in the throes of a chill, swung his cap and uttered a feeble "Hurrah for the new Zion!"

When they were all on with their meager belongings, he called again to the man in the wagon.

"Brother Keaton, my father went across, did he?"

Several of the men on shore answered him.

"Yes" — "Old white-whiskered death's-head went over the river"—"Over here"—"A sassy old codger he was"—"He got his needings, too"—"Got his needings—"

They cast off the line and the oars began to dip.

The confusion of landing and the preparations for an immediate start drove for the time all other thoughts from his mind. It had been determined to get the little band at once out of the marshy spot where the camp had been made. The teams were soon hitched, the wagons loaded, and the train ready to move. He surveyed it, a hundred poor wagons, many of them without cover, loaded to the full with such nondescript belongings as a house-dwelling people, suddenly put out on the open road, would hurriedly snatch as they fled. And the people made his heart ache, even to the deadening of his own sorrow, as he noted their wobegoneness. For these were the sick, the infirm, the poor, the inefficient, who had been unable for one reason or another to migrate with the main body of the Saints earlier in the season. Many of them were now racked by fever from sleeping on the damp ground. These bade fair not to outlast some of the lumbering carts that threatened at every rough spot to jolt apart.

Yet the line bravely formed to the order to Seth Wright as captain, and the march began. Looking back, he saw peaceful Nauvoo, its houses and gardens, softened by the cloudy sky and the autumn haze, clustering under the shelter of their temple spire—their temple and their houses, of which they were now despoiled by a mob's fury. Ahead he saw the road to the west, a hard road, as he knew—one he could not hope they should cross without leaving more graves by the way; but Zion was at the end.

"Only a short march to-day, brothers. Our camp is at Sugar Creek, nine miles—so take your time this first day."

Near the head of the train were his own two wagons, and beside the first walked Seth Wright and Keaton, in low, earnest converse. As he came up to them the bishop spoke.

"I got Wes' and Alec Gregg to drive awhile so we could stretch our legs." But then came a quick change of tone, as they halted by the road.

"Joel, there's no use beatin' about the bush—them devils at the ferry jest now drowned your pa."

He went cold all over. Keaton, looking sympathetic but frightened, spoke next.

"You ought to thank me, Brother Rae, for not telling you on the other side, when you asked me. I know better. Because, why? Because I knew you'd fly off the handle and get yourself killed, and then your ma'd be left all alone, that's why, now—and prob'ly they'd 'a' wound up by dumping the whole passle of us bag and baggage into the stream. And it wa'n't any use, your father bein' dead and gone."

The Bishop took up the burden, slapping him cordially on the back.

"Come, come—hearten up, now! Your pa's been made a martyr—he's beautified his inheritance in Zion—whinin' won't do no good."

He drew himself up with a shrug, as if to throw off an invisible burden, and answered, calmly:

"I'm not whining, Bishop. Perhaps you were right not to tell me over there, Keaton. I'd have made trouble for you all." He smiled painfully in his effort to control himself.

Notice is hereby given, that the partnership lately subsisting between Calvin H. Rugg and Robert L. Kline, of Plainfield, N. NIP IT IN THE BUD.
First Appearance of Dandruff a Forerunner of Future Baldness.
That such is the case has been conclusively proven by scientific research. Prof. Unna, the noted European skin specialist, declares that dandruff is the burrowed-up cuticle of the scalp, caused by parasites destroying the vitality in the hair bulb. The hair becomes lifeless, and, in time, falls out. This can be prevented.
Newbro's Herpicide kills this dandruff germ, and restores the hair to its natural softness and abundancy.
Herpicide is now used by thousands of people—all satisfied that it is the most wonderful hair preparation on the market to-day.
Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

THE LOST DREAMS.

I.

Young,
And dreaming the dreams of glad, twenty-three,
She swung
In the hammock that hung
'Neath the spreading tree.
Sweet in her freedom from marring care
And glad with the grace of her womanhood,
Robed in garments as light as air,
She suffered the zephyrs to kiss her there,
Believing, as they
Who are fortunate may,
That life was good.

II.

High
Above in the branches that lightly swayed
Between the luscious reclining maid
And the azure sky
A wasp's nest hung
With a piercing cry
She rose and flung
Her arms about her in wild dismay,
And the gay,
Glad dreams she had dreamed as she lightly swung
Blew off with the zephrys that wandered by,
As a pitiful groan from her lips was wrung—Stung!
—Chicago Record-Herald.

Knew His Business.

Criticus—I have only one fault to find with this rural scene.

DeAuber—What is that?

Criticus—Why in the name of common sense did you paint those cows blue?

DeAuber—Oh, that's all right. The models I used were from the bluegrass section of Kentucky.—Chicago Daily News.

VICTIMS MADE HIM PAY.

Young Snobleigh—The running expenses of a motor are pretty thick, eh?

Aid Bluffkins—H'm, yes. But nothing to the running over expenses, my boy!

Lullaby.

Magistrate—You are accused of attempting to hold a pedestrian up at two o'clock this morning. What have you to say in your own behalf?

Prisoner—I am not guilty, your honor. I can prove a lullaby.

Magistrate—You mean an alibi?

Prisoner—Well, call it what you like, but my wife will swear that I was walking the floor with the baby at the hour mentioned in the charge. —Chicago Daily News.

Such Is Life.

"After all," remarked the loafer who was holding down an empty box, "there is nothing in a name."

"There isn't in yours, at least," rejoined the grocer.

"What do you mean?" queried the loafer.

"Just what I said," replied the grocer. "Everything you have is in your wife's name."—Chicago Daily News.

But She'd Settled It.

Dottie—Who's that fine-looking young man I saw you with this morning?

Lottie—Isn't he dear? That's the man I'm going to marry.

Dottie—Why, I didn't know you were engaged!

Lottie—Dear me—we're not. I only met him yesterday.—Cleveland Leader.

For Self-Protection.

"Nature gives up her secrets with great reluctance," observed the doctor.

"Well," commented the professor, "if she has any secrets that reflect on the family she'd better lose no time in killing off the whole human race, for we're finding out lots of them these days."—Chicago Tribune.

How He Knew.

"Is your wife having a good time at the seashore?"

"Yes; she's enjoying herself splendidly."

"I suppose her letters are very cheering?"

"No; she doesn't write at all."—Judge.

The Immortal John.

"Now, Harold," asked an Evanston teacher, "can you tell me who signed the Declaration of Independence?"

"Yes, Miss Blankston, John Hancock and a lot of other men but I don't remember their names."—Chisago Record-Herald.

Why He Was Sorry.

Buggins—Have you heard that Bullion, the millionaire, is dead?

Briggs—Yes. I'm awfully sorry.

Buggins—Why, he's no relation of yours, is he?

Briggs—No; that's why I'm sorry.

Large Hearted.

"Do you believe a man can love more than one?"

"I know it. Why, between Friday night and Monday morning I have loved a whole summer resort."—Life.

New Standard.

Employer—What salary do you want?

Office Boy—Enough to place me above de temptation of graft.—N. Y. Sun.

Executing a note for another's debt is held, in Fort Jefferson Improvement company vs. Dupoyster (Ky.), 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 263, to be equivalent to a payment in cash for purposes of subrogation.

WIDOWS.

It has been said "beware of widows." But that is unnecessary. For no man can really help himself.

All the perfect men now dead have married widows, thus forming a continuous contrast to the miserable specimens who still live.

It is generally considered unlucky to meet a widow on a dark piazza by the light of the moon. In many countries to be kissed by a widow means endless trouble.

Widows are frequently accompanied by children whose number is constantly liable to increase. They roam at large over the principal sections, and no man is safe when they are near.

Widows exist in all countries, thus counterbalancing the matrimonial decadence which might otherwise result from timid men. Widows are clinging by temperament, and attach themselves readily to any object that can't help itself.—Life.

LIEUT. CAMPBELL QUITS

Leaves Borough Fire Department Because of Agitation Over Card Playing.

SO COUNCILMAN SAYS

Mayor Smalley Remarks That An Order Made Him "Feel His Oats."

Much to the surprise of nearly everyone present, Lieutenant William Campbell, who has been in the North Plainfield Fire Department since the paid system was inaugurated, tendered his resignation at last night's meeting of the Borough Council. There was no explanation as to his sudden move but the apparent reason came out later and the members voted to accept it. Immediately afterward Mayor Smalley appointed Fred Breem, formerly a driver in the city department, and his choice was ratified by the Council.

When the time came to vote on Lieutenant Campbell's resignation, Councilman Lee, who was formerly chairman of the fire committee, declared that he wanted to put in a good word for him. He stated that Campbell had served the borough faithfully and well, not only in the fire department, but as chief marshal in the police department, which position he held for many years.

"In regard to his action tonight," said Mr. Lee, "I think I know what prompted it. There was a conference in this room early in the week between Mayor Smalley and two members of the fire committee and the subject of playing cards on the first floor of the fire house, a practice that has been prevalent for some time, was discussed. It was the sense of the officials that it should be confined to the second floor and Chief Woolston was instructed to tell Lieutenant Campbell in an easy way. This was probably not done."

At this juncture, Chief Woolston secured permission from the Council to speak and declared that when he spoke to the lieutenant about the card playing he had apparently taken no offense. When he resumed his seat, Mayor Smalley said:

"I want to reiterate what Councilman Lee said about Mr. Campbell's record and also to speak about the card playing. Doing it on the first floor is not in keeping with the dignity of a paid department and it should be confined to the proper room. No offense was meant when instructions were given to this effect. Campbell has been an efficient man but he has always had his own way about the house and this may have had a tendency to make him "feel his oats." I am sorry he tendered his resignation on the spur of the moment but it is up to the Council to act and if I were a member of it I would vote to accept."

Councilman Smith said he had spoken to the lieutenant about the matter and tried to get him to withdraw the resignation but without success. When a vote was called, it was accepted unanimously.

Fred Breem, who will be Campbell's successor as lieutenant and driver, was in the city fire department for eight years. He resigned two years ago to engage in the livery business on East Second street. He afterward retired from the field and recently had been managing a similar business at Passaic. He was examined last week as an applicant for the borough police force and would have been appointed but for the resignation in the fire department. Ambrose Campbell will continue to act as assistant driver.

P. H. S. Debate.

"Resolved, That competition is a bad thing," was the subject of debate at the regular meeting yesterday of the Debating Society of the Plainfield High School. William Lambert and Selo Kahn were the leaders for the affirmative side. One leader on the negative side failed to appear, but Joseph Osgood took the lead alone in a creditable manner. Miss Lock, a member of the faculty, acted as critic, and the question was voted on by the house.

CHAMBER CONCERT AT THE CASINO

SECOND IN SERIES PROVES TO BE A DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR.

At the second in this year's series of McIntyre's chamber concerts at the Casino, it became evident that Mr. McIntyre has succeeded in the remarkably short period of two seasons in bringing together a trio of real charm, vigor and finish. Mr. Culp, who has made his first Plainfield appearance this season, is a violinist who combines the authority and precision so essential in trio and quartet work with a fine suavity of tone. Mr. Dubinsky, the 'cellist, is by this time too well known and too well liked in Plainfield to need special mention. The same may be said of Mr. McIntyre at the piano. The instrumental soloist last evening was Mr. Culp, who played the Sarasate arrangement of Faust airs with exquisite taste and feeling.

The singer at this concert, Miss Edith Rodgers, is a newcomer in Plainfield concerts, but after her performance of last evening there can be little doubt that she will be given opportunity to appear here again. Her voice is a mezzo-soprano of considerable strength and quality, and with a singular flexibility and facility for a voice of such power and color.

Mr. McIntyre himself did not appear as a soloist, confining himself to the piano work in the trios and to the accompaniments.

The programme follows:

Arensky, Trio in D minor, for piano, violin and 'cello, Allegro Moderato, Scherzo, Elegia, Finale; songs, Robert Franz, (a) Stille Sicherheit, (b) Es hat die Rose sich beklagt, (c) Es ist gekommen; Amherst Webber, La Premiere; Vidal, Printemps Nouveau, violin; Sarasate, Faust Fantasie; songs, Somervell, Shepherds Cradle Song; (Old English) When Love is Kind; Mrs. H. A. Beach, The Year's at the Spring; Louis Ganne, Serenade, for piano, violin and 'cello.

TEA AND SALE GIVEN FOR MISSIONARY CAUSE.

Under Auspices of First Baptist Church Young Women's Missionary Society.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church held a tea and sale of candy, cake and kitchen utensils in the primary class room of the church, yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance of members and friends of the church and the society had no trouble in disposing of everything offered for sale. The proceeds will be divided between foreign and home missions in the usual way.

The primary class room was very attractive in its decoration of red and the table from which tea was served was garnished with flowers and candelabra. Mrs. J. Peeke Reynolds and Miss May Shreve poured tea, and their assistants were Miss Elizabeth McGee, Miss Marguerite Serrill, Miss Helen Armstrong and Miss Alice Drake.

Mrs. J. B. Probasco was in charge of the cake table, and she was assisted by Miss Helen Robins, Mrs. Charles Miles and Mrs. Frank Jones. At the candy table Mrs. W. B. Vail was in charge, assisted by Miss Pauline Denton, Miss Carolyn Coombs and Miss Katherine Rocap. The sale of kitchen utensils was in charge of Mrs. Kenneth Robbie and her assistant was Miss Mabelle Cubberly.

New Bank's Safe.

The Dunellen bank will keep its books and funds in a $1,400 Manganese safe. The strong box has been purchased and will be installed as soon as the building is ready to receive it. The safe is divided into two parts; the larger compartments surrounding a core of drawers and boxes are for the storage of books and papers, and are merely fireproof; the core is for the safe-guarding of the money, and is burglar proof.

Voting Machines Costly.

North Plainfield is finding out that voting machines are expensive contrivances to have. At the Council meeting last night, a bill of $17 was received from Robert Trewin for storing and exhibiting the two machines in the borough, $5 being for the latter. This added to the insurance, cartage and other expenses makes voting by them pretty costly.

Annual Meeting of Trust Company.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Plainfield Trust Company for the election of directors for the ensuing year and for the transaction of such other business as may be brought before it, will be held at its banking house, on Park avenue, Tuesday afternoon, January 8, from 3 to 4 o'clock.

Present Your Bills.

All bills against the city must be presented to the city clerk on or before December 12 to insure payment at the next meeting of the Common Council.

MUST COVER ASH LOADS

Police Move Against Nuisance Resulting From Ashmen's Carelessness.

POLICEMEN GET ORDERS

Will Watch For Violations or Ordinance Covering the Wagons, and Act On Every One Detected.

Appreciable lessening in the quantity of dust and dirt that flies about the streets when the wind blows is looked for as the result of an order issued by Chief Kiely regarding the enforcement of the ordinance governing ash wagons. Every ashman, according to the police head, will be compelled to obey the law that calls for a complete covering of the wagon in such wise as to prevent the escape of any of the contents.

The announcement of the ash-covering crusade was made at the hearing of Richard Johnson, colored, driver of an ash-cart, who was arrested yesterday for violating the ordinance. Chief Kiely interrupted Johnson's attempted explanation to say that he had seen the wagon himself and that it was unprotected.

"Few, if any, of the wagons are properly covered," said the chief, "and it is time something was done to bring about a change. As it is now, the average load goes through the streets dropping piles of ashes and dirt allong the roadway, and on a day like yesterday great quantities of dust are blown about. The city hires men to keep the streets clean, and it is not fair, to make no other point, for these ashmen to go up and down the streets dirtying them at every turn of their wheels.

"I have instructed all the officers to watch the ashmen, and every case of ordinance violation will be promptly acted upon. I have had a number of complaints regarding the wagons, and will go after the men good and hard."

"I know that ashmen break the law," said Judge Runyon. "I have seen wagon after wagon very poorly protected.

"The law is explicit on the subject," continued the Judge, "and admits of no half-way measures or makeshifts on the part of the ashmen. It calls for a cover of cloth or wood that will 'entirely prevent' the escape of any part of the loads."

Johnson was released under suspended sentence, but he had to promise to cover his wagon properly.

HIT HIS WIFE.

For Which Kelly Will Spend Sixty Days In Jail.

Mrs. Maggie Kelly met her husband, Nicholas Kelly, a hod carrier, with whom she has not been living for some time, at Watchung avenue and Fifth street, yesterday afternoon. Kelly relieved himself of a few feelings and clipped his wife over the head. Before he could go on with the exercises, T. A. Moore ran across the street from his undertaking office, and wound them up.

Kelly was turned over to the police, and his wife pressed a complaint against him this morning. He got sixty days.

RESPITE FROM RUM.

Mrs. Cahill Has Sixty Days in Which to Dry Out.

Mrs. Catherine Mary Cahill, who was gathered up yesterday morning to enable the alcohol in her to evaporate, was arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning. Catherine saw her fate coming, and started to plead for gentle treatment.

"I know it is a short time since I was here before," she said, "but I swear I won't drink again."

"You won't drink for two months anyway," said Judge Runyon pleasantly, "sixty days."

Junior Banquet to Seniors.

The pupils of the senior and junior classes of the Plainfield High School are planning for the annual Christmas festivities, when the juniors will give a banquet to the seniors. The committee from the juniors consists of Miss Frances Foster, Percy Mygrant, Harold Robins, Miss Esther Crampton and Walter Caldwell.

City Bank Election.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the City National Bank for the election of nine directors to serve for the ensuing year, will be held at its banking house, Park avenue and East Front street, Tuesday afternoon, January 8, from 1 to 2 o'clock.

Rasores Club Meeting.

The Rasores Club will meet on Tuesday morning, December 11, at Truell Court. The subject will be "The Bronzes."

Mrs. W. C. Snodgrass, of Perth Amboy, who has been visiting friends here, has returned home.

LOOKING FOR SUSPECT IN SLONIM ROBBERY

A WESTERN CROOK'S PICTURE IN ROGUE'S GALLERY IDENTIFIED.

The police are looking for Jonah Haas, an Omaha crook, in connection with the robbery of Leo Slonim, the jeweller, Monday night. Haas' picture, in the rogues gallery at police headquarters, was identified yesterday by both Slonim and his wife, as that of the hold-up man.

The identification was positive. Haas' description tallies exactly with that of the crook, who was closely observed by both Slonim and his wife as he stood at the counter during the two hours in which he worked up to his gunplay.

While Chief Kiely has not allowed his hope to run away with him, he is pleasantly tittivated over the identification. It has been his belief all along that the robbery was the work of a western crook, and it might easily have been done by Haas. The police of Omaha and all the cities about here have been asked to help locate the suspect.

Haas was arrested in Omaha in 1900, for a hold-up. He was marked then as a coming thief of dangerous caliber. If he proves to be the criminal and is captured, the police of several cities will co-operate in framing up as big a dose as it is possible to give him.

The identification came as a surprise to Chief Kiely. He had looked in vain for any hint of the crook's identity in the rogues galleries of New York and Newark.

C. M. DOLLIVER TO BE NEXT BOROUGH RECORDER

MAYOR SMALLEY WILL APPOINT HIM AT THE FIRST OF THE YEAR.

Mayor N. B. Smalley announced at the regular monthly meeting of the Borough Council, last night, that Charles M. Dolliver would be the next borough recorder. He stated that it had been his intention to make the appointment this month but that something had interfered and it would be done directly after the first of the year. The office has been filled by the Mayor since last December, when Thomas Doud resigned.

Mr. Dolliver is one of the city's best known young lawyers and is in every way fitted for the position. There have been many applicants for it since the Mayor assumed the duties temporarily but the chief executive was unable to make a selection and he continued to dispense justice. By so doing he has saved the borough $200 for the year as that is the salary that goes with the office at present.

SEVEN-CENT SUPPER.

Served by Women of Monroe Avenue M. E. Church.

Success crowned the seven-cent supper held by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Monroe Avenue Methodist Episcopal church last night. There was a good-sized attendance, and the menu was delightful.

Seven cents was the open sesame to everything of good cheer. The courses were seven cents apiece, and the articles at a sales table were all marked at that figure.

The committee in charge included Mrs. John Gaub, Mrs. Gunzelman, Mrs. John Thompson, Mrs. Wenzel, Mrs. W. B. LaRue, Mrs. Nicholas Brouard, Miss Mary Brower, Miss Charlotte Aldrich and Miss Carrie Brower were in charge of the seven-cent table.

Judge Scolded the Boy.

Andrew Morris, Petwin Robinson, Morris Somerset, Howard Craft, Frank Peterson and Julius Smith, all colored, were arraigned in the city court this morning, charged with stealing fruit from the freight depot. They were released under suspended sentence, after a scolding.

Fair and Sale Netted $325.

The Christmas sale under the auspices of the Plainfield Branch Alliance was concluded at All Souls' church, last night, with a supper, held from 6:30 to 8:30. The profits from the sale will be about $325 and the money will be used for the current expenses of the church.

Chimney Fire at L. E. Waring's.

The city fire department was called out shortly after 6 o'clock last night for a chimney blaze at the home of Lewis E. Waring, Seventh street and Arlington avenue. It was put out with extinguishers before any damage had resulted. The alarm was turned in from box 32.

Engineman to Speak.

William Cary, of Newark, a railroad engineer, will speak at the Grove Street Rescue Mission tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

TENANT LIABLE TO A FINE

Occupant of Premises and Not Landlords Must Remove Snow and Ice.

SO SAYS MR. MARSH

Tenant May Be Fined But Cost of Work Must Be Counted in Taxes Against the Property Owner.

Corporation Counsel Marsh has quoted the law on the duty to remove snow and ice from sidewalks, at the request of the local board of assessors, made through Charles H. Hand.

Mr. Marsh says:

"Answering your inquiries regarding assessments for the cost of removal of snow and ice from sidewalks, I have to say that it is the duty of the tenant or occupant of a dwelling house to remove the snow and ice from the sidewalk, and for failure to perform that duty, he is liable to the penalty provided by the statute and city ordinance. The city, however, has a further remedy to enable it to collect such assessments. The statute provides that the cost of removing the snow and ice, as certified to by the street commissioner, shall be charged upon the books of the city against the lands, abutting upon or bordering the sidewalks, and makes such cost, with interest, a lien on the lands to be added to and to form a part of the taxes next to be assessed on the lands, and to be collected in the same manner as other taxes.

"The Board of Assessors, therefore, has no duty to perform with reference to such assessments."

NO DEVELOPMENTS IN BUILDING TRADE DISPUTE.

Board of Arbitration Will Hold a Conference With T. H. Laury Today.

There are no developments since yesterday in the building trade dispute between the masons and the lathers which threatens to tie up building operations in the city and vicinity. A meeting of the Board of Arbitration has been called for this afternoon, when the matter may be settled. It is expected that Titus H. Laury, who has the mason contract for Dr. A. W. Anderson's new building on Watchung avenue, over which the trouble arose, will be present to tell his side of the story.

It is also likely that a representative from the Consolidated Engineering Company, of America, which is superintending the construction, will be present at the conference. Owing to the extreme cold the workmen engaged on Dr. Anderson's building quit today forenoon.

CHARLES BOICE DEAD.

Dunellenite Succumbs With Little Warning, After Apparent Improvement.

Charles Boice, 57 years old, a bookkeeper, died at his home in Dunellen last night. His death was somewhat sudden.

Mr. Boice had been slightly ill for two days, but the doctor pronounced him improved yesterday and after supper, last night, he told his wife, as he settled back to read the papers, that he felt all right. Just before 9 o'clock he suffered a severe coughing spell and started to sink. He died, in bed, at about 9:10. It is supposed the coughing resulted in the rupture of a blood vessel. He leaves a wife, a daughter, Miss Edith Boice, and a son, Charles Boice.

CHRISTMAS SALE.

Congregational Church Girls Hold a Successful Affair.

The Girls' Mission Club held a Christmas sale yesterday afternoon and evening at the Congregational church. It was well attended, and successful.

Miss Lulu Fuller was in general charge, and the attractions were under the direction of the following committees: Fancy articles, the Misses Edith Bentley, Jessie McIntosh and Ella Jarrett; grab-bag, the Misses Edith Robinson and Lillian Cronkite; cake, the Misses Ethel VanZandt, Laura Baker, Lillian Whiteall; ice cream, the Misses Bessie Miller and Catherine Rocap; candy, the Misses Margie Phillips, Maude Emmons and Myra Emmons.

BISHOP A "DISHONEST INTERLOCUTOR," GIVES WRONG MEANING TO CHURCH DOCUMENTS

Father Bogan Rebukes Bishop Neely and Pardons Him For Sneering Reference to the Roman Catholics.

A VIGOROUS DEFENSE

Priest Works "the Deadly Parallel" On Methodist Bishop Who Advocated Dignified Service.

A vigorous rejoinder is made today by Father B. M. Bogan, rector of St. Mary's church, to the answer filed by Bishop Thomas B. Neely, of South Amrica, to the priest's defense of his faith which was prompted by the Methodist prelate's attack on its teachings. At the First M. E. church on Sunday, the bishop declared in an address that the Catholic church "teaches that a man can be wicked all his life and then be prayed out of Purgatory for a small sum." The report of the address was read by the priest in The Daily Press on Monday and he immediately denied the truth of the bishop's utterance and offered to give $100 to Muhlenberg hospital if the bishop would produce accredited documentary evidence to prove his assertion. Father Bogan's reply to the bishop was made in an open letter published on Tuesday. Yesterday, Bishop Neely accepted the challenge and in a lengthy argument made through the columns of this paper recited the proceedings of the Council of Trent as well as a number of other accredited documents to prove his case. He asked that the priest pay over the $100.

Father Bogan today makes the following answer to the bishop's letter of yesterday:

"St. Mary's Rectory,
"Plainfield, N. J.,
"Dec. 8, 1906.

"Editor, The Daily Press:

"On Monday evening last I read an account of an address delivered in the First Methodist church, this city, on the previous evening, by a Methodist Bishop who had come among the people of his religious views to solicit money to be expended in missionary work in South America.

"In outlining the plan of campaign among the benighted people of South America, it may be presumed that the audience who had the privilege to listen to him would have been interested in hearing a straight-forward, zealous statement of doctrinal principles on which, by the aid of their money, he hoped to deliver the goods. In the report of the visit of the Rt. Rev. Collector, I find him advising that "the services must be made attractive to men; there must be dignity in them,"—and when he gave an exhibition of doctrinal irrelevancy and of splenetic bigatry that must have been a revelation of intellectual dignity to the men of his audience. In the diatribe that formed part of the treat, "dignified" and "attractive for men," the Rt. Rev. Collector blurted out a statement so offensive, so incendiary, so libellous, that as a priest and as a citizen, I resented it and asked for accredited documents proving that the Church had ever taught such an infamous doctrine. And now I am confronted with challenged documents, as proof of one of the most offensive statements: "That the Catholic church teaches that a man can be wicked all his life and then be prayed out of Purgatory for a small sum." In citing the documents required, the Rt. Rev. Collector shows a knowledge of Roman Catholic doctrine which does credit to his erudition. He does know what the Church teaches in the doctrine of Purgatory and the efficacy of prayers and alms deeds and pious practices for the souls detained there. With one or two exceptions his citations from accredited sources are correct. But the poor man pretends to read into them a meaning that the Church never took from them, and which has never been its doctrine nor its practice.

"A man may correctly cite the clause of Article 3 of the National Constitution 'the trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment shall be by jury.' But were he to say that it is the practice of the State to order death by 'Lynch Law,' his citation, though correct, could not be held to defend his calumny against the State.

BOROUGH SEWER MATTER IS NOT LYING DORMANT

W. J. BUTTFIELD STATES COMMISSION IS WORKING SLOWLY BUT SURELY.

In the regular order of business at last night's meeting of the Borough Council, Clerk Rowley read a communication from the sewer commission, in reply to the letter sent it by the Board of Health, urging that something be done soon in regard to the installation of a system. It was stated by W. J. Buttfield that the committee is working on the matter and that in the opinion of Chairman Charles W. McCutchen undue haste might interfere with the ultimate consummation of their plans. The Board of Health will be informed of the committee's reply.

On a resolution offered by Councilman Smith, the council accepted the offer of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company to furnish power for the fire alarm system at $100 a year. At the present time it is secured from batteries and it has been found to be an expensive and unsatisfactory method. The change will be made at the first of the year.

On a resolution offered by Mr. McGee, $100 was appropriated to have the books of the collector and treasurer audited by an expert. The finance committee is to designate who shall do the work. A. R. Phillips was granted permission to erect a frame structure at 36 Grandview avenue to be used as a creamery and Frank Dencklau was appointed a special marshal at the request of the Board of Health, in order that he might be authorized to act in connection with his health inspection work. The treasurer reported a balance on hand of $23,390.54.

The council will meet again on Friday night, December 21, in order to wind up all business for the year and receive the annual reports.

FORMER FREEHOLDER GEORGE W. DOTY DEAD.

Well Known Farmer and Dairyman of Union Township.

Former Freeholder George W. Doty, aged 68 years, who died Thursday afternoon at his home in Union township, where he had resided many years, will be buried tomorrow afternoon.

Mr. Doty had been ill a long while. He had held various offices in the gift of the township, including a member of the town committee, and at the time of his death held the office of overseer of roads. He was a zealous member of the Democratic party.

He was a successful farmer and dairyman, and served, for many years, families in Elizabeth and vicinity with milk. Mr. Doty leaves a wife, who was a daughter of the late Joel Searing. There are two daughters, Mrs. Griggs and Mrs. Bonnell, and one son. Funeral services, to be conducted by the Rev. Mr. Karnell, of the Connecticut Farms Presbyterian church, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the late home of Mr. Doty, and interment will be in the cemetery of the Connecticut Farms church.

Mr. Doty was an uncle of E. C. Searing, of this city.

Walls Will Probably Be Built.

The proposition to build retaining walls to the new West End avenue bridge will be submitted to the Somerset County Board of Freeholders by the bridge committee from the Union County Board, the latter body having agreed to stand half the expense. The matter will come up at the next meeting of the Somerset County Board. It is quite likely that the improvement will be made, as it is a necessity.

Fourth Estate Was Solid.

It wasn't because Farmer Orator Martine didn't have the newspaper men of the Fifth Congressional District with him that he failed to land that job in Washington. The pen is mightier than the sword, but sometimes it gets broken on the ballot box.—Newark Evening News.

From J. W. Johnson's.

The handsome silver loving cup given by the newspapermen of Plainfield to James E. Martine at his banquet Thursday night came from the silver house of J. W. Johnson, 22 John street, New York. It is considered a work of art.

—Speaking of butter, thousands of users say there is nothing to equal Rockdale print or creamery. It is sold by Neuman Brothers, who also handle Elgin creamery.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Daniel Sully in his newest play, "The Parish Priest," is the offering at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight. The performances are being given under the auspices of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus.

At the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night George W. Monroe, the funniest of stage Irishwomen, will break away from his accustomed woman's frills and features to dally with the light comedy role of Owen Moore, a promising, very promising young lawyer in Charles Klein's musical topical farce on hypnotism and other polite fads and fancies of the hour entitled "The Time of Your Life," but the break is only a temporary one, for Mr. Monroe soon returns to skirts to raise a bedlum of fun for his audience and consternation for the arch deceivers of divine woman who have forced him from pantaloons to petticoats to perpetrate their horrid deception. The star, the play and the supporting company are endorsed by authorities whose O. K. insures "The Time of Your Life" to all who see the performance.

Among the brand-new theatrical productions this season is the comedy-drama that is making a pronounced hit for the enterprising amusement firm of Rowland & Clifford. "Thorns and Orange Blossoms" is a very taking title, and it is a dramatization of Bertha M. Clay's extensively read book of the same name. The story of the piece is in part English, but much brightness is infused by the introduction of American comedy that is consistently and most numorously put. As a scenic production nothing has been omitted that would lend to its attractiveness and the company is of the better sort in detail, even the smallest part being in thoroughly competent and experienced hands. "Thorns and Orange Blossoms" comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday afternoon and night.

Edward R. Salter's latest success from the Savoy theatre, New York city, comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night, "It's All Your Fault," with the popular comedian Charles J. Stine as the eccentric uncle and Miss Olive Evans as the "model" wife, together with Master Pincus, with all the New York newsboys charming "freshness" has made as big a hit here as it did in London. Edgar Selwyn's interpolation of an American boy in his toughest variety is a master stroke. The farcical element pivots on the paternity of this young rascal, who when he gets a little older will develop into something like Digby Bells Bowery tough at a ball game. Complications of the most ludicrous kind follow hard on the heels of each other until the stage characters become involved in seemingly hopeless mess, but of course it all comes out right in the end.

With the arrival at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night of the great automobile racing drama, "The Governor's Pardon," a new era may be said to have dawned in theatrical affairs. This will be the very first play in which the automobile has been made use of to the fullest extent, and it may in fact be classed at once as the only purely automobile play on the stage today. As far as novelty goes, there is enough and sufficient, for it simply abounds in new things. For the cast it need only be said that no better can be obtained anywhere. The play has a goodly sprinkling of comedy moments throughout and this, with a number of songs gives much humor.

Mrs. Harry N. Brokaw and son, Duke, of Somerville, have been visiting Mrs. J. E. Brokaw, of the borough.

Hundreds of lady scalp specialists and hair dressers use and recommend Newbro's Herpicide, instead of products of their own manufacture upon which a much larger profit could be made. They claim that Herpicide makes friends for them and gives much better satisfaction. Some hair dressers use Herpicide for obstinate cases only, but why not use the best first?

Herpicide is a delightful dressing that can be used when there is no disease of the hair or scalp, and as an actual remedy for dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair it stands in a class singularly its own.

Many ladies object to a gummy and sticky hair dressing, or one that is full of sedimentary chemicals intended to dye the hair. The marked preference for a clean and dainty preparation, particularly one that overcomes excessive oiliness and leaves the hair light and fluffy, is reflected in the enormous sale of Newbro's Herpicide Discriminating ladies become enthusiastic over its refreshing quality and exquisite fragrance. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

Save for those who still have a lingering fancy for mass play, the football rules of 1906 seem to have pleased the great majority of public, players and coaches. Those teams who stuck to old-fashioned methods paid for it with defeat. The new rules spelled success for those who took them up in spirit as well as in letter, and of two teams playing up-to-date football the eleven showing the greatest daring in the new style of play almost invariably won.

Much decided at the outset of the season and much lauded at its conclusion, the forward pass stands out as the most sensational and most successful novelty of the year. Pennsylvania stopped Michigan's attempts and made use of it herself. Yale beat Harvard with it, and the Navy disposed of the Army by the same process, although a field goal helped. Princeton ran up large scores with the new play, and had any one of the forward passes tried by Yale and Princeton against each other proved successful, as planned, there might have been no scoreless battle to record.

Instances in which the forward pass brought a team within striking distance of its opponent's goal line were two numerous to record. In many cases it was the only play that could carry an eleven past midfield with the ball still in its possession. Man coaches were out-spoken in its favor at the outset, notably Torrey, Reynolds and Smith, of Pennsylvania; Roper, of Princeton; Rockwell and Hinkey, of Yale; Warner, of Cornell; Croftus, of Villa Nova; Pierce, of the Indians; Reiter, of Wesleyan; Robinson, of Brown, and Fennell, of Pennsylvania State.

The Carlisle coaches are considering the advisability of a shorter schedule for the Indians next year. The Red Men had more than they could shoulder well this season, and the coaches attribute their defeat by Vanderbilt to too much work. However, it is notable that the Indians went through their games without one serious accident.

Reid holds himself responsible for Harvard's defeat. "The men played as they were told," he says, "and I take all the blame for the result."

Some interest has been aroused in the personnel of Lieutenant Hackett, who was the referee in the game between Princeton and Yale. He is a graduate of West Point, class of 1904, and after leaving West Point was stationed at Fort Sheridan. He was an officer in the infantry arm of the service, but most of the time was engaged in making topographical maps for the army of the country. A year ago he resigned from the army and accepted a position with D. H. Burnham & Company, architects, of Chicago.

GOTHAM'S AMUSEMENTS

The New York press has seldom shown a more enthusiastic spirit than in its laudation of the great success which attended the metropolitan premiere of Mr. Belasco's production, "The Rose of the Raicho," at the Belasco theatre, New York, on the evening of Tuesday, November 27. Acton Davies, in the Evening Sun: "David Belasco made his annual production at the Belasco theatre and scored his annual success. In point of atmospheric charm, pictorial splendor and romance 'The Rose of the Rancho,' which he has written in collaboration with Richard Walton Tully, equals and in some respects excells all his previous productions, but the real sensation of the performance was the successful launching of his new and youngest star—a girl of 23, who less than a year ago was merely a hard-working little actress giving two performances a day in one of the popular stock companies, and after three short months' tuition, legitimately earned her right to rank as a Belasco star."

TO WATCH LEGISLATURE

Object of People's Lobby of New Jersey Temporarily Organized in Newark.

ITS PLAN AND SCOPE

Essex, Hudson, Union and Bergen Counties Represented At Meeting.

With the election of Edwin G. Adams as temporary chairman and Edmond A. Whittier as temporary secretary the People's Lobby of New Jersey effected a temporary organization at a meeting at Achtel-Stetter's in Newark. Permanent organization is scheduled to follow at another meeting December 14. The purpose of the organization is to consider pending legislation and also suggest additional laws, and at the same time compile records of the attitude of legislators on various questions. It is proposed to use these records for campaign material when legislators seek re-election.

The meeting was called by President Adolph Roeder, president of the Civic Federation of Orange, and he explained to about fifty men who assembled in response to the call what such an organization as is proposed could do in the way of watching legislation and influencing legislators. At the conclusion of his address the clergyman relinquished the chair to Herman B. Walker.

Essex, Hudson, Bergen and Union counties were represented. The plan of the organization was drafted by a committee composed of Mr. Adams, Simon P. Northrup, Caleb V. Whitbeck, Job H. Lippincott, of Jersey City, and William J. Wood, of Elizabeth. This committee recommended the appointment of two more committees, one on constitution and by-laws and the other on organization. This was decided on and the committees will make reports at the next meeting.

Various speakers told of the need for an organization which would be a lobby for the people of Trenton and be in a position to furnish accurate information regarding the actions of legislators. Mr. Walker urged that the organization be made strictly non-partizan and take no side on any question. He suggested that it would gain in power if it made its business solely the collecting of information for the benefit of the constituents of legislators. This was not the idea of the majority, and many of the members of the new organization took the view that it ought to be active in endeavoring to kill objectionable legislation and foster laws that favored the people's interests.

William Mayo Atkinson, of Newark, said it was Senator Minturn's purpose to introduce at the coming session of the Legislature a bill to abolish a State railroad commission, and that the measure would be drawn so that the general public would be enabled to control the railroads through this body. J. Albert Stowe, of Arlington, spoke of the need for referendum and declared that Kearny's contract with the Suburban Water Company would never have been made if it had been referred to the people of the city. Alden Freeman suggested that before the new organization take side on any legislative question the matter be referred to a vote of the members.

FATHER BOGAN'S REPLY

"The Constitution of the Catholic church correctly cited by the Rt. Rev. Bishop does teach that 'souls truly penitent and who die in the love of God really do suffer for a time in Purgatory that the slightest remnant of stain may be purified 'so as by fire,' for 'the slightest stain cannot enter into Heaven.' The Constitution of the Catholic church likewise ordains that the prayers of friends on earth may be offered and especially the official prayer of the sacrifice of the Mass, propitiating God to have mercy on those who died not 'wicked all their life,' but 'truly penitent, and in the 'love of God.' The Constitution of the Catholic church does teach that it has been a custom continuously observed from the days of the Maccabees in the Jewish Temple of old and from the earliest days of the new dispensation, and is therefore not a 'shrewd invention calculated to increase the revenue of the Roman church' to make an offering to the priest both in the Temple of Jerusalem and in the church today, that they may offer the sacrifice of aotnement for a specified intention, namely, that God may have mercy on the souls of the penitent departed who died in the love of God.

"To cite this clause of the church's constitution and say that it defends the statement that the church teaches that 'a man can be wicked all his life and be prayed out of Purgatory for a small sum' is nothing less than calumny, so evidently distorted and untruthful is it.

"It is likewise a part of the church's constitution that out of Hell, to which those who are wicked all their are condemned, there is no redemption, and for them no prayer or sacrifice can be offered.

"But why take up privileged space you so courteously put at my disposal. The Bishop has cited accredited documents it is true, but has proved himself a dishonest interlocutor, and an unfair controversionalist.

"Picturing the fruitless remorse among the sorrows of Hell, to which are condemned all impenitent sinners, whether they be horse-thieves, drunkards, oh calumniators, the Book of Wisdom saith: "Then shall the just stand with great constascy against those who have afflicted them. These seeing it, shall be troubled with great fear. Saying within themselves repenting and groaning for anguish for spirit: These are they whom we had sometimes in derision, and for a parable of reproach.

"We fools esteemed their life madness, and their end without honor. Behold how they are numbered among the children of God, and their lot is among the Saints."

"Should the Rt. Rev. Bishop accept pardon from a priest, let me say that I freely pardon his sneering reference to the valued archives of the Vatican, and the label "Romanist" he so gracefully sticks on his Roman Catholic friends.

Sincerely yours,

"REV. B. M. BOGAN."

Miss Nash Entertains.

Miss Margretta Nash, of Prospect avenue, entertained thirty friends at a progressive euchre party at her home, last night. After the evening's play refreshments were served.

Petition for Hudson Bridge.

Tenafly, Dec. 8.—Encouraged by the success of the Hudson River bridge rally on Monday evening, the Borough Club of Tenafly is circulating the following petition for signatures throughout Bergen county: Believing that the construction of the Hudson River bridge connecting New Jersey with the city of New York, jointly by the States of New York and New Jersey, will serve the best interests of both States by providing suitable and rapid transportation facilities, now so imperatively needed by both commonwealths, we, the undersigned residents of Bergen county, do hereby petition the Legislature of the State of New Jersey to enact such laws and make appropriations as may be necessary to insure the speedy building of the Hudson River bridge.

ROYAL Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Healthful cream of tartar, derived solely from grapes, refined to absolute purity, is the active principle of every pound of Royal Baking Powder.

Hence it is that Royal Baking Powder renders the food remarkable both for its fine flavor and healthfulness.

No alum, no phosphate—which are the principal elements of the so-called cheap baking powders—and which are derived from bones, rock and sulphuric acid.

HAIL HIM AS SENATOR

Governor Accepts Masonic Brethren's Cheers as a Consolation Prize.

ENTHUSIASM IN ESSEX

If That Cheer Had Come From the Legislators It Might Have Meant Something, Said Mr. Stokes.

Governor Edward C. Stokes has found how at least one section of Essex county feels as to his choice for United States Senator. At the annual dinner of Hope Lodge, F. and A. M., of East Orange, held in the Woman's Club building, the Governor was cheered again and again as "the next Senator," and the Executive did not attempt to dodge the recognition, although he humorously remarked that he accepted the cheers as "a consolation prize."

Declaring that New Jersey had never had a better Governor, Justice J. Franklin Fort presented Mr. Stokes who, when the cheers had died away, said:

"If that last cheer I heard had come from the legislators in joint meeting assembled I might think it meant something, but coming from those who only cheer but have no vote, I accept it as it is meant, as a sort of consolation prize."

There were loud cheers of "No" at this declaration. Continuing, the Governor said:

"I came here under a false impression. Judge Dill secured my acceptance under the idea that this was a quiet smoker, a sort of Masonic Quaker meeting, and behold I am confronted with a set toast, surrounded by dignitaries of the Supreme Court, who earn their salaries by declaring unconstitutional the laws I have signed after great deliberation and after vain effort to ascertain how the Court of Errors is going to guess."

The Governor talked of the notable men who had been allied with Masonry and of the Masonic spirit of equality. Continuing, he said:

"What is the Roosevelt square deal but Masonic teaching? What is the Roosevelt dogma of the sacredness and purity of the family life but Masonic doctrine? What is the Roosevelt conception of civic righteousness but applied Masonic law?

"We hear much of reform in these days. A true Mason is always a true reformer. The only difference is that he does not advertise his wares as a profession. He works out reforms modestly, quietly, consistently."

Bolomen Shot Americans.

Manila, P. I., Dec. 8.—Later reports of the fighting in the Island of Leyte on Wednesday show that Capt. Samuel V. Ham, with a detachment of company L of the Eighth Infantry and a force of constabulary under Lieutenant Ralph P. Yates, Jr., was rushed by sixty bolo men, four miles from La Paz, on the Taragona trail, during the afternoon of that day. The Pulajanes had a few guns, fired a volley and then made a rush upon the American force. Five Americans were killed and nine were wounded. The enemy lost thirty men killed. The number of Pulajanes wounded and captured is not known. A detachment has started in pursuit of the insurgents. The telegraph line between Tacloban and Iloilo is down and no further details are obtainable.

Summit Man Fined $250.

Jersey City, Dec. 8.—Edward P. Moore, of Summit, who was recently adjudged guilty of manslaughter in the Hudson Court of Special Sessions, was Thursday sentenced to pay a fine of $250 and costs of court. By way of explanation of this leniency Judge Blair, in imposing sentence, said that there were conditions and circumstances surrounding the case that made the crime much less than the charge appeared. Moore, who is a widower, was jealous of the attentions paid to his sister-in-law by George Lewis. The two men met at the house of a mutual friend and went to the street to "fight it out." A blow from the fist of Moore felled his rival and in falling Lewis' skull was fractured on the curbstone.

Bucket Shop Man Shot.

New York, Dec. 8.—William R. Hennig, once the largest bucket shop operators in this country, was shot yesterday by Thomas O'Connor, recently his partner in a business venture and for a long time a telegraph operator in his employ. The shooting was done in front of No. 57 Broadway, a restaurant, as the noon hour began to draw thousands of persons from office buildings for luncheon. Hennig fell and rolled into a basement. He was wounded painfully. With hundreds rushing along the sidewalks to escape more bullets and hundreds in the cafe frightened by the appearance of the wounded man and a policeman with a prisoner, the neighborhood was thrown into an uproar and in a few minutes two thousand persons were jammed around the place. O'Connor shot Hennig because he believed the man had served him an ill turn in their business venture.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

[OFFICIAL.]

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, Nov. 1st, 1906, at 2:30 p. m. All members present—20.

Minutes of the previous meeting, (reading of bills being omitted) were on motion, approved as read.

COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

From Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., as follows, viz.:

Plainfield, N. J., Oct. 18, 1906.

Gentlemen: Mr. David Taylor, of Bound Brook, has placed in my hands for adjustment a claim against you for damages sustained by him by reason of his horse being injured by crossing the Washington avenue bridge, this city, on the 23d of Sept. last. One of the horse's front legs went through the bridge, which caused him to fall and injure his leg and body so that Mr. Taylor has been unable to use him since. The injuries are such that the horse will never be in the same condition he was prior to the accident. Kindly let me hear from you in reference to this matter, and oblige,

Yours truly,
Walter L. Hetfield, Jr.

Freeholder Wilbur stated that he had looked somewhat into the foregoing claim, and thought it could be settled for $25.

Freeholder Swain moved that the claim be referred with power, to Freeholders Wilbur and Westphal, and to the county attorney, which was so ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote.

From B. D. Evans, Medical Director, N. J. State Hospital, as follows:

Morris Plains, N. J., Oct. 22, 1906.

I beg leave to call your attention to the fact that chapter 824 of the laws of 1906 makes it obligatory that the physicians in making certificates of persons alleged to be insane shall state in the body of such certificates the date upon which the examination is made, upon which such certificates are based; and this law further provides that the person certified to be insane must be committed to the asylum named in the commitment papers before the expiration of six days, that is: that the person certified to be insane must be taken to the institution named in the commitment papers within six days from the date of the examination, which is the basis of the certificates made by the certifying physicians.

It is therefore proper that your county should, without delay, prepare commitment blanks in accordance with the act above referred to. I beg leave to make the suggestion that a notice or news item be inserted in your local papers calling the attention of the general practitioners of medicine to this change in the law. The old form of commitment papers are in the hands of a large number of physicians, many of whom may not have learned of this change in the law.

Very truly and respectfully yours,
B. D. Evans, Medical Director.

On motion of Freeholder Gruener, received and referred to committee on lunacy.

From "The Morris County Traction Company," as follows, viz.:

Summit, N. J., Nov. 1st, 1906.

Gentlemen: We would like to have an extension of one year in which to complete the building of our line on Morris avenue between the city of Summit and Union, as we have been unable to complete the building of this line, owing to unavoidable delays. Hoping you will grant this request, we remain,

Very truly yours,
The Morris County Traction Co.,
F. H. Alleman, Secretary.

Freeholder Krouse moved that the communication be referred to a special committee of five, said committee after investigation, to report back to this board, which was so ordered without dissent.

The director appointed as the said committee, Freeholders Krouse, Adams, Jensen, Meisel and Cladek.

From F. J. Hubbard, County Engineer, as follows, viz.:

Plainfield, N. J., Oct. 31st, 1906.

S. P. T. Wilbur, Esq., Plainfield, N. J.

Dear sir: The Central Railroad of N. J. has planned to put in an additional track on the north side of their right of way at Berckman street, this city, and hence will be obliged to extend their bridge abutments at this point; this will bring their abutment well into the county bridge over Cedar Brook, which, at this point crosses through under the bridge in an "S" shape.

They have therefore contracted to extend the county bridge out to the north just the width of the present span and rebuild it on identically the same lines and plan as the present bridge, which is a modern structure, and have specified that the contractor shall make the work conform in every particular to the present structure and to the satisfaction of the county, replacing the railing, sidewalk, catch-basins, and making all connections as at present. I have been in frequent consultation with the railroad engineers and the contractors, and am satisfied that the county will be fully protected in obtaining as good a job as they have at present.

Of course this will necessitate changing the course of the stream, but as such change will come on the Central's property, I do not know that the county will be affected.

Very trul yours,
F. J. Hubbard, County Engineer.

On motion of Freeholder Cladek, received and referred to Freeholders Westphal and Wilbur, of Plainfield, and to County Engineer Hubbard.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

By the committee and county attorney on claim for damages, etc., by Fred Miller:

Gentlemen: Respecting the claim for damages of Fred Miller for injury to horse claimed to have been occasioned by reason of its breaking through the bridge on Claremont place, Cranford, N. J., we beg to say that we have investigated the same and are satisfied that the horse was injured by breaking through said bridge; we have also been to examine the horse, and find that the same has practically, to all appearances, recovered from said injury.

The horse in question was a heavy draught horse, and Mr. Miller claims that he has been deprived of its service for some three weeks, which he claims deprived him of the use of the team, whereby he was earning $5 a day. His claim, therefore, is not only for injury to horse, but for loss of use of the same. After conference with Mr. Miller, he has consented to accept $50 in full settlement thereof, and the undersigned committee would recommend payment of the same rather than have the county involved in litigation, and we would therefore recommend that the county collector be authorized to draw a warrant to the order of Mr. Miller for said sum of $50, and to take from him his full receipt and release therefore.

Respectfully submitted,
E. R. Adams, Henry Krouse, Committee.
W. H. Codington, County Attorney.

Freeholder Gruener, moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote.

By committee on North avenue bridge in Union township:

Gentlemen: Your committee on bridge on North avenue, with power, in Union township would respectfully report that they have examined the bridge and found it in bad order, and short in length, which made it dangerous, and they would report that they repaired and lengthened the same at a cost of $47.90.

Noah Woodruff, W. H. Swain, C. S. Chandler, Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Cady, the report was received and placed on file.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON, AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHAPTER VI.

The Lute of the Holy Ghost Is Further Chastened.

In a craze of rage and grief he turned toward the river, when he heard the sharp voice of the Bishop calling him back.

"It ain't any use, Joel."

"Couldn't we find his body?"

"Not a chance in a thousand. It was carried down by the current. It would mean days and mebbe weeks. Besides, we need you here. Here's your duty. Sakes alive! If we only had about 20 minutes with them cusses like it was in the old days! When you're ready to be a Son of Dan you'll know what I mean. But never mind, we'll see the day yet when Israel will be the head and not the tail."

"My mother? Has any one told her?"

"Wal, now, I'm right sorry about that, but it got out before you come over. Tarlton McKenny's boy, Nephi, rowed over in a skiff and brought the news, and some of the women went and tattled it to your ma. I guess it upset her considerable. You go up and see her."

He ran forward toward the head of the train, hearing as he went words of sympathy hurried to him by those he passed. Mounting the wagon, he climbed over the seat to where his mother lay. She seemed to sleep in spite of the jolting. The driver called back to him:

"She took on terrible for a spell, Brother Rae. She's only jest now got herself pacified."

He put his hand on her forehead and found it burning. She stirred and moaned and muttered disjointed sentences. He heard his father's name, his sister's, and his own, and he knew she was delirious. He eased her bed as well as he could, and made a place for himself beside her where he could sit and take one of the pale, thin hands between his own and try to endow her with some of his abundant life. He stayed by her until their camping place was reached.

Once for a moment she opened her eyes with what seemed to him a more than normal clearness and understanding and memory in them. Though she looked at him long without speaking, she seemed to say all there was to say, so that the brief span was full of anguish for him. He sighed with relief when the consciousness faded again from her look, and she fell to babbling once more of some long gone day in her girlhood.

When the wagon halted he was called outside by the driver, who wished instructions regarding the camp to be made. A few moments later he was back, and raised the side of the wagon cover to let in the light. The look on her face alarmed him. It seemed to tell unmistakably that the great change was near. Already she looked moribund. An irregular gasping for breath, an occasional delirious mutter, were the only signs of life. She was too weak to show restlessness. Her pinched and faded face was covered with tiny cold beads. The pupils of her eyes were strangely dilated, and the eyes themselves were glazed. There was no pulse at her wrist, and from her heart only the faintest beating could be heard. In quick terror he called to a boy working at a wagon near by.

"Go for Bishop Wright and tell him to bring that apothecary with him."

The two came up briskly a few moments later, and he stood aside for them in an agony of suspense. The Bishop turned toward him after a long look into the wagon.

"She's gone to be with your pa, Joel. You can't do anything—only remember they're both happy now for bein' together."

It made little stir in the busy encampment. There had been other deaths while they lay out on the marshy river flats. Others of the sorry band were now sick unto death, and many more would die on the long march across the Iowa prairie, dropping out one by one of fever, starvation, exposure. He stood helpless in this chaos of woe, shut up within himself, knowing not where to turn.

Some women came presently from the other wagon to prepare the body for burial. He watched them dumbly, from a maze of incredulity, feeling that some wretched pretense was being acted before him.

The Bishop and Keaton came up. They brought with them the makeshift coffin. They had cut a log, split it, and stripped off its bark in two half-cylinders. They led him to the other side of the wagon, out of sight. Then they placed the strips of bark around the body, bound them with hickory withes, and over the rough surface the women made a little show of black cloth.

For the burial they could do no more than consign the body to one of the waves in the great billowy land sea about them. They had no tombstone, nor were there even rocks to make a simple cairn. He saw them bury her, and thought there was little to choose between hers and the grave of his father, whose body was being now carried noiselessly down in the bed of the river. The general locality would be kept by landmarks, by the bearing of valley bends, headlands, or the fork and angles of constant streams. But the spot itself would in a few weeks be lost.

When the last office had been performed, the prayer said, a psalm sung, and the black dirt thrown in, they waited by him in sympathy. His feeling was that they had done a monstrous thing; that the mother he had known was somewhere alive and well. He stood a moment so, watching the sun sink below the far rim of the prairie while the white moon swung into sight in the east. Then the Bishop led him gently by the arm to his own camp.

There cheer abounded. They had a huge camp fire tended by the Bishop's numerous children. Near by was a smaller fire over which the good man's four wives, able-bodied, glowing and cordial, cooked the supper. In little ways they sought to lighten his sorrow or to put his mind away from it.

He talked long with the Bishop when the women had climbed into their wagon for the night. He amazed that good man by asking him if the Lord would not be pleased to have them, now, as they were, go back to Nauvoo and descend upon the Gentiles to smite them. The Bishop counselled him to have patience.

"What could we do now with these few old fusees and cheap arms that we managed to smuggle across—to say nothing of half of us being down sick?"

"But we are Israel, and surely Israel's God—"

"The Lord had his chance the other day if he'd wanted it, when they took the town. No, Joel, he means us to gather out and become strong enough to beat 'em in our own might. But you wait; our day wil come, and all the more credit to us then for doin' it ourselves. Then we'll consecrate the herds and flocks of the Gentile and his store and basket, his gold and silver, and his myrrh and frankincense. But for the present—well, we get to be politic and kind of modest about such doin's. The big Fan, the Sons of Dan, done good work in Missouri and better in Nauvoo, and it'll do still better where we're goin'. But we must be patient. Only next time we'll get to work quicker. If the Gentiles had been seen to quicker in Nauvoo, Joseph would be with us now. We learned our lesson there. Now the Lord has unfurled a Standard of Zion for the gathering of Israel, and this time we'll fix the Gentiles early."

"Amen! Brother Seth."

A look of deep hatred had clouded the older man's face as he spoke. He continued:

"Let the wrath of God abide upon 'em, and remember that we've bein' tried and proved for a purpose. And we got to be more practical. You been too theoretical yourself and too high-flyin' in your notions. The kingdom ain't to be set up on earth by faith alone. The Lord has got to have works, like I told you about the other day."

JUST IN TIME.

Some Plainfield People May Wait Till It's Too Late.

Don't wait until too late.

Be sure and be in time.

Just in time with kidney ills

Means curing the back

Before backache becomes chronic;

Before serious urinary troubles set in.

Doan's Kidney Pills will do this.

Here is Plainfield testimony to prove it.

A. C. Lazzi, stone-cutter and carver, of 244 East Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "For several years I was troubled with a distressing backache and with pains in the region of the kidneys. My head also ached severely and the secretions from the kidneys were not at all natural. I tried several doctors and some so-called kidney remedies, but none gave me any relief, and as my case became more and more persistent, I became somewhat discouraged because I could find no relief. I saw an advertisement regarding Doan's Kidney Pills and got a supply, at Randolph's pharmacy. Soon after taking them my troubles vanished like the mist and since then I have felt stronger and better in every way."

First Appearance of Dandruff a Forerunner of Future Baldness.

That such is the case has been conclusively proven by scientific research. Prof. Unna, the noted European skin specialist, declares that dandruff is the hardened-up cuticle of the scalp, caused by parasites destroying the vitality in the hair bulb. The hair becomes lifeless, and, in time, falls out. This can be prevented.

Newbro's Herpicide kills this dandruff germ, and restores the hair to its natural softness and abundancy.

Herpicide is now used by thousands of people—all satisfied that it is the most wonderful hair preparation on the market to-day.

PARK BOWLERS DEFEAT ROSELLE CASINO FIVE

BUT 23 WAS TOO MUCH FOR THEM IN THE THIRD GAME.

The Park Club bowling team rolled its first match in the Central Journal Bowling League, on its own alleys, last night, and made a good start by defeating Roselle Casino two out of three games. They took the first game by a score of 847 to 770 and the second by a score of 911 to 791 and then lost the third game by 23, the score being 891 to 868 against them.

F. O. Ball was high man for the home team with a score of 223, rolled in the second game and in the third game he put up a score of 192, as did also Barlow. R. Lyman rolled well in the first game when he scored 184, while Daniel and Monroe Long each rolled 180 in the second game. The average work of the Parks was good and a little more effort in the third game would have given them three straight.

Ostrander put up the high score for the visitors, 203, while Rawlins was second with 198. The other scores were a little below the average, showing that the Casino boys were not up to their usual form. The scores:

The league tournament was opened Thursday night. The Elizabeth team went to Cranford Casino, where they were defeated in three straight games. BOWLING.

The first games in the two-man team tourney to be held at McLaughlin's, will be rolled next Tuesday night. Harry Ackor and Harry Radin are matched against Gus Scheelen and Joe Alberts, while P. J. Reville and Sam Felver will compete with Frank Blatz and Harry Van Emburg. They will roll three games each. The other teams entered will start off in rotation and in a short time the tourney will be in full swing.

A five man team from the P. B. A. rollers matched forces with the Fanwods last night, winning two out of three games. All ten men rolled good, Joe Alberts especially, tallying an average of 196. Patsy Reville had an average of 180 and Harry Radin 178 2-3.

BASKETBALL.

There is more than ordinary interest in the basketball game scheduled to be played at Newark tonight between the Plainfield and Newark Y. M. C. A. teams. This is a league game and between old rivals. Plainfield will have its regular five and hopes to win.

TOO MEAN FOR ANYTHING.

Referee Was Horrid, and P. H. S. Girls Lost Basketball Game.

The Plainfield High School basketball team went to Bayonne last night and were defeated by the High School team of that place by a score of 80 to 12. The lop-sided score was due largely to the unfair decisions of their referee. They made foul after foul, most of which were overlooked by the referee. It was a rough game.

The line-up:

P. H. S.		B. H. S.
Doane	forwards	Daly
Snyder	forwards	Ruhlman
Caldwell	centre	Curren
Bogardus, Freeman	guards	Cogan
Morris	guards	Metten

Scorer, Joseph VanDeventer; timer, Mathewson.

P. H. S. GIRLS WIN.

Score in Their Basketball Game Was 16 to 3.

The girls' basketball team of the Plainfield High School defeated the girls' team from the Whittier school yesterday on the High School court by a score of 16 to 3.

Miss Smalley and Miss Derare played exceptionally well for High School, and Miss Wein and Miss Merrill for Whittier. The line-up:

P. H. S.		WHITTIER.
Moody	forwards.	Merrill
Derare	forwards.	Wein
Smalley	centres.	Van Brackle
DeGraff	centres.	Johnson
Ramsey	guards.	Smink

Referee, Miss Ferry; umpire, Miss Burr.

League Basketball.

The Y. M. C. A. basketball team will play its second game in the league schedule this evening, meeting the Newark association five, at Newark. The team is in good shape and should win on form. It has a percentage of .500, having won one game and lost one.

Referee Praises P. H. S. Team.

A letter received by Principal I. W. Travell from William A. Sillman, who is official referee for the Trinity Club, of Brooklyn, and who refereed the basketball game between Stuyvesant High School and the Plainfield High School last Saturday, in which he says: "It was an honor to referee such a game. I never saw nicer feeling among teams, and I, being an outsider and disinterested in either school, found my work made easy. Such spirit, such fairness upon the part of both teams towards each other and towards the officials is just what we want in our high school games; and then our athletics will become one of the greatest means of developing the best in our boys."

FOOTBALL.

Two old Yale football stars, William H. Corbin, known as "Pa" Corbin, and Frank S. Butterworth, Yale '95, made statements esterday against any further tinkering with the football rules. Mr. Corbin said: "The chronic football antagonists are really having hard work to find serious fault with the present game. The practical elimination of mass plays by the adoption of the most excellent ten yard rule, has taken away what appeared to be an opportunity for roughing. The 'neutral zone' removes much of the personal contract. The natural result of both has been a great reduction in rough tactics and the development of a more sportsmanlike attitude on the part of the players. There have been fewer injuries and a very small number of men have been taken out of games for any physical cause. The players finish with less exhaustion and, in many of the contests, with a willingness and earnest desire to play even longer."

Rodney H. Smith, the new captain of the West Point football team, is the son of a United States Army officer and went to school in New York city, Morris High first, then DeWitt Clinton. In school games he was a frequent winner of quarter and half mile races. Later he went to Horace Mann School, then to Ithaca High School. He was a student at the University of Wisconsin a while, and as a freshman there played fullback on the varsity eleven until hurt in midseason. From Wisconsin he went to the Point.

TELLS FARMERS TO PRIMP.

Advice to Cut Their Hair, Trim Beards and Wear Store Clothes.

Springfield, Mass., Dec. 8.—Massachusetts farmers are in a quandary whether to adopt or to resent the suggestion of J. H. Hale at the annual meeting of the State Board of Agriculture in Springfield this week that farmers should cut their hair, trim their beards and dress like other folk. Mr. Hale, who made a fortune in peach culture in Georgia and Connecticut, was scheduled to speak on fruit-growing. He digressed to the extent of offering the farmer almost heretical advice relative to personal appearance.

Mr. Hale assured his audience that celluloid collars, rubber neckties and obsolete hats in no way enabled the farmer to grow better crops. Amid an almost oppressive silence Mr. Hale told the farmers to wear "store clothes" and let their city customers pay for them.

Burned $1,300 in a Stove.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 8.—Mrs. Louisa Johnson, of No. 4,468 Easton avenue, wife of "uGus" Johnson, is detained at the City Hospital, and physicians say she is incurably insane. Mrs. Johnson became violent over religion, threw $1,300, the savings of years, into the stove and burned it, and kept her husband a prisoner nearly thirty-six hours, with little or no food and no sleep. She threatened to kill him with a carving knife if he tried to leave the house.

DEFER CONGO PETITION

Action On Resolution to Congress is Postponed by First Baptists.

OPINION IS DIVIDED

Former Mayor Randolph Points Out That Proposition Is An Unwise One—Incident Ended.

Because the proposed action did not meet with the unanimous consent of the members assembled, the resolutions offered at the First Baptist church yesterday morning, looking toward our Government's aid in ameliorating conditions in the Congo Free State, were not acted upon and are not likely to according to those in a position to know. The presentation of the resolutions by a committee consisting of F. E. Kinsman, S. St. John McCutchen and W. A. Connor, appointed a week ago, followed an address given by Rev. Everett Burr, who is interested in the Congo Reform Association.

While from a humanitarian standpoint a majority of the members present agreed that this country should lend its aid to stop the cruel practices in the Congo Free State, others felt that this country should not meddle with the affairs in that State and that it would be unwise for any action to be taken. A week ago yesterday no outward expression of disapproval of the plan was shown. The pastor, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, appointed the committee of three to consider the plan and bring it before the church, yesterday, which was done after the morning sermon.

Mr. Kinsman, as chairman of the committee, presented a set of resolutions, and after a motion was made and seconded that they be adopted, L. V. F. Randolph made a few remarks, in which he explained that while he heartily agreed with a movement that would stop the cruel practices in the Congo Free State, he did not think it to be a matter in which this country should become involved. He believed resolutions to be unwise at this time and he hoped that they would not be adopted.

As there were indications of a lively discussion pro and con concerning the resolutions, it was suggested that they be considered at a future time when they can be discussed at length. It was hardly thought to be an opportune time and place to discuss the matter at length.

At present there are about fifty Baptist missionaries who are not permitted to work in the Congo Free State, the reason, it is claimed, being that the German missionaries have the favor and influence of King Leopold who has put the ban on the American missionaries.

The resolutions presented at yesterday's service and which were tabled are as follows:

Resolved, That the First Baptist Church of Plainfield, New Jersey, regards with deep concern the intolerable conditions prevailing in the Congo Free State in Africa, conditions apparently induced by greed of gain, and resulting in extreme oppression of an innocent and simple people by those selected by a concert of the Christian nation of the world to administer and govern that State.

The people of this district are peculiarly the wards of those nations, and can justly call upon their guardians for safety and protection, but extraordinary and unlawful excesses are practiced among and against them; cruel and undeserved penalties are inflicted upon them, and their condition is a reproach to the civilization and Christianity of the age.

It is the earnest feeling of this Church that the conditions in the Congo Free State should be ameliorated; that its people should be established and protected in the rights inherent to all mankind; that it is the duty of all enlightened men and women, and of the Christian governments of the world to take prompt and urgent measures toward such amelioration; that the government of the United States, as a leader in civilizing tendencies in the world, should take active steps in the premises.

That our representatives in Congress be asked to bring this matter to the attention of the State Department of the government, and to urge upon that Department an earnest effort to bring about needed reforms in the Congo Free State, and that to that end a copy of this resolution, signed by the pastor and clerk, be addressed and sent to each of the Hon. John Kean and Hon. John F. Dryden, Senators of New Jersey, and Hon. Charles N. Fowler, Representative in Congress from this Congressional district.

F. E. KINSMAN,
S. ST. J. McCUTCHEN,
W. A. CONNOR.

It is said that the matter will be dropped.

WATER CO. LOCATES OFFICE IN WESTFIELD

HEAD OFFICES OF MERGED CONCERNS TO BE KEPT IN THIS CITY.

The branch offices of the Plainfield-Union Water Company will be removed from Elizabeth to Westfield on January 1, quarters in the Love building in Broad street, at the latter place having been leased for the purpose. William E. Brown, of Elizabeth, will continue in the capacity of agent. The head office will remain in this city.

The Plainfield Water Supply Company, which supplies water to Plainfield and North Plainfield, and the Union Water Company, which supplied all towns between Plainfield and Elizabeth, were merged on Sept. 29 last. The name of the new corporation is the Plainfield-Union Water Company. The Union Company's supply was obtained from the Plainfield concern, the wells being in the Netherwood section. The stockholders were practically the same in both companies.

When the consolidation was effected William J. Whalan, secretary and treasurer of the Plainfield company, was chosen to serve in the same capacity in the new concern.

The change of the branch office from Elizabeth to Westfield is made for the convenience of its patrons.

"WILDCAT" HITS FREIGHT, ITS ENGINEER IS HURT.

Says He Saw Signals but Couldn't Stop His Engine—Caboose Burned.

A rear-end collision on the New Jersey Central Railroad west of Whitehouse Station at about seven o'clock yesterday morning, caused traffic to be blocked for about five hours. Engine No. 178, which was pulling only a caboose and running eastbound at great speed around the curve at the base of Pickell's mountain, crashed into the extra Allentown fast freight, wrecking two cars and the caboose of the latter and badly damaging No. 178. The caboose took fire from its stove and burned, as did also the woodwork on the damaged locomotive.

Engineer Mundy of No. 178 said he knew the signals were set against him, but could not hold his engine on the down grade. He was struck in the stomach by a flying timber and very severely injured. He was taken to his home at Elizabethport. Some of the crew of the freight, who were in the caboose, were thrown sprawling, but escaped with only a few cuts and bruises.

Passengers were transferred. The wrecking train and crew were rushed to the scene and soon began the work of clearing away the debris, which was over both tracks.

MARTIN I. COOLEY'S FUNERAL.

Dr. Taylor, President of Vassar College, Among the Attendants.

With an exceedingly simple service, the funeral of Martin I. Cooley was held at his late home on Rockview terrace, Saturday afternoon. It was attended by a large gathering of former business associates and distinguished men, among the latter being James M. Taylor, D. D., president of Vassar College, who was a lifelong friend of Mr. Cooley. Dr. Chambliss, pastor of the church of which he was a member for over thirty years, officiated. The floral tributes were numerous and very handsome.

Interment was made in Hillside cemetery, the honorary pall bearers being Charles W. McCutchen, J. C. Peck, Henry McGee, A. M. Selter, R. Henry Depew, George Dupee, E. J. Chaffee, E. J. Waring and A. W. Kleinecke.

Judge's Conscientious Scruples.

Judge Connett, of Hunterdon county, tried an appeal case in Somerville Saturday for Judge Schenck because the latter had been, in times past, counsel for both of the contesting parties, who haled from his home town of Neshanic, and did not want to sit in judgment over their dispute. The suit was the case of Lemuel Hoagland vs. Mary F. Van Winkle and was to recover $69.70 on an account. Mrs. VanWinkle admitted she owed part of the money, but disputed two of the principal items. Judge Connett reversed the verdict of the justice and decided that the plaintiff could not recover. George E. Pace, of East Millstone, was counsel for the plaintiff and Beekman & Vasseller, of Somerville, appeared for the defense.

Valuable Robe Taken.

While Arthur Murphy, of Watchung avenue, was calling on his parents, Rev. and Mrs. T. Logan Murphy, of the New Madison, last night, some one stole a valuable robe from his automobile, which was left standing on Madison avenue. A search was made for the robe without success and finally Mr. Murphy reported the loss to the police.

LONG HEARING ON THEFT OF TWELVE DOLLAR WATCH

REDDINGTON TOOK IT, AND PATRICK FOX IS INVOLVED IN THEFT.

With an admission of guilt before the court, Judge Runyon, sitting as an examining magistrate, devoted an hour and a half to a hearing on the theft of a $12 watch this morning, in order to discover whether or not Patrick Fox, a Central Railroad flagman at Dunellen, had acted as crookedly as Michael Reddington, the thief. He was charged with having forced Reddington to hand the watch over to him. He was held, with Reddington, for the grand jury.

The watch was stolen from Carl Silbert, who has a jewelry shop at 219 West Front street, shortly after 6 o'clock Saturday evening. Reddington, with another man, said to be a Dunellen railroad fireman named Mahon, went into the shop with Fox, who wanted to buy a watch. While Silbert's back was turned, the three men left the place. When the jeweller turned, he missed a $12 movement, and called to the trio to come back. They refused, and he reported the case to the police.

The trio were found in a Second street saloon, and arrested as they came out. All of them denied having any knowledge of a stolen watch, and were released. Shortly before 10 o'clock, Fox returned to the jeweler's shop, and after apologizing for the trouble his visit had caused, he bought a $19 watch and told Silbert he would help him recover the missing movement. He said he believed Reddington had it, because after the left police headquarters Reddington offered to sell him a watch for $5. Silbert communicated with the police, and Reddington and Fox were re-arrested. The other man was not sought because he was so drunk at the time of his examination that possible connection with the theft was scouted.

Reddington broke down under second examination and confessed to stealing the watch. Then he charged that Fox, who, he said, saw him take the watch, forced him to give it up under a threat to "squeal." He said Fox held him up for the watch a few steps from the shop, and gave him $1 a few minutes later at a saloon on Front street.

Reddington told that story in court, after Counsellor S. S. Swackhamer had opened in defense of Fox, in an effort to prove him entirely guiltless in the affair. Fox denied Reddington's story in toto. He said he couldn't swear that Reddington took the watch, that he did not demand it of him, and that he could not have said, on the strength of anything he knew, that Reddington had it until Reddington made the alleged offer to sell outside of police headquarters.

Mr. Swackhamer pleaded for the dismissal of the charge against his client on the ground that the only testimony in contradiction of his story was that of a self-confessed thief. He painted Fox as a hard-working, honest and temperate citizen. W. L. Hetfield, Jr., who represented Reddington, appeared partly in the capacity of State attorney, and answered Mr. Swackhamer's argument. He said Fox was a sneaking squealer, who had sought to clear himself by betraying his companion.

Judge Runyon said that if he were sitting as a city judge he would give both defendants a wide chance. He didn't believe either of them was a thief by nature, but that whatever each had done came more from rum than rascality. As a magistrate, however, he could do nothing but hold them both for the grand jury. Bail, fixed at $100, was furnished by both men. Reddington waived examination.

Elaborate Christmas Programme.

The Christmas service of the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday-school will be held Sunday afternoon, December 23, at 2:45 o'clock. In the plan proposed everyone in the church and school may participate. There will be donations of toys, dolls, games, books, clothing to be sent to the Children's Home for its Christmas festivities. On Thursday night, December 27, at 8 o'clock, the Christmas entertainment will be held. A novel programme, something different from the usual, has been arranged.

Third Degree to Be Exemplified.

Under the auspices of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, members of the order from all parts of the State will assemble in this city tomorrow night for the exemplification of the third degree. The work will be done in an elaborate manner by a picked team. The exercises are to be followed by an entertainment and collation.

Dr. Samuel Studdiford, of Trenton, who was pastor, some years ago, of the First Presbyterian church on East Front street, spent Sunday at the home of Charles W. McCutchen on Rockview avenue.

ANOTHER REALTY BOOM

N. B. and W. L. Smalley Buy Stine Estate For Developing Purposes.

A VALUABLE TRACT

Consists of 109 Acres On Greenbrook Road Within the Borough Limits—Their Plans.

Extensive improvements, in addition of those already underway, are soon to be made in the western part of North Plainfield. The well-known John Stine farm, comprising 109 acres in all, adjoining the Buttfield estate and extending to Greenbrook road, has been purchased by Mayor Newton B. Smalley and his brother, William L. Smalley, Jr., of the borough. There are sixty acres on the north side, which will be taken by W. L. Smalley, Jr., and forty-nine acres on the south side to be taken by the Mayor.

The Stine homstead, one of the oldest dwellings in the borough, will be remodelled by W. L. Smalley, Jr., and he will reside there upon its completion. This site is just seven minutes from the Grant Avenue Station of the New Jersey Central and is accessible to Plainfield.

This new deal will result in even greater improvements being made in that part of the borough which is known as Washington Heights, which is owned by C. W. McCutchen, W. J. Buttfield and Mayor N. B. Smalley. The work of laying West End avenue out as a boulevard is now progressing, a large force of men being engaged in macademozing the street. Later on the land will be cut up into building lots and handsome dwellings will be erected there.

SENATOR FRELINGHUYSEN TALKS TO SCHOOL TRUSTEES.

Judge Schenck Presides at Meeting of Somerset County School Boards Association.

The quarterly meeting of the Somerset County School Board Association was held Saturday in the First Reformed church in Somerville and was very largely attended by members of the boards of education of the different townships and boroughs of the county. Judge Louis H. Schenck, of Neshanic Station, the president, was in the chair, and John F. Reger, the county prosecutor, was secretary of the meeting.

The chief address was made by Dr. J. H. Hulsart, who is principal of the public schools of Dover. He is an interesting speaker and his remarks were highly appreciated. Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen was present and spoke in an instructive way about the school law. Assistant State Superintendent J. Brognard Betts and County Superintendent Krebs were also speakers. A banquet was served at Hotel Cawley.

MOTHER AND CHILDREN OVERCOME BY COAL GAS.

Daughter Struggles to Window and Sounds Alarm by Ringing Bell.

Mrs. Kate Clark and son Leon, of Whitehouse Station, who had been visiting friends in this city, having returned to their home last Friday, narrowly escaped death yesterday morning from coal gas. They, with Mrs. Clark's daughter, Marguerite, fourteen years old, were overcome by the gas which escaped from the register in their bedroom, which was connected with a hose burner in the dining room. Leon awoke complaining of a severe headache. His sister arose to get him a bottle of camphor. She fell twice to the floor and realizing something was wrong she grabbed a bell and after a struggle reached a window, which she was able to raise sufficiently to ring to the neighbors for help. Assistance soon arrived and a physician was summoned and now the family is recovered. Mrs. Clark and her children had a similar experience about ten years ago.

Union Praise Service.

The Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Societies of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will hold a union praise meeting tomorrow afternoon in the church parlor at 3:30 o'clock. There will be an address by Rev. J. E. McAfee, associate secretary of the Board of Home Missions. Thank offerings placed in the envelopes may be brought to the meeting or sent to the treasurer. A social half hour will follow the meeting.

Attended Holy Name Rally.

Delegations from St. Mary's and St. Joseph's R. C. churches attended a rally of Holy Name Societies at St. Bernard's church, Raritan, last night. Each of the local societies was represented by about thirty members. The rally sermon was preached by Rev. Father McGinnis, of Brooklyn.

MASONS AND LATHERS SETTLE THEIR DISPUTE

NO FURTHER TROUBLE EXPECTED OVER DR. ANDERSON'SS BUILDING.

Further trouble between the masons and lathers is likely to be averted as the result of a conference Saturday afternoon. At that meeting W. C. Smith, of the Board of Arbitration; Titus H. Laury, who has the mason contract for Dr. Anderson's new building, over which the dispute arose; Dr. Anderson and a representative of the Consolidated Engineering Company of America, which is superintending the construction work, discussed the various points in dispute.

It was decided that the masons should not be arbitrary in the matter, but that the question of putting up expanded metal should be left to the discretion of the masons as to whether it should be done by the lathers or their men. In the case of re-inforced concrete or cement, it was believed to be clearly the work of masons, especially where both sides are to be plastered. However, if the masons want the lathers to do this work it is optional with them.

A member of the board of arbitration in speaking about the matter said that in the case of masons they are obliged to serve a long apprenticeship, and should be given preference in such work, while the lathers are not considered to be in the same class. One important fact is that the Masons' Union does not affiliate with the other trade unions and if the masons wanted to be arbitrary they could tie up a great amount of work. They do not recognize other unions and if the masons stop their part of the work such as the laying of foundations and plastering it would be impossible for the other trades to go on with their work.

However, there is no disposition on the part of the masons to be arbitrary and it is likely that whenever a similar question arises again there will be an amicably adjustment of any dispute between masons and lathers as to the execution of the particular kind of work to be done.

CROWLEY WANTED TO MOVE IN POLITE SOCIETY

GRATIFIED HIS DESIRE FOR A FEW MINUTES AT THE PARK CLUB.

After satisfying a burning thirst with borough red rye, John Crowley, of the city, became impressed with the idea, Saturday night, that he ought to move in polite society. Though he had on the same clothes he wears following his occupation as a hod carrier, the matter of attire didn't bother him any and he headed for the exclusive Park Club. He sallied into the hallway with the blase air of a member of the 400 and despite the objections of attendants, made his way to the billiard room.

The horrified young scions of Washington Park families stood aghast as Crowley saluated one and all familiarly and it was only when he challenged one of them to a bowling game that they roused up. Several of the boldest with the help of the attaches tried to eject the intruder but he had the strength of the Prudential emblem and indignantly stood his ground. In desperation, the police department was called on the telephone and Chief Marshall Weiss responded.

At the sight of teh officer, Crowley realized that the Park Club was a little out of his line and consented to exchange the billiard room for a police cell. He was bailed out yesterday morning and will be arraigned before Mayor Smalley tonight on a charge of disorderly conduct.

THIS FIRM "DISAPPOINTED BUT NOT DISCOURAGED."

Tack Up Sign When Fire Guts Place Which Was Opened Week Before.

"Disappointed but Not Discouraged," are the words on a large sign to be seen on the building of W. H. Hoskins & Co., 354 Broadway, New York, of which firm Frank A. Weeks, of West Seventh street, is a member. After spending five months in preparation to open business, which was done a week ago today, fire and water made an almost complete wreck of the building and contents on Wednesday night, two days after the opening, resulting in a loss of $70,000 to the firm and about $80,000 on the building. The stock was insured for $68,000 and the building for $83,000.

The firm deals in all sorts of supplies for business men and their offices, such as furniture, cabinets, safes, cutlery, blank books and a hundred other articles in the novelty line. The cause of the fire is a mystery. It started on the fourth floor and was discovered by the night watchman. The firm had already expended $20,000 in making improvements. The firm has two other stores in New York, one at 11 Gold street and the other at 102 Fulton street. It will resume business on Broadway as soon as possible.

FIFTY YEARS A PASTOR.

Dr. Wheeler Celebrates His Golden Jubilee at Ocean Grove.

The Rev. Dr. Henry Wheeler, of Ocean Grove, N. J., preached yesterday his jubilee sermon celebrating his fiftieth year in the ministry.

Born in England, he came to America in 1855, was licensed to preach before he was eighteen, and before he was twenty had a circuit in the Wyoming, Pa., conference of fifteen appointments. Later he joined the Philadelphia conference. Whenever he was unable to preach his wife occupied his pulpit. Both Dr. Wheeler and his wife have written books.

HIS SURMISE WAS CORRECT.

Sixteen Pills at a Dose Entirely Too Much Medicine.

Anson Bisset, of Paterson, a boy, took sixteen pills at a dose yesterday. Some time later, with eyes bulging and throat swollen, he ran into Kent's drug store and informed the druggist that he believed he had taken too much medicine.

He was taken to the General hospital, where it was said that although the pills contained enough strychine to kill two men young Bisset has a chance of recovery.

Hawkins In Again.

Thomas Hawkins, colored, who was before Mayor Smalley a short time ago on a drunk and disorderly charge, was picked up in the borough for the same reason, Saturday night, by Marshal Pope. He is a blacksmith by trade and the demand for his services led to his being bailed out this morning by his employer. He will be arraigned tonight.

Choir Club's New Room.

The newly furnished reading and club room of the Holy Cross church choir club was opened Saturday night. In honor of the occasion refreshments were served. The room is well stocked with games. It will be open to the boys two afternoons a week.

BREEM LET JOB GO BY

Didn't Want Borough Fire Lieutenancy and Complications Followed.

WEISS HELPED OUT

Rumor Has It That Card Playing Wasn't At the Bottom of Campbell's Resignation.

The resignation of William Campbell as lieutenant and driver in the borough fire department, Friday night, led to complications, yesterday, that threatened the efficiency of the service for a short time. Fred Breem had been appointed to fill the impending vacancy and was to have reported for duty as soon as his predecessor left the fire house. For some reason, however, Breem decided Saturday night that he didn't want the place and so informed Mayor Smalley, though for what reason or reasons has not been made known.

An effort was made to get some one to go on temporarily when Campbell quit but without success and as a last resort, yesterday morning, Chief Marshal Weiss, of the police department, was put in command. He held the p lace until last night, when Fred Emmons volunteered to help out until the Council appoints another man. This will not be done until the first of the new year.

Campbell's resignation has set the borough agog and there are well defined rumors that the order against card playing on the first floor of the fire house was not the real cause of his getting out. Mrs. Grundy has been unusually busy and one of her stories asserts that trouble has been brewing for several months, that the card playing matter brought the thing to a head. Another insists that Mayor Smalley and Campbell have had a personal disagreement about something, the story being strengthened by the chief executive's attitude toward the resignation at Friday night's Council meeting. Though the two had been close friends for years, the Mayor said: "The freedom he (Campbell) has had about the house has made him feel his oats. It is up to the Council to act on the resignation and if I was a member of it I would vote to accept."

Whatever the trouble is, the borough is lining up on sides as it always does and there is no telling where the discussion will end. Campbell has nothing to say and the rest of the people directly interested don't care to be quoted.

STRENGTHENING CHOIR.

New Voices to Be Heard at Trinity Services.

For some time, the music committee of Trinity Reformed church has been trying to obtain soprano and contralto soloists for the chorus choir. Yesterday morning Miss Winifred Carroll, of the borough, contralto, and Miss Ethel Moore, of Cranford, soprano, were given a trial and their voices were so pleasing to the large congregation that they were engaged for one year by the music committee and will enter upon their duties next Sunday, at which time F. S. Cutter will also further strengthen the choir with his full, rich bass voice.

Miss Moore's rendering of "I Shall See Him Face to Face," was sweetly rendered with a great deal of expression, and Miss Carroll's rich, full round contralto voice was fully shown as she sang Buck's "My Redeemer," as an offertory.

Hospital Directors.

The annual meeting of the Somerset Hospital was held Friday night, when Charles Schwed, George A. West, George Terrell, A. W. Mack and William W. Smalley were elected directors. The reports of the various departments indicated that they are in good financial condition. There is a balance in the treasury of $1,113, to say nothing of the recent bequest of $5,000, which will be used for the purpose of enlarging the hospital building. The chairman of the house committee, Mrs. Anna McWilliam, made a detailed report of the cost of running the institution.

Brownsville Probe.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—Entering into the spirit of the Presidents intimation that the courts investigation of his dismissal of negro troops because of their alleged misconduct at Brownsville, Texas, the Senate today adopted two resolutions of inquiry. One, by Senator Penrose, is directed to the President, calling for the transmission of all despatches, letters, reports and other facts connected with the affair. The other, by Senator Foraker, directs production of any similar information in the possession of the Secretary of War.

Rats Get Woman a Divorce.

When a dwelling house is so infested with rats that they jump on the beds a wife is justified in insisting that her husband find forthwith a more cheerful home, and, if he fails, in leaving him, is the decision of Vice-Chancellor Stevenson, of the New Jersey Court of Chancery. Robert Stalee, of Jersey City, brought action for divorce against his wife for desertion. She filed a counter bill, and proved the rats incident and the refusal of her husband to move. She got her decree.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

The Crescent Athletic team, of Newark, which was scheduled to play a game of association football with the Plainfield team, Saturday afternoon, failed to show up and there was no game. Two weeks ago the Newark team was due to appear here, but did not, neither did the management send any word.

Two or three members of the Yale 'varsity team are being considered for the captaincy for next year and Ray Biglow, formerly of this city, is quite likely to land the place. He is conceded to be the best tackle of the season. The election will be held this week. It is admitted that Jones is the only formidable opponent to Biglow and general opinion favors the latter.

Bill Edwards, the football umpire and one of the best officials of the game, was operated on in the Hahneman Hospital, Philadelphia, on Thursday for appendicitis. The operation is said to have been successful. Mr. Edwards was captain of the Princeton eleven in 1899, which defeated Yale. The operation was performed by Dr. Van Lennup, also a Princeton graduate.

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the athletic association of the New York University the 'varsity "N. Y. U." was awarded to the following football men: Captain Van Horne, '07; S. H. Robertson, '07, the manager; J. Brown, '07; L. M. Keefer, '07; H. Carey, '07; H. E. Mowen, '08, captain-elect; J. Arnolt, '09; C. Huffant, '09; J. Friedberg, '09; H. Brown, '10; V. Koad, '10, and J. Eisenbarth, '10. Class medals were awarded to J. Shiras, '09; F. Bennstend, '09; A. Young, '09; L. Wilson, '09; F. Gordon, '10; J. Decker, '10, and W. Brown, '10.

DIAMOND DUST.

Unless President Ebbets, of the Brooklyn Baseball Club, changes his present plans he will sell First Baseman Jordan and Right Fielder Lumley to the New York National League club for $25,000 cash. This offer was made to Ebbets, it is said, some time ago, and the money looks so big that the Brooklyn magnate is now wavering perceptibly. Manager Donovan, of the Brooklyn team, was summoned by Ebbets several days ago and was told that in all probability the New York Club's offer would be accepted. Donovan, so the story goes, became warm under the collar and told Ebbets that if Jordan and Lumley were allowed to go he would send in his resignation. Ebbets argued with Donovan in vain. The manager declared that to sell Jordan and Lumley would be equivalent to killing the game in Brooklyn, where the interest began to revive last season to such an extent that the club made money and paid off a lot of indebtedness. Ebbets, it is reported, then informed Donovan that with part of the money he could get for the two Brooklyn stars he would be able to secure a couple of new men, or perhaps he could secure McGann and Browne from McGraw. But again Donovan put his foot down, declaring that Jordan and Lumley must remain in Brooklyn or Ebbets could look for a new manager.

Although John I. Taylor, of the Boston Americans, talked matters over with Frank Farrell, the owner of the New York Americans, Saturday, no aggrement was reached as to the probable exchange of players between the two clubs. In fact it looks now as if the proposed deal by which James Collins is to go to New York in exchange for Moriarity and Delehanty had fallen through. Farrell said that he did not believe Collins would ever be able to play his best game again and that as the New York club was well fixed for third basemen with Conroy, Laporte and Moriarity he felt like standing pat. There may be a deal, however, by which Pitcher Dineen, of Boston, will play in New York, Jack Chesbro going to the Hub. President Taylor is willing to trade Dineen for Chesbro even up, but the New York officials are not ready to talk business just now. Connie Mack, of the Philadelphia Americans, is expected to have a talk with Taylor, looking to the transfer of Collins to the Quaker team in exchange for a couple of pitchers. Mack has thirty-six players on his list and is willing to deal with anybody.

Would Abolish Grand Jury.

Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 10.—In an address Saturday Deon Huncut, of Cornell Law School, legal advesir to Governor Higgins, advocated abolition of grand juries. He also declared criminal trials are now subtle games with the Judge as umpire. He would restrict presumption of innocence and right of appeal.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

SENATOR KEAN ADMONISHED.

The warning finger has been raised to Senator Kean. He is admonished, not directly, but by implication, that he would better watch what he's about, or the "regulars" will get him in 1911. It is intimated that next year a Governor is to be elected, and three years from next March Governor Stokes will be out of office, and there will be no constitutional provision prohibiting the Legislature from electing him to the United States Senate.

Very significant is this admonition, since it comes mainly from papers that are interested in Senator Dryden, and that are extraordinarily anxious for his re-election. They do not take into account the fact that at the last election this State went Republican by 1,374 plurality, but went anti-Dryden by somewhere between 10,000 and 12,000 plurality. They simply want Mr. Dryden re-elected, and they are not satisfied with cautioning Senator Kean once, but have iterated and reiterated this warning, as if they meant to have it sink deep where it will do most good. They speak it as if they were authorized; they could hardly be more emphatic if Senator Dryden himself had requested them to admonish the senior Senator.

The point of all this apparent interest in the election of 1911 lies in the fact that Union county, the home of Senator Kean, is strongly opposed to the re-election of Senator Dryden. State Senator Ackerman, of Plainfield, was the first member of the incoming Legislature to declare against the Prudential Senator. Leader Perkins, of Westfield, later stated, not once, but several times, that only a few of the so-called leaders in the county favored Dryden, all the people were opposed to him. Assemblyman Tillman, of Rahway, while somewhat non-committal, is not for Dryden, and Mr. Moxon, of Elizabeth, the new Assemblyman-elect, who was purposely nominated by Dryden interests, has been heard to say that about eight out of every ten men he meets are opposed to the re-election of Senator Dryden.

The pointed reference of the Dryden organs to the fact that Governor Stokes will be perfectly eligible in 1911, when Senator Kean's second term expires, simply means that Senator Kean is expected to look after Union county much more sharply; that he had better use his influence with the legislators and bring them into the Dryden column without unnecessary delay, or there will be something doing in the way of retaliation in 1911. It warns, cautions, admonishes and even threatens Senator Kean that his political head will fall unless he does all in his power to whip Union county into line for Dryden.

Senator Kean has not said what he will do or what he is doing. Naturally reticen tin matters relating to himself, and always avoiding contentions and entangling alliances if possible, he seems now to be letting the Union county men act according to the dictates of their consciences, and not interferring with them to any noticeable extent. What the Dryden organs want him to do is to boss Senator Ackerman, Leader Perkins and other legislators and whip them into line, but it is doubtful if Senator Kean will do anything of the kind. He favored Dryden as against Stokes five years ago, and he is probably not so fearful of Stokes today as is Senator Dryden. He knows very well that two United States Senators from two contiguous North Jersey counties will not long be tolerated, and he probably estimates the admonition of the Dryden papers as its true political value. It is of far less importance to Senator Kean in 1911 than it is to Senator Dryden in 1907.—Newark News.

Wings and Flies

By Tom Muir.

George W. Monroe, who comes to the New Plainfield tomorrow night, is well known to local playgoers. In Music Hall days he was an annual visitor and his work in "My Aunt Bridget" and other comedies with Celtic titles is well remembered. His new play, "The Time of Your Life," in which he will be seen here, is from the pen of Charles Klein, the author of "The Music Master" and "The Lion and the Mouse."

For the season directly about the holidays and a few weeks afterward, Manager Counihan has secured a large number of big productions. The majority of them will come direct from long runs in the metropolis and will be among the most pretentious that have yet appeared at the house.

Excruciatingly funny Harry Kelly and all the rest of the original comedians in "His Honor, the Mayor," will return to us next Saturday. There is hardly any doubt but what crowded houses will be the feature at both matinee and night performances as the show easily made the biggest hit of the present season.

The play was Hamlet and the performance was for one night only. All the town people attended the show, and the weekly paper was held open for the notice. The next day the criticism read thusly: "Hamlet was played in our Town Hall last night by Mr. W—— and his company. It was a great social event. There has been a long discussion as to whether Bacon or Shakespeare wrote the plays commonly attributed to Shakespeare. It can be easily settled now: Let the graves of the two writers be opened. The one who turned over last night is the author."

Miss Ethel Barrymore comes to the New Plainfield theatre on Tuesday night, December 17, with the unprecedented Barrie comedy success, "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire," in which she was presented by Charles Frohman at the Criterion theatre in New York for months to crowded houses last season. Scarcely any event of the dramatic season equals in importance the appearance of Miss Barrymore in a new play and when that play is by J. M. Barrie, the author of "The Little Minister" and "Peter Pan," the interest is unusual. Never has the young star been fitted with a better role. "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire" is a gentle and beautiful satire upon the problem play and is rich with the delicious, quaint humor that first captured the American public in "The Little Minister" and that never has been more abundantly or effectively revealed than in the present work. Miss Barrymore plays a charming young mother who, having, presumably, lost the love of her children, discovers by a series of incidents the reason for their lack of affection and at once sets about remedying it. The story told is one of rare novelty and it reveals the Barrie imagination at its finest and fullest. Miss Barrymore has never acted more exquisitely nor to the purpose than she does in this most appealing role. Charles Frohman has provided an exceptionally beautiful production for "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire" and has surrounded the star with a company of unusual merit, including Bruce McRae, again Miss Barrymore's leading man, whose manly portrayal of the lover in "Cousin Kate" and the English suitor in "Sunday" will be favorably remembered.

SAYS JAIL IS TOO SMALL.

Mrs. Williamson's Criticisms May Move Middlesex Commissioners.

New Brunswick, Dec. 10.—The Middlesex County Freeholder Commissioners have in consideration the erection of a new county jail in this city. The recent charges of Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, of Elizabeth, have brought this matter more forcibly than ever before, and they have in contemplation taken the matter up.

The jail has been the cause of more unfavorable criticism than any other institution in the country. The former Board of Freeholders refused to construct a more modern building. The new board contemplates taking the initiative in the matter. The building has been in service for fifty-eight years. It was constructed by Garrigues & Hoagland, former contractors here.

Sheriff Andrew Church and Jailer Charles Rogers both admit that the jail is inadequate, and welcome the news that the commissioners are considering the construction of the new building. Sixty prisoners confined in twenty cells is not an uncommon condition at the institution, it is said, and consequently the best sanitary arrangements cannot always be maintained.

Bishop Repudiates Letter.

So persistent has been the circulation of an "endless chain prayer" letter with which the name of Bishop William Lawrence, of Massachusetts, has been associated that the latter has again disclaimed any connection therewith. From the diocesan house, in Boston, he writes advising all persons to whom a copy of the prayer was sent to destroy it.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The following is the roll of honor in our local school for the month of November: Nellie Hogan, Myrtle Randolph, Willie Bohl, Margaret McGuire, Gladys Thorne, Jessie Hannon, Nellie Harlow, Madeline Reilly, Dorothy Johnson, May Duffy, Laura Roberts, Annie Bohl, Nellie Ryno, William Schenck, Norman Major, Lawrence Randolph, Edgar Riddle, Martin McDonough, Stanley Philips, Arthur Holmes, Veronica Reilly, Mary Nelson, Margaret Nelson, Margaret Hamilton, Marjorie Roberts.

John Maher, a former resident of South Plainfield, died at his home, 526 West 125th street, New York, last Tuesday. The dead man was a member of St. Patrick's Alliance. He was a section boss of the Lehigh Valley Railroad for over thirty years. Besides his wife, three sons survive him. They are William P., John J. and Edward J. Maher.

Mrs. Norman and daughters saw "The Matchmaker" at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon.

Rev. J. A. Cubberley occupied the pulpit of the First Baptist church, of East New York, yesterday.

FATALLY BURNED IN BONFIRE.

Wife of Linden Florist Dies in Elizabeth Hospital.

Elizabeth, Dec. 10.—Mrs. Jules Girtanner, wife of Jules Girtanner, a Linden florist, is dead in the Elizabeth General Hospital, as a result of burns received while trying to extinguish a fire on her premises Saturday afternoon.

A pile of rubbish had been set on fire in the yard, and the flames were communicated to some brush. It seemed to Mrs. Girtanner that the barn was in danger, so she went out to extinguish the blaze. Her clothes caught fire, and although her cries for help soon brought assistance, she was so badly injured as to be past recovery.

Telephone-Police Service.

New York, Dec. 10.—That the New York Telephone Company has decided to widen the scope of its business was learned yesterday, when it was stated that the company had acquired control of the Holmes Electric Protective Company and would engage in the private police business. For more than a year the officers of the telephone company have been considering the advisability of taking over the control of the Holmes company and establishing a guardianship ober private houses and business buildings into which its wires run. Practically all the plans have been perfected, and if the actual control of the Holmes company has not already passed to the New York Telephone Company matters are in such shape that the announcement will be made by the telephone company within a few days.

Think We Must Fight Japs.

Paris, Dec. 10.—Continental opinion is keenly interested in American-Japanese relations, the general view being that the peace of the world is endangered by Japan's increasing pretensions. It is useless blinking the fact. People here believe war between the United States and Japan can be averted only by a miracle. Indeed, it is easy to detect in the newspaper comments a faint surprise that Japan does not strike now when the chances of success are all in her favor. It is useless blinking the fact that European military experts have not a high opinion of America's military capabilities. A Belgian cavalry captain, for example, in a letter to the Herald's European edition remarks: "Belgium could beat the Americans on land."

Hear Duma Member.

New York, Dec. 10.—More than five thousand Hebrews gathered in Durland's Riding Academy, Central Park West and Sixty-sixth street, last night, to hear Dr. Shmaryahu Lewin, who was a member of the Russian Duma, tell about the conditions of the Hebrews in Russia. Three thousand more stood outside for the doors were closed when the place was filled.

LITERARY.

The December National, from the cover, which is ornamented by one of Manning's striking heads, to the last page of the magazine, is attractive, and its contents unusually interesting. The frontispieces are a cartoon, "The Skating Season Has Opened," and a fine half-tone of the "U. S. Battleship Louisiana." "Affairs at Washington," by Joe Mitchell Chapple, is replete with those interesting things which everyone wants to know about the national capital. "The Bright Side of Packingtown," by Mary Humphrey, dispels many illusions and shows that the great institutions and homes of this much discussed community are grossly maligned by authors who have said that they are "unable to find one ray of sunshine to brighten the lives of these people, save such as they are able to get out of drunkenness."

Seldom if ever has a single issue of a magazine offered such a wealth and variety of good reading as is to be found in the Christmas Atlantic. The key note is struck at the very outset in a delightful and shrewdly-pointed essay, "Christmas and the Literature of Disillusion" by that most genial of the Autocrat's descendants, Samuel McChord Crothers. It is a wholesome, optimistic—and withal seasonable—protest that he makes, and is sure to find a wide echo. In a remarkable article on "New National Forces and the Old Law" Dean Bigelow, of Boston University Law School, points out the failure of our common law to meet modern crimes of combination, and asserts that some new weapon must be forged for the defense of society. Mrs. Wharton appears next in the number with a fascinating account of automobile touring in France; and there is a picturesque article by Havelock Ellis, "The Spirit of Present-Day Spain," in which he tells of the transformation of that land of romance as it rebounds from defeat and brings itself abreast of the present.

The Christmas number of The American Boy is a winner. From its two-color front cover, showing a lively skating scene, to the last word of the last page, it is replete with matter to stir the heart of a boy. Its principal features are further chapters in the serials—"Plupy in Peace and War," by Judge Shute, "In Defense of His Flag," by Stratemeyer, "The Camp Fire of Mad Anthony," by Tomlinson, and "The Young Book Agent," by Alger. An extended biographical sketch of Peter Cooper and a description of how boys are punished in the chief schools of England are two noteworthy features. The departments relating to boy organizations; The American Boy Legion of Honor; Stamp, Coin, and Curio Collecting; Amateur Photography; Mechanics and Electricty; prize essays and puzzles, are crammed full of good things. $1 a year. The Sprague Publishing Company, Detriot, Mich.

Catches Her Husband at Sea.

New York, Dec. 10.—While on her way to this country to search for her husband, who had deserted her and her two children in their home in Poland, Mrs. A. Turtletrauber came face to face with her missing spouse on the steamship Graf Waldersee in the middle of the Atlantic. Mrs. Turtletrauber was a steerage passenger. Her husband was a fireman on the ship. When the couple met on the deck the woman administered such a severe beating to her husband that the ship's officers were obliged to interfere. The husband was made a prisoner until the vessel reached port yesterday. He will be turned over to the immigration authorities.

The New Jersey Silver Service.

Trenton, Dec. 10.—The silver service, costing $10,000, which is to be presented to the United States battleship New Jersey by the people of this State, was received at the State House Saturday. Some experts say that it is the finest display of silver ever given by any commonwealth to a warship. The commission which arranged for the purchase of the gift met at the State Capitol and formally accepted the service. It was decided to place the set on exhibition at the State House on Monday and Tuesday of next week. A detail from the National Guard will be selected to guard it.

No More "D. H."

New York, Dec. 10.—Clarence H. Mackey, president of the Postal Telegraph Cable Company, stated today that the board of directors of that company had passed the following resolutions: Resolved, That owing to changed conditions, it has been found necessary to stop all free transmissions of messages, and this company will discontinue its free messages on and after January 1, 1907, and no free service whatever will be performed thereafter. Outstanding franks will be honored up to and including December 31, 1906."

California Calmer.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—California's anger toward President Roosevelt because of his pro-Japanese pupils in the San Francisco schools is beginning to cool. The announcement that President Roosevelt seeks a treaty whereby Japanese immigration into this country will be restricted has caused the resentment of Wednesday somewhat to abate. The change was especially marked in the remarks made today by Senator Perkins, of California, after he had called upon the President.

Chi Psi Memorial Service.

Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 10.—A memorial service for the four students and three firemen who lost their lives in the fire that destroyed the Chi Psi fraternity Lodge, was held in Sage chapel, on the Cornell campus, yesterday. Dr. James F. Brodie, a Congregationalist clergyman of Auburndale, Mass., preached the sermon. The chapel was crowded to the doors with students and other members of the university community, including Dr. Schurman and members of the faculty. A section at the right of the main aisle was reserved for the members of the alumni of the Chi Psi Fraternity.

Sailors Obtain Funds.

Newport, R. I., Dec. 10.—To carry to the highest court in the land the case of the sailors who are suing the Newport Amusement Association for excluding them from their dance pavilion there are now sufficient funds in hand, states the Bluejacket, a periodical published at the training station in the interest of the naval apprentices. Among the subscriptions are $100 from President Roosevelt, previously announced; $100 from Theodore B. Starr, of New York.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

George Monroe, the funny and universal favorite of the comedy stage, is to be seen here tomorrow night for one performance in his latest hit, entitled "The Time of Your Life." This farce has been written by the popular writer of today, Charles Klein, author of "The Lion and the Mouse" and "The Music Master." This farce is a hypnotic satire on fads and fancies of the day. It is told musically and it possesses a group of well known singers, together with an ensemble of vaudeville performers in support, offering polite evidence of their individual talant including the celebrated Mendelssohn Quintette, besides expert dancing by well known dancers. Mr. Monroe will be seen in two distinct characters, an Irishman and his well known delineation of a woman. This farce has caught the fancy of the public in the various cities already visited.

Something new in the amusement field is always a welcome visitor, and the coming of Rowland & Clifford's newest comedy dramatic success, "Thorns and Orange Blossoms," should not be an exception to the rule. "Thorns and Orange Blossoms" is a play of the standard school and not a poorly written affair. Many are acquainted with the story as the famous author, Bertha M. Clay, wrote it, and the dramatization has been made by Lem B. Parker in a masterly manner. Rowland & Clifford have environed the piece with an elaborate scenic mounting and placed the different characters in hands of prominent and reputable players, and thus an extraordinary production is the result. "Thorns and Orange Blossoms" is booked at the New Plainfield theatre for next Wednesday, matinee and night.

"It's All Your Fault," by Edgar Selwyn, a farce pure and simple, with Charles J. Stine and Miss Olive Evans in two leading roles, is to be produced by Manager Edward R. Saltor at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night. This play has been heralded as being distinctively novel in construction, complications and situations. It is an ingenious farce, rapid in action, full of movement and abounding in witty lines that are not only funny in themselves but doubly so in connection with the situations which they apply. Even in the last act when matters are supposed to be brought to satisfactory conclusion, the author gives a deft turn that upsets all of one's calculation and arouses a new interest that only subsides as the curtain falls.

The task of constructing a clean, wholesome and entertaining play of dramatic strength, which shall have all the requisite novelty that is demanded by the public, is no light one, and in presenting "The Governor's Pardon" at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night the management feel they have accomplished everything that could be desired. The play is a novelty in itself, and in addition to this it contains a sufficiency of out of the way incidents and scenes to make it one of the most remarkable performances ever given on a stage. Hardly an idea or a divice that has ever been employed before has been made use of, and it may safely be called the most completely different play of the year.

GOTHAM'S AMUSEMENTS

Empire theatre—John Drew in the fourth month of his most imporant triumph is still playing to capacity audiences at the Empire theatre, New York. He has for his opposite in the comedy Miss Margaret Illington whose superb impersonation of the rebellious wife adds to the charm and completeness of the performance.

Hudson theatre—"The Hypocrites" is drawing so strongly at the Hudson theatre, New York, that Charles Frohman has cleared its path and give it a chance to run there through the entire season. Mr. Frohman has given it a remarkable cast, every member of which has been specially selected for his part, and the result is a performance that always evokes enthusiasm. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Criterion theatre—The phenomenal success of Hattie Williams in "The Little Cherub," the dainty musical play, continues at the Criterion theatre, New York. Miss Williams and the "Cherub" are in their fifth month here playing to capacity audiences and with their popularity at such a high pitch that there is no telling when New York will be willing to let them go. It is also the funniest of the musical plays and likewise the daintiest. Miss Williams and her host of clever entertainers give a dazzling, dashing and delightful performance that lasts for over three hours. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Four prizes for Cochin Bantams.

Charles F. Hulet, of Hunter avenue, was among the Plainfielders whose entries captured prizes at the Paterson Poultry Show. He was awarded four firsts for white cochin bantams, one each for a cock, a cockerel, a hen and a pullet. They were some of the stock recently secured from Gray brothers at Scotch Plains.

Mrs. Edward P. Gavin, of Columbia avenue, is convalescing from an attack of the grip.

Miss Mamie Lannon, of West Front street, has been visiting relatives at Martinsville.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON, Author of The Spenders

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

"You were right, Bishop, I need to be more practical. The olive branch and not the sword would Ephraim extend to Japheth, but if—"

"Let the Wrath of God Abide Upon 'Em."

"If Japheth don't toe the mark the Lord's will must be worked upon him!"

"So be it, Brother Seth! I am ready now to be a Son of Dan."

The Bishop rose from in front of their fire and looked about. No one was near. Here and there a fire blazed, and the embers of many more could be seen dying out in the distance. The nearest camp was that of the fever-stricken man who had fled on to the boat that morning with his child in his arms. They could see his shaven head in the firelight, and a woman hovering over him as he lay on the ground with a tattered quilt fixed over him in lieu of a tent. From another group came the strains of an accordion and the chorus of a hymn.

"That's right," said the Bishop. "I knew you'd come to it. I saw that long ago. Brother Brigham saw it, too. We knew you could be relied on. You want the oath, do you?"

"Yes, yes, Brother Seth. I was ready for it this morning when they told me about father."

"Hold up your right hand and repeat after me:

"'In the name of Jesus Christ, the Son of God, I do covenant and agree to support the first Presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, in all things right or wrong; I will faithfully guard them and report to them the acts of all men as far as in my power lies; I will assist in executing all the decrees of the first President, Patriarch, or President of the Twelve, and I will cause all who speak evil of the Presidency or Heads of the Church to die the death of dissenters or apostates, unless they speedily confess and repent, for pestilence, persecution, and death shall follow the enemies of Zion. I will be a swift herald of salvation and messenger of peace to the Saints, and I will never make known the secret purposes of this Society called the Sons of Dan, my life being the forfeiture in a fire of burning tar and brimstone. So help me God and keep me steadfast.'"

He repeated the words without hesitation, with fervor in his voice, and the light of a holy and implacable zeal in his face.

"Now I'll give you the blessing, too. Wait till I get my bottle of oil."

He stepped to the nearest wagon, felt under the cover and came back with a small bottle in his hand.

"Stand jest here—so—now!"

They stood at the edge of the wavering firelight, and he put his hand on the other's head.

"'In the name of Jesus Christ, the Son of God, and by the authority of the Holy Priesthood, the first President, Patriarch, and High Priest of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, representing the first, second and third Gods in Heaven, the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, I do now anoint you with holy consecrated oil, and by the imposition of my hands do ordain and set you apart for the holy calling whereunto you are called; that you may consecrate the riches of the Gentiles to the House of Israel, bring swift destruction upon apostate sinners, and execute the decrees of Heaven without fear of what man can do with you. So mote it be. Amen.'

"There, boy, if I ain't mistaken, that's the best work for Zion that I done for some time. Now be off to your rest!"

"Good night, Bishop, and thank you for being kind to me! The Church Poet called me the Lute of the Holy Ghost, but I feel to-night that I must be another Lion of the Lord. Good nig[illegible]"

CHAPTER VII.

Some Inner Mysteries Are Expounded.

The hosts of Israel had been forced to tarry for the winter on the banks of the Missouri. A few were on the east side at Council Bluffs on the land of the Pottawattamie Indians. Across the river on the land of the Omahas the greater part of the force had settled at what was known as Winter Quarters. Here in huts of logs, turf, and other primitive materials, their town had been laid out with streets and byways, a large council-house, a mill, a stockade, and blockhouses. The Indians had received them with great friendliness, feeling with them a common cause of grievance, since the heavy hand of the Gentile had pushed them also to this bleak frontier.

To this settlement early in November came the last train from Nauvoo, its members wearied and wasted by the long march, but staunch in their faith and with hope undimmed. If was told in after years how there had leaped from the van of this train a very earnest young man, who had at once sought an audience with Brigham Young and certain other members of the Twelve who had chanced to be present at the train's arrival; and how, being closeted with these, he had eagerly inquired if it might not be the will of the Lord that they should go no farther into the wilderness, but stand their ground and give battle to the Gentiles forthwith. He made the proposal as one who had a flawless faith that the God of Battles would be with them, and he appeared to believe that something might be done that very day to force the matter to an issue. When he had made his proposal, he waited in a modest attitude to hear their views of it. To his chagrin, all but two of those who had listened laughed. One of these two, Bishop Snow—a man of holy aspect whom the Church Poet had felicitiously entitled the Entablature of Truth—had looked at him searchingly, then put his hand upon his own head and shaken it hopelessly to the others.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE "CURE" SEEMS TO FADE.

Luga Boy Apepars to Be Getting as Bad as the One Originally.

Frank Luga, of Suydam street, New Brunswick, who a few weeks ago rejoiced in the fact that his little son, who had been a cripple during his life, was growing much better under t ehinfluence of Christian Science treatment, is not so enthusiastic now over the benefits of such a treatment.

The boy had been taken in charge by Miss Christine Most, of this city, who took him to her home and so cured him that he was able to walk about and accompany her on trips to New York. Before the treatment the boy had been unable to walk at all.

Recently the child was brought back to his home here, and his father thought that the boy had been cured. But his condition at once became worse and today he is little if any better than he was before the eratment. Miss Most is still interested in the case and makes two visits a week to New Brunswick to attend to the boy.

Freethinkers Threaten.

New York, Dec. 10.—Affairs are approaching an acute stage in the warfare that the Bohemian atheists are waging against Father Prout, of St. John's Catholic church, in East Seventy-second street, and against the Christians generally in the Bohemian colony. Father Prout Saturday received a "black hand" letter written in the Bohemian language, threatening to "settle" him with a "chunk of lead" if he did not desist from Christian instruction and his opposition to the teaching of atheism in the freethinkers' Bohemian school, in No. 821 East Seventy-third street. At his home last night the priest said he did not know how serious the threat might be, "and I don't care," said he, "for a man can die for worse things than the truth."

He'll Buy 1,333,333 Drinks.

South Norwalk, Conn., Dec. 10.—"Now I intend to have as many drinks as I have made in my lifetime," said Harry Reed, a barkeeper, yesterday, when informed that a wealthy aunt had died in Wallingford, leaving him her entire fortune, which is estimated at $200,000. "I'll be a bad boy as long as it lasts, all right," he added, "and then I can go back to making cocktails for others, I suppose. As long as it lasts, I won't make a drink, though."

Y. M. C. A. FIVE BUMPED VERY HARD IN NEWARK

SLAUGHTERED BY AN AWAKENED TEAM—SECONDS ALSO LOST.

Bubbling with a wholesale infusion of young blood, the Plainfield five in the Y. M. C. A. basketball league went to Newark, Saturday night, to make up for the game lost to Passaic the week before. What they did was to give the Newarks a beautiful and hurriedly-seized chance to break the hoodoo and win their first victory; also they furnished the mark at which the Newarks shot a total of points within one of the record at the Newark gymnasium. Score, 54 to 11.

Newark showed a complete reversal of form, and the game was the best that has been played on their floor this season. They made the first goal, and the hoodoo under which the home team seemed to play this season was broken.

If the Plainfield men had possessed greater accuracy at this point in shooting goals, they might have won the game right there, for their team work at times in the first half completely baffled the home players, and they often had what amounted to tries at free throws, but did not seem able to avail themselves of their opportunities.

Plainfield started in fast, and the ball was in Newark territory most of the time in the first half, but the Newarkers managed to keep their record spotless, except for one tally that was made against them in the last few minutes of play.

Newark's play in the second half was little short of cyclonic. When ten minutes of play had passed in the second half, the score stood 30 points for Newark, and the crowd began to call for a total of a half-century. It seemed almost impossible of accomplishment in the short period of play left, but the Newarkers started in with a vim that took their opponents well-nigh off their feet. Before five minutes of play had passed, the desired sum was reached.

Throughout the game the play was comparatively clean. There was a minimum of holding, and the offenses were not of such a character as to spoil the effect of the play.

The score:

Newark.	Plainfield.
Stiers	Aalholm
right forward
Vreeland, Van Rensselaer	Thompson
left forward
Chase, Vreeland	Collier centre
Pollard	Jacot
right guard
left guard

Score at end of first half—Newark, 14; Plainfield, 3. *Final score—Newark, 54; Plainfield, 11. Goals from field—Siters, 6; Van Rennselaer, 3; Vreeland, 15; Chase, Pollard, Thompson, 3; Jacot. Free throws—Pollard 2; Jacot. Referee—Stillman, Trinity. Timers—Guest, Newark; Anson, Plainfield. Time of halves—20 minute.

*One point awarded Plainfield for Newark foul.

The game between the junior fives of the two associations was not such a runaway contest as the first. In the first half it looked as though the Newark lads entirely outclassed the visitors, but in the second period of play the Plainfield juniors scored within one of as many points as did the Newarkers. The line-up:

Newark Junior.	Plainfield Junior.
right forward
Haylor	Templin
left forward
Seidlee	Gavett
centre
Kerr, Brown	Loizeaux
right guard
left guard

Score at end of first half—Newark, 16; Plainfield, 6. Final score—Newark, 28; Plainfield, 17. Goals from field—Greenlief, 2; Haylor, Seidler, 2; Kerr, 2; Brown, 4; Austin, 2; Rumsey, Templin, Loizeaux, 4; Gavett. Free throws—Seidler, Austin, Rumsey, 3. Referee—Stillman, Trinity. Timers—Guest, Newark; Anson, Plainfield. Time of halves—15 minute.

BOWLING.

That awful sound as though some one was breaking wood on the kitchen floor is Harry Montgross explaining to the sharks why he didn't go into the two-man team tourney. He didn't think he was fast enought but on doing an example in addition and division Saturday, he found he has an average of 180. Ever since Harry has been applying vigorous kicks to himself and the sight of the pins gives him that tired feeling.

Charles Meyer, Jr., one of the fastest bowlers turned out by the Gesang and Turn Verein, is a member of the Westfield team in the Woodmen of the World tourney now in progress. Four camps are entered, the other three being from Elizabeth. Meyer is hitting the pins for his usual good average and is acting as Westfield's anchor.

The local postoffice clerk's team, which was defeated by the carriers, last week, is anxious for another try. The men on it claim they didn't have a fair shake as "Bill" Thorn, their best man, was unable to be on hand and they had to roll a "dummy" in his place. The carriers seem inclined to try it over again and an exciting match is awaited, provided, of course, that "Bill" is on the clerks' team.

Frank Burke, the Elizabeth baseball magniate, will, on January 1, become proprietor of a bowling academy. The building is now in course of construction and preparations are being made to install six alleys. The academy will be located in Elizabethport, near the Star baseball grounds, and will embody all the latest improvements for the sport.

An interesting bit of pin hitting was witnessed at McLaughlin's Saturday night, when Sam Felver struck the bunch for a sweep. Nine of them went down but the No. 7 pin slid from its corner clear to the middle of the alley, swung around like a whirling Dervish and then sped back directly to the spot from which it started. It rocked for fully a minute and then in a tantalizing way, settled down to await another ball.

FOOTBALL.

Football is not all gore and strenuosity. Witness this line that the Dunellen gridiron warriors plowed into at the Hotel Waldorf last Thursday night: Blue points, consomme, celery, olives, gherkins, striped bass with white wine sauce, banana fritters, roast turkey, cranberry sauce, mashed potatoes, stewed corn, mince pie, pumpkin pie, pudding, tea and coffee. The dinner was tendered to the eleven by the Dunellen A. C.

(Other sporting news on page three).

Mock Trial Cast.

The cast of the mock trial to be held by the juniors of the Y. M. C. A. Friday night has been filled. The members of it are as follows: H. W. Barrows, Harold Robins, Walter Caldwell, John Loizeaux, Charles Loizeaux, Fred Smith, Dudley Wilcox, Sherwood Parsons, G. Fountain, Stanley Roblins, Leslie Leland, Frank Wilcox, Stanley Karner, Heber Cubberly, Paul Revere Collier, Clyde Doane, Leslie Bond, Lawrence Bromfield, G. Hartley, Frank Foster, Edgar Freeman, Frank Loizeaux, Arthur Bingaman.

Fowler Is In Congress.

Representative Charles N. Fowler, of New Jersey, was present at the opening of Congress Monday, and was there all the week. The Fifth District man is encouraged by the recent agitation in banking and financial circles of the currency reform question, no less than by the President's recommendation that the matter be given prompt attention, and is arranging for an early meeting of his committee to prepare and report a currency reform bill, which he hopes will obtain an early hearing in the House.

Fair at Hope Chapel.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Hope chapel will conduct a fair in the Sunday-school rooms, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights of this week. There will be a nightly musical programme in addition to the usual programme. The Men's Club of the chapel will have charge of one of the booths and it will have many novel features.

SINGER CO. WILL APPEAL.

Objects to Assessment Total for Purposes of Taxation.

Elizabeth, Dec. 10.—Notice was given to the City Council at its meeting Friday night that the Singer Manufacturing Company had served an appeal from the assessment imposed by the local assessor, and would carry the matter to the State Board for the Equalization of Taxes. By recommendation of Comptroller Bonnett, the matter was referred to the city attorney.

The Singer Manufacturing Company wants the valuation of its property decreased $1,000,000. The valuation imposed by the 1906 assessment is as follows: Real estate and buildings, $2,462,182; personality, $1,000,000; total $3,462,182. Last year the valuation was: Real estate and buildings, $892,900; personalty, $450,000; total, $1,342,900. The estimate of the Singer Company as to the legitimate valuation of its property is as follows: Buildings, $1,500,000; water front, $153,750; machinery, $450,000; land, $250,000; making a total of $2,353,750.

The communication of the comptroller giving notice of appeal from the assessment was signed by T. E. Hardenbergh, treasurer of the Singer Manufacturing Company.

PULL WORKS NO LONGER.

New Brunswick Constable Finds That Silence Is Golden.

New Brunswick, Dec. 10.—Richard Peltier, who has been a court constable and an officer for the prosecutor's office for many years, will not serve at the opening of court here today, Sheriff Church having left him off of the list of appointments for this term. Peltier claims that the sheriff is trying to punish him for talking too much about the result of the last election. Peltier claimed openly that if Colonel Alexander Fordyce had been the Republican candidate instead of Senator W. H. C. Jackson, George S. Silzer, the Democratic candidate would never have been elected Senator. Sheriff Church declines to discuss the matter.

During the last three years Peltier has drawn almost as much money from the county for services as the rest of the constables put together, having been awarded all of the fat jobs.

TWICE IN PERIL, STILL LIVES.

Johnson Fell Twenty Feet, Striking Live Electric Wire.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 10.—Harry A. Johnson, a lineman of this city, had a miraculous escape from death yesterday.

He fell from the top of a twenty-foot telephone pole near Lawrenceville and struck a cross guy wire, which, unknown to the linemen, had been charged with electricity and sent a bolt of 2,200 volts through his body. He was picked up unconscious.

The surgeons of McKinley Hospital, where he was taken, believe that he will recover, although he is suffering much from shock. Johnson's fall was due to the slipping of his spurs.

SUES COUNTY FOR INJURIES.

Cranford Man to Bring Suit Against Board of Freeholders.

Cranford, Dec. 10.—Because a plank in the bridge over the Cranford river was loose and resulted in the breaking of his leg, Bernard A. Doyle, of this place, has brought suit against the Board of Freeholders for his injuries.

Freeholder Emmor K. Adams says the trolley company is responsible for the accident, as the contract with the freeholders for the use of the bridge requires it to make all necessary repairs, and also assume responsibility for the structure.

Plumber Was Full.

Samuel Malloy, a plumber, drank a wee bit too much at a gathering of his fellow-workmen yesterday afternoon, and ran afoul of Patrolman Myers after leaving the meeting. He was penitent this morning in court, and Judge Runyon suspended sentence.

PRIEST BANS A RINK.

Father Reynolds Forbids Young Women to Attend It.

A roller skating rink was opened in Red Bank, N. J., Saturday, and yesterday Father James A. Reynolds, in St. James' R. C. church, denounced it.

In proof of his charges he told about a rink which existed in a former parish of his and he forbade the young women of his parish to visit the rink. He said if he learned that any of them attended the rink he might be tempted to read their names publicly in church.

Journeymen Plumbers Meet.

Representative journeymen plumbers from various parts of the State held a meeting in Trade Council Hall, yesterday afternoon, to discuss matters of general interest and importance to the trade. This was one of a number of similar meetings arranged for in different parts of New Jersey, the object being to strengthen the organization and increase its membership.

At a reception service in St. Mary's church, last night, forty-eight members were received into the recently organized society, the Young Ladies' Sodality of the Blessed Virgin, and 112 into the Children of Mary. Drowning Child Rescued.

Acting Detective Hansen, of Jersey City, yesterday afternoon rescued Frank Litowski, four years old, of No. 478 Pacific avenue, from drowning in the Morris canal, into which he had fallen while at play.

SCRATCH CAUSED DEATH.

Little Child Was Scratch by Dog With Fatal Results.

As an indirect result of being scratched on the face by a dog, Eleanor Harold Braider, the three-and-a-half years old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford A. Braider, of East Front street, died yesterday. The child was playing in the yard some time ago and the dog in its romping inflicted a long scratch on her face, running from the eye down to the upper lip. It healed up, evidently, but eryespelas developed where the wound had been and despite every medical attntion, proved fatal.

The funeral will be held at the parents' home and will be private.

SEARCHING FOR DIAMONDS.

Early Experiences of One Man in South Africa.

J. B. Robinson, the South African millionaire, told an interviewer his early experiences in searching for diamonds. "The news spread like wildfire through the countryside that a white man was giving away wagons and oxen for bits of stone. I set all the natives who came to work to seek diamonds on one side of the river," says Mr. Robinson, "and I fetched up my own 50 men to hunt for diamonds among the bushes and scrub on my side of the vaal. * * * Next morning at sunrise I was startled by a loud halla-bulloing, and, looking out, I saw a whole gang of my men rushing toward me in a state of great excitement. One of them had found a diamond of good size; they all had come to see what I would do with it. 'What will you give me for it?' says he. 'I will give you ten cows,' I replied, and sent the man into the herd to take his pick, and he marked ten of the best cows as his own. They had never dreamed of making such a bargain. Ten cows for a bit of stone; Off they went again, and found diamonds every day; they all became rich, and I accumulated a good store of precious stones. We made a belt full of small pockets, in each of which we placed a diamond. When the belt was filled my partner girded it about his body and started for Cape Town. He never took off his belt until he reached London. And it was in this way that the first consignment of African diamonds reached London."

Stuttering.

Of the etiology of stuttering we know nothing definite, says the Lancet. Direct inheritance is rare, and possibly imitation is the chief factor when father and son are affected. There is usually a well-marked neurotic inheritance, others in the family having various forms of nervous complaints. But I have not been able to confirm Charcot's statement that stuttering and ordinary facial paralysis frequently occur in the same family. Shocks, frights and debility after some acute illness are the causes to which the onset is most frequently attributed by parents. Imitation is undoubtedly an occasional cause, children having often been known to start the habit when put in charge of a stuttering nursemaid. A friend of mine who was extremely fond of horses and was hardly to be kept out of the stables acquired a most obstinate stutter from the groom. Adenoid vegetations are often met with and are important as a predisposing cause, since they tend to prevent the proper filling of the chest with air. When present they should be removed as a preliminary measure, although it must not be expected that their removal will lead to a prompt cessation of the stutter.

Birds Made to Order.

"The Japanese can make birds to order," said an ornithologist. "With their indomitable patience and their incomparable ingenuity, they can produce new kinds of birds as a milliner can produce new kinds of hats.

"They have a pet sparrow that is perfectly white. Do you know how they make him? Well, they take a pair of the palest sparrows they can find, and keep them in a white cage in a white room, where their only attendant is a white-robed servant. The result, after a series of generations, is a pure white sparrow. Or so, at least, the Japanese have told me.

"They breed also a rooster with a tail almost as big as a peacock's. First, they say, they select a rooster with a very fine tail. They make him stand on a high perch, and they drag his tail downward; they stretch it out, with weights. So they do with the best-tailed of his descendants for some years, and in the end an enormously tailed rooster is obtained."

Had to Go.

Oscar Hammerstein was smiling at the extravagant attentions that are lavished by the rich upon pet dogs. He spoke of the canine operations for appendicitis, the canine tooth-crownings, the canine wardrobes that have recently amazed New York, and then he said: "How servants hate these pampered curs! At a house where I was calling one warm day the fat and pompous butler entered the drawing room and said: 'Did you ring, madam?'

"'Yes, Harrison. I wish you to take Fido out walking for two hours.'

"Harrison frowned slightly. 'But Fido won't follow me, madam,' he said.

"'Then, Harrison, you must follow Fido.'"

Mrs. Archibald Deming Davis, of Lakewood, is at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Bowen, of Watchung avenue, recovering from an operation for appendicitis.

WILL HILLERY REVOLT?

May Refuse to Go Into Caucus If Dryden People Make Deal.

PERKINS IS STILL FIRM

Interesting Developments Expected At Trenton Today—Stokes May Get Plum.

While a reported deal between the South Jersey leaders and the managers of Senator Dryden, whereby Senator Minch, of Cumberland county, is to be supported for President of the State Senate in the coming Republican caucus to select a United States Senatorial candidate, has made friends for Dryden, Senator Thomas J. Hillery, of Morris, and the two county Assemblymen may revolt and refuse to go into the caucus.

South Jersey is the whole show as far as the Republican party is concerned, and Dryden has awakened to that fact. If the deal between the Dryden managers and the friends of Minch is confirmed then there passes out of probability the candidacy of Governor Stokes as the compromise man for Senator.

Hillery is a great admirer of Governor Stokes and refuses to be turned down. He will make a fight for the Presidency of the Senate, and if turned down may launch the Stokes boom and if that boom is ever launched the Stokes adherents say it will result in such a tidal wave that will sweep Dryden out of the way almost instantly. Assemblyman Perkins, of Union county, is as stubborn as Hillery refusing to make peace at any price.

These matters are being talked over seriously today by the legislators gathered for the most important Tuesday yet seen since the last election.

The Democrats will caucus for House officers and the Republicans will talk over this latest feature of politics today. That the Democrats will agree is not certain. That the hand of ex-United States Senator James W. Smith will be shown is quite probable. Davis, the boss of the Hudson county Democrats, is determined to win against Smith, and if he can not win he wants to have Smith's hand shown up.

Smith can win with Assemblyman Holcombe for Speaker if he can get three of the Passaic county delegates and rumor has it that he can control four.

HOTEL TAX PROTEST.

J. A. Staats Thinks Iroquois Property Is Rated Too High.

Through his counsel, W. L. Hetfield, Jr., J. A. Staats, owner of the Hotel Iroquois, has petitioned the Union County Equalization Tax Board for a reduction of the assessment on the property. He contends that the assessment is much higher a foot than that on surrounding property.

The Iroquois lot is assessed at $194.25 a foot; there are eighty-seven feet. The building itself is assessed at $18,000.

Mr. Skiff's Recital.

Regarding Miss Mae Jean Colt, who is to assist Mr. Skiff at his recital on Thursday evening, the New Haven Evening Register says as follows: "To Miss Colt belongs the undoubted triumph of the evening. She is petite, young, pretty and clever and what other weapons should she need to win her hearers. She gave the Chamber Scene from the 'Christian' with much dramatic spirit and a well-modulated voice. She aroused a tumult of applause and gave a half humorous, half pathetic, little encore imitating a boot-black giving a shine and talking to his patron during the process." ***

Mrs. Peterson's Funeral.

DISCLAIMS KNOWLEDGE OF DRYDEN PETITION

BALL DOESN'T KNOW HIS AGENTS ARE ACTIVE IN SENATORIAL FIGHT.

That there has been and is a movement to secure signature to a petition being circulated throughout the State favoring the re-election of Senotor John F. Dryden, appears to be a fact. That the Prudential Insurance Company is behind the effort is denied by Superintendent Charles E. Ball, who is in charge of the local office of the Prudential Insurance Company.

In a conversation with a reporter for The Daily Press, Mr. Ball said today, that he had been out of the city on a two weeks vacation and that he returned home yesterday. Since then he had learned that during his absence a man unknown to him, and who disclaimed any connection with the Prudential Insurance Company, called at the local office and, he says, had left several blanks in the form of petitions, the heading of which urged the re-election of Senator Dryden. Assistant Superintendent Bittenbender was in charge of the office while Mr. Ball was away and he informed the latter upon his return of the visit of the man who appeared to be working in the interest of Mr. Dryden, it is said.

Mr. Ball declares that from his own personal knowledge he knows of no effort being made by his agents to secure signatures to such petitions as described and furthermore says he does not believe that the Prudential Insurance Company is interested in the re-election of Mr. Dryden to the extent of circulating petitions throughout the State in an effort to get the signatures of policyholders of the company. He says that if there is such a movement he knows nothing about it.

G. L. RECORD INDICTED FOR CRIMINAL LIBEL

AFTERMATH OF RECENT PRIMARY CANDIDACY FOR U. S. SENATOR.

The Hudson County Grand Jury at Jersey City yesterday returned forty-three indictments, among them being two against Corporation Counsel George L. Record and Police Justice Frank J. Higgins, of the First Criminal Court, both members of Mayor Fagan's cabinet. Mr. Record is indicted on a charge of criminal libel, also Justice Higgins.

During the primaries preceding the last election, Mr. Record, who had announced himself a candidate for United States Senator, made a speech from the rear end of a truck, in front of the Jersey City City Hall, in which he charged the Secretary of State, Samuel Dickinson, Republican leader of Hudson county, with being a paid agent of the Public Serivce Corporation and one who sought political patronage for that company.

Colonel Dickinson resented Record's speech, and threatened a suit for damages. The matter was referred to the Grand Jury. Judge Higgins is implicated because he obtained copies of Record's speech and handed them out among certain newspaper reporters.

DECOY LETTER CAUGHT WOMAN SHOPLIFTER.

Police Say She Is One of Cleverest in the Business in This Country.

County Detective Galatian, of Elizabeth, went to New York City yesterday and with the assistance of Detective Sergeants Heith and Spencer caught Agnes Duschnan, who is accused of having stolen $200 worth of jewelry from the store of Rudolph Brunner, in Westfield.

According to the police the woman is one of the cleverest shoplifters in the country. She was found through decoy letters sent by Detective Galatian to relatives of hers in Leipsic, Germany. The detective was in correspondence with these relatives for some time before he could get the desired information as to where he could find her.

She was taken to Elizabeth and will be tried in the Court of Common Pleas.

Only Routine Matters.

Owing to the very stormy night there was a small attendance at the regular meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, at the Casino last night. Only matters of a routine nature were considered, it being decided to defer other things of more importance until another time when more members can attend.

—David Thickstun has been assigned a part in the mock trial to be presented by the Y. M. C. A. juniors Friday night.

SENATOR LODGE ASKS FOR CONGO INQUIRY

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED IN THE SENATE FOR ACTION BY U. S.

Senator Lodge introduced in the Senate yesterday the following resolution, which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

"Whereas, The reports of inhuman treatment inflicted upon the native inhabitants of the Congo Free State have been of such a nature and so well sustained as to draw the attention of the civilized world and to excite the compassion of the people of the United States; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That in the opinion of the Senate of the United States the time has come when the affairs of the Congo Free State should be made the subject of international inquiry, and the Senate respectfully advises the President that in any steps he may deem it wise to take in co-operation with or in aid of any of the powers, signatories of the Treaty of Berlin, which shall seek to ameliorate the conditions of the Congo Free State and reduce the evils now existent there, he will receive its cordial support."

The indications are that the Committee on Foreign Relations may act favorably on the resolution.

Those opposed to the Lodge resolution, or at least to hasty action at this time, assert that the agitation of the subject is due to allegations contained in a petition bearing the signatures of thirty-two missionaries, of whom sixteen are women, the wives of other signers. It is further maintained that a statement, signed by four hundred missionaries, sets forth facts in direct opposition to those alleged by the thirty-two, the greater number asserting that cruelty is comparatively rare and the alleged atrocities are greatly exaggerated.

DID DUNN HAVE RIGHT TO ROSE'S MULE TEAM?

Swap Leads To a Case In Tort in the District Court.

Martin A. Rose's suit in tort against David Dunn, for cost of a team of mules, was the only one tried in the District Court this morning. It was heard before a twelve-man jury.

The case resulted from an agreement between Rose and Dunn, by which the former was to turn over a pair of mules and $175 in exchange for a team of horses. The dispute hinges on the terms of the agreement. Rose contends that Dunn was to have had the horses examined by a veterinary and that the trade was not to conclude until the veterinary had passed on them. Dunn denies that clause of the agreement.

A few days after the trade agreement, Dunn, it was testified this morning, took the mules from Rose's place, telling Rose that he had a customer for them. Since then, Rose asserted, he had received neither mules, horses nor money.

His contention is that, lacking the veterinary examination, the trade did not stand, and he is entitled either to the mules or the money for them. The team, it is said, has been sold.

Dunn's contention was that the trade did not depend on an examination by a veterinary and that it was Rose's part, as soon as he took the mules, to get the horses and pay over the money.

The case went to the jury at 12 o'clock.

The jury returned a verdict for $100 for the plaintiff. F. J. Blatz represented Rose and S. S. Swackhamer the defendant.

LABORING MAN'S PREACHER.

That Is What Dr. Morgan, Who Will Speak Here Sunday, Is.

The coming of Rev. Dr. W. H. Morgan, of the Central M. E. church, Newark, who will speak at the Y. M. C. A. theatre meeting next Sunday night, is of unusual interest to labor union men. Dr. Morgan is known in Newark for his friendly interest in the advancement of workingmen. He was the arbitrator between the bosses and the men in the recent big strike of the bricklayers there.

Dr. Morgan, now one of the best known and successful ministers in the East, is a striking example of the self-made man. Until he was twenty-three years of age, he could neither read nor write, but despite the long time he had lost in improving himself, he forged ahead, and he applied himself to the task of self-betterment by remarkable strides. His ability as a speaker is in keeping with the interest attaching to his career.

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman will preside over the meeting. The Crescent Avenue church choir will sing.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Maynard, of 143 North avenue, will celebrate their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary on Thursday evening, December 27.

HEART TROUBLE PROVES FATAL TO JOHN H. M'VEY

DIED YESTERDAY AT RED BANK WHERE HE HAD BEEN FOR A WEEK.

John H. McVey, the well-known local restaurateur, died yesterday at the home of relatives in Red Bank. He had been ailing for several months with heart trouble and went to that place a week ago today in the hope that the nearness to the ocean would benefit him. To all appearances he was improving but he suddenly became worse Sunday and death followed quickly.

Mr. McVey was sixty-four years old and came to this city from Goshen, N. Y., in 1886. He opened the restaurant on North avenue now known as the Belmont and at one time, especially during the bicycle craze in the middles' 90's when it was the L. A. W. headquarters, it was one of the best known dining places in the State. He secured a building directly across the street as a hotel annex and conducted the two places jointly until about six years ago when he sold the business and went to Red Bank to live. He returned to Plainfield last spring and traded the North avenue property for the hotel on West Front street just below Clinton avenue, erected by George Sieber, of Staten Island, for John Goff. He had been living there up to the time he went to Red Bank because of his health.

Mr. McVey leaves a wife and three daughters, one of the latter being by a former marriage. She resides in Brooklyn. The other daughters are the Misses Carrie and Grace McVey, who live here. He also leaves a brother, a resident of Morristown. The arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed.

WOMEN SUFFRAGISTS HAVE BUSY SESSION

REPORTS READ AT INTERESTING MEETING YESTERDAY.

Papers relative to leading women suffragists, the advancement of the movement as well as short articles on the cause of the Child Labor laws, together with reports from the delegates to the meeting of the State Federation of Women's Clubs at Orange, were the features of the meeting of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, held yesterday at the home of Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, of East Seventh street.

Mrs. Tomlinson read a sketch of the life and works of Miss Susan B. Anthony, and this was followed with short articles and the success of the suffrage movement in Colorado and Woming and the discussion of the cause of child labor, and its improved conditions throughout the country. Mrs. Samuel Huntington, Mrs. Isaac L. Miller, Miss Ann Murphy and Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, who were the delegates to the State Federation of Women's Clubs at Orange, precented brief reports of that gathering.

Among the speakers there were Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, Mrs. Antoinette Brown Blackwell and Henry B. Blackwell, who was the husband of Lucy Stone. After the meeting tea was served and a social half-hour enjoyed.

JERSEY TEACHERS TO HOLD MEETINGS DEC. 26 TO 28.

State Association's Annual Session Will Be Held at Atlantic City.

The annual meeting of the New Jersey State Teachers' Association will be held December 26 to 28, at Atlantic City. Governor Stokes is expected to address the meeting on Wednesday afternoon, December 26. On Wednesday evening the teachers will attend a reception at the Marlborough-Blenheim Hotel.

The programme arranges six sessions, as follows: On Wednesday afternoon and evening, on Thursday morning, afternoon and evening, and on Friday morning. The music will be one of the features. Humorous speeches will be made, including the address of welcome by Henry P. Miller. Each department will meet in separate rooms, discuss conditions, hear reports, transact business and elect its officers.

On Friday morning a general session will be held, at which the reports of various committees will be read. Before adjournment, the election and installation of officers will be held.

In the Borough Court.

John Crowley, who tried to mix with society at the Park Club, and Thomas Hawkins, arrested for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, were each fined $3 when arraigned before Mayor Smalley in the borough court last night. They paid the fines and escaped going to Somerville for ten days.

BIGLOW NEW CAPTAIN OF YALE'S ELEVEN

FORMER PLAINFIELDER CHOSEN ON SECRET BALLOT TO SUCCEED MORSE

Lucius Horatio Biglow, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Lucius H. Biglow, Jr., formerly of this city, but now of Montclair, and a member of the junior academic class, was last night elected captain of the Yale University football team on secret ballot, which was made unanimous as soon as the result was announced. He played right tackle this fall and filled the same position on last year's eleven, but in freshman year was a guard.

Biglow is a strategist by nature, and this will figure in his handling of a team upon the gridiron and in his control of men under him. He is quiet, unassuming and effective. He began his preparation for college at John Leal's School and later went to Lawrenceville, where he played guard on the school team for four years. He is 21 years old, six feet two inches in height and weighs 198 pounds.

Captain Biglow was the logical successor of Morse. He won the West Point game by a kick from placement at the thirty-yard line from an angle which was most difficult to overcome. At Princeton he prevented an almost certain kick for a goal, and many believe that he won the Harvard game by his brilliant dash through the line and blocking of Wendell's kick from the twenty-yard line.

Early this fall when Biglow returned for practise with the eleven he announced to his friends and to John Kennedy, of the crew, that he would not row again. He was No. 4 in the 'varsity boat last year, and was slated for the captaincy of the navy one year hence. He explained that he had time but for one sport, and had decided on football.

Suppressed excitement has reigned among the football men for a week, no one actually knowing what the outcome of the ballot would be. It has been persistently rumored that some of the Yale advisers and coaches favored Tad Jones, and another unstable element entered into the situation when it was remembered that ten of the men eligible to vote were Sheff students and six of the academic department. Biglow is in the academic department and Jones in Sheff. The question was, would this influence any votes. It was stated last night by one of the 'varsity squad that the choice of Biglow was unanimous.

MAGIC AND HUMOR.

Unconventional Performance by Ausbach; Woman Gets Bunny.

Weather had its effect on the attendance at the Star Course entertainment in Y. M. C. A., last night, but not on the character of the performance. The slim audience enjoyed a rare programme of magic and music, and the seat-holders who stayed away missed an hour and three-quarters of entertainment that would have repaid a journey through a rain twice as bad.

Ausbach, the sleight-of-hand performer, was original and amusing to a noteworthy degree. The assistants he impressed from the audience entered into the spirit of the occasion, and furnished jokes on their own account. Asa F. Randolph had considerable fun with the professor of legerdemain. Ausbach won the heart of one woman by giving her, as a souvenir of the evening, a velvety little bunny which he discovered under the lining of her husband's derby hat.

The musical numbers were rendered by Fred and William Van Eps, on the banjo and the mandolin respectively, with their usual skill and art.

Driver and Cash Missing.

A wagon belonging to Henry Nichwitz, of the borough, was noticed standing in front of the Dayton mill on Somerset street, for an unusually long time, yesterday. The owner was notified and found that it was a rig that had been taken out by George Thorp, a driver in his employ. No trace of him could be found and he is still among the missing. Mr. Nischwitz says Thorp collected $28.45 during the day and that is also missing.

Mrs. Catherine Carney.

Mrs. Catherine Carney, wife of Edward Carney, died at her home in Dunellen last night. She was thirty-four years old and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fosbre, of West Sixth street. She leaves two children by a previous marriage. The funeral arrangements have not been completed but it will be held Thursday morning.

Song Recital.

REVENGE ON HIS WIDOW

Neighbors Suspect That Her Barn Was Fired by Late Husband's Enemy.

WAS NEAR THE SCENE

Mrs. Augusta Blackford's Barn, Grain and Poultry Destroyed by Alleged Incendiary.

Vengefully fired, it is said, the barn on Mrs. Augusta Blackford's place, on the New Dover road, Oak Tree, was burned down early last night. Hay, corn and fodder stored in the barn were destroyed, and thirty fowls lost their lives. A cow was rescued.

The fire was discovered at 7 o'clock. The barn was all ablaze inside at that time, and no chance to save it from destruction remained. Neighbors gathered about as the flames consumed the structure, but they could do nothing.

There is no doubt in the minds of Mrs. Blackford and her neighbors that the barn was set afire. Suspicion points strongly to a shiftless man of the neighborhood, who is said to have harbored a grudge against Mrs. Blackford's dead husband for some time. It is said this man was seen near the barn just after the fire broke out in its full intensity, and that he hung about the scene with ill-concealed pleasure as it burned.

HORSE STEPS ON LIVE WIRE AND FALLS DEAD.

Electric Light Wire Fallen in Roadway Unseen by Coachman.

Shocked by a live electric light wire which had fallen in the roadway on Webster place, a horse, one of a valuable team owned by S. D. Lounsbury, of East Seventh street, was killed about 6 o'clock, last night. The rig, in charge of the coachman, Henry Patterson, was on its way to get Mrs. Lounsbury, who was making a call on Webster place, and failed to see the wire which lay in the road, until the horse on the off-side struck it.

The wire became entangled about the forefeet of the animal and the heavy electric current caused almost instant death. The horse fell and despite quick work on the part of the coachman, it was impossible to save him. Mr. Lounsbury was informed of the accident and he has communicated with the Public Service Corporation concerning it. The other horse was uninjured.

SOMERSET AGRICULTURISTS' ANNUAL MEETING SATURDAY.

Prof. Edward B. Voorhees and F. H. Castner to Be the Principal Speakers.

The fifteenth annual meeting of the Somerset County Board of Agriculture will be held in the old chapel of the First Reformed church in Somerville Saturday next with two sessions. The morning session will be devoted to reports of the secretary and treasurer, the president's address, the election of officers and a general discussion of topics of interest to the members. There will be no annual dinner as heretofore.

In the afternoon there will be addresses by Prof. Edward B. Voorhees, of the State Agricultural Experiment Stations, on "Does Farming Pay? If Not, Why Not?" and by F. H. Castner, of Changewater, on "Poultry Raising."

PICTURED MEXICO.

Rev. C. E. Herring Gives An Illustrated Lecture.

Despite the stormy night about thirty members of the Men's Club of the First Baptist church enjoyed a trip, last night, through Mexico, as illustrated by Rev. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. The lecture was similar to the one given at the Camera Club rooms. The views were taken by Mr. Herring and in his entertaining manner he described many interesting incidents in connection with his journey. He showed some of the old churches of Mexico and told of the forms of worship there.

The views were divided between those of the busy centers of the large cities and the country districts showing modern and primitive forms of living. In addition to the lecture further enjoyment was afforded by Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan and Vincent Sokol, piano and violin.

Poet-Scout Coming.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

Glenn S. Warner, the Cornell football coach, surprised the gridiron men yesterday by declaring that he is in favor of a twelve-man team. He bases this radical opinion on the fact that it is easier to formulate successful plays with a dozen players in the line-up, and illustrated his remarks with a diagram which showed how an extra man in the backfield would balance the defensive line-up and put it on more even terms with the offence.

Jack Hayden, outfielder of the Boston Americans during the past baseball season, may be unable to play next summer owing to an injury which he received while playing on the Massillon professional football team this fall. The muscles of the back, shoulder and upper arm were so badly bruised and twisted, and so many ligaments were torn loose, that it will be impossible for him to use his right arm again in baseball.

The South African rugby football team concluded its tour of the Green Isle with a match against Dublin University. It was a forgone conclusion for the Springboks and wagers were offered that Trinity would not score. The Irishmen put up a stiff tussle for the first half, but went to pieces in the second half and the South Africans won by 23 points to 3. In the match against the All Ireland team the South Africans won by a score of 15 points to 12. It was a fiercely contested game. The tour of the South Africans will conclude on New Year's Day, when they will play Cardiff at Cardiff, in Wales. S. Joubert, a relative of General Joubert, of Boer war fame, plays back on the South African team and is its star player.

The fourth and last international football match of the visiting South African team, known as the "Springboks," was played Saturday with All-England at the Crystal Palace, and resulted in a tie by one try on both sides. In the previous international games the South Africans defeated Wales and Ireland and were beaten by Scotland. Over 50,000 people were present at Saturday's contest.

R. S. Folwell was Saturday elected captain of the University of Pennsylvania football team. Captain Green was re-elected to the position on the first ballot but declined, and the honor went to Folwell on the second vote.

DIAMOND DUST.

Manager Hanlon, of the Cincinnati team, says that he will consent to the sale of the second baseman, Miller Huggins, to the New York National League Club, but he does not deny that he stands ready to part with Joe Kelley, Tommy Corcoran, Robert Wicher, Chick Fraser, Paddy Livingston and others if he gets the right chance. In other words Hanlon intends to provide an entirely new team for Porkville fans. He has already secured John Ganzel to play first base and, with Huggins remaining on second, he evidently intends to get new men for third base and shortstop. He has drafted practically all of the best young players in California and intends to begin at the bottom of the ladder, just as he did years ago in Baltimore. If Cincinnati's frenzied baseball fans will give Hanlon half a chance he may be able to accomplish something. Champion teams cannot be developed in a single season when a manager has a tail end combination to work with.

President Ebbets, of the Brooklyn Club, under the glare of the searchlight thrown upon him by the fans, now says he will not sell First Baseman Jordan and Right Fielder Lumley to the New York Nationals. Ebbets has wisely decided to hearken to the advice of his manager, Pat Donovan, who at a conference with Ebbets at the Hotel Marlborough one night last week threatened to resign if the two star players were handed over to McGraw's team. By the way, it looks as if McGraw has been placing too much confidence in the Brooklyn and Cincinnati clubs, with the idea that both would surrender stars to him.

John I. Taylor, of the Boston Americans, was not in evidence yesterday. It was said that he had stepped over to Philadelphia to confer with Connie Mack, who is supposed to be ready to give up two of his pitchers for the third baseman Collins. At present there is a hitch between Frank Farrell and Taylor because of the exorbitant demands made by the Boston magnate.

THE CITY'S EYESORES.

When once Mayor-elect Fisk takes his office and the Common Council is reorganized on January 1, there will be much to occupy the time and serious efforts of the administration. Permanent pavements in the business section of the city are imperatively needed and so is the municipal collection and disposal of garbage and ashes. These improvements will cost considerable to inaugurate but they will mean a large saving in the end.

One great improvement that will not cost the city a penny but will do much towards beautifying the place is suggested to Mr. Fisk. We ask him to give his attention to the eyesores scattered about the streets, particularly in the business section, in the shape of great ugly poles upon which the P. S. C.'s wires are strung. These poles disfigure the streets and there is no earthly reason why the Common Council should not have ordered their removal long ago. No matter whether it be the P. S. C., the telephone company or other utility corporation, no concern should be permitted to mar the beauty of our thoroughfares by placing unsightly poles wherever and whenever they will. Almost in front of the handsome new building of the Plainfield Trust Company, for instance, is one of these unsightly looking objects supporting a network of wires. It completely disfigures the fine building and is a disgrace to the city.

We ask Mr. Fisk to lend his hearty support to a movement to compel the removal of these ugly poles. The place for the wires is underground. That fact is patent to him and to every other person in the community.

AN EPIC IN FIGURES.

"A veritable epic in figures, a triumphant song in statistics, is the report of the Secretary of Agriculture, which tells the story of the American farmer's marvelous store of riches won from the soil in the year just ended, reaching the astounding total of $6,794,000,000," according to a news dispatch from Washington. "This exceeds the record-breaking product of last year by $324,000,000.

"The value of the farm products of the nation during the last twelve months would duplicate the entire railroad system of the United States. The American farm products of 1905 and 1906 would pay for every railroad in the world, including the entire equipment.

"The total value of the farm properties of the United States is estimated by Secretary Wilson's department at $28,000,000,000. This is an increase of $8,000,000,000 since 1900. It is more than twice the capitalization of all the railroads of the United States, and four and a half times their real value. The earnings of the farms for the year amounted to nearly three times the net earnings of all the railroads.

"Not only are the American farms the foundation of the domestic plenty that pervades the land, but they are the source of the nations credit abroad. The foreign balance due the United States on agricultural products for the fiscal year of 1906 is $433,000,000, while the balance on all other classes of exports is only $85,000,000.

"In the last seventeen years the American farmer has piled up the enormous credit of six billions of dollars, while the pampered manufacturer, with all the stimulus of protective tariff and other Government favors, has a balance against him of $459,000,000.

"During the year 1906 the exports of agricultural products touched the high-water mark of $976,000,000, or $24,000,000 more than the exports of the previous record year, which was 1901."

The President may be a statesman and all that but he evidently hasn't learned that he can't expect to have the last word when there's a woman in the case.

"TRENTON AMUSEMENT-MAD."

So Says Priest, Who Gives Girls Words of Advice.

Trenton, Dec. 11.—Monsignor Fox took occasion in his sermon at the reception of the new members into the Sodality and Children of Mary societies of St. Mar's cathedral to characterize Trenton as "amusement mad," and referred to the skating rinks, dancing halls and other places of recreation as breeders of evil. The Monsignor declared that the girls of the present day did not pay enough attention to training themselves to take charge of a home.

He said their object now is to secure position as stenographers, and at other clerical work, and neglect to remember that a woman's sphere is in the home. Continuing, he said parents should not permit their children to read books to excess and that they should not be allowed to read at all during the school year, and said that one hour a week was a sufficient time even for older persons to devote to fiction.

BULL ATTACKS FARMER.

Animal Knocks Down Warren County Man, but Is Unable to Gore Him.

Belvidere, Dec. 11.—James Drake, a farmer living on the Hope road, near here, had an encounter with an angry bull the day before yesterday and narrowly escaped with his life. He was in the barn feeding his stock when the bull rushed at him. The animal, which had been dehorned, struck Drake a blow with his head which knocked him down. Then the bull renewed the attack. Drake cried for help while the bull was standing over him.

Persons from the house nearby ran to Drake's aid. The bull then attacked the rescurers. They finally drove him into the barn, where they chained him to a stall. The farmer was carried to his home and cared for. A doctor was summoned, but could find no broken bones. Drake was bruised and cut, however, about the head and body.

Most Wonderful Dress.

Aguas Calientes, Mexico, Dec. 11.—One of the wonders of Mexico is a $40,000 dress which has just been completed here, after nine years of work. The dress is the creation of Mrs. R. Leon, who directed all of the work that was done in its making. At times she had employed more than 300 expert needle women. Mrs. Leon is the owner of a large factory here for the manufacture of serapes, or women's shawls. When she conceived the idea of making the finest dress in the world is was for the purpose of exhibiting it at the Paris Exposition, where she hoped to sell it for a fabulous price. She found the task much greater than she expected, and the Paris Exposition came and went with the dress far from finished. She then thought it would be ready for exhibition at the St. Louis World's Fair. But again she was disappointed, as the delicate fabric was still in an unfinished state. She continued the work without interruption until a few days ago, when the last stitch was taken in the wonderful creation. It is stated by all who have seen this dress that its exquisite beauty is unsurpassed. It is a veritable work of woman's art. The dress is made largely of the finest lined thread, which was imported direct from Paris. The thread is drawn into beautiful figures and the fabric is a filmy, weblike lace which shows no seams.

Battleship's Silver Exhibited.

Trenton, Dec. 11.—New Jersey's $10,000 silver service, the gift of the State to the battleship New Jersey, was formally placed on exhibition in the Governor's reception room at the State Capitol yesterday. The silver is displayed on a long table in the centre of the apartment. To safeguard it a railing has been erected around the table to keep visitors at a distance. As a further precaution the commission has placed on duty a detail of the Second Battalion of the Naval Reserve of New Jersey. The detail is composed of Ensign W. G. Hodgson, of Haddonfield, and Seamen Whitlow, Christopher, Herman, Milne, Dischert and Delarentrie, all of Camden. The guard is in full uniform, each one carrying a musket with a fixed bayonet. The guard is from the cruising yacht Huntress. The service will be on exhibition at the State House again all day tomorrow. It has not yet been definitely decided to exhibit it at any other city in the State.

Nearly Killed By An Indian.

New York, Dec. 11.—Mrs. Lester R. Walton, of No. 542 West 159th street, was injured in a singular accident in 156th street and Amsterdam avenue Sunday afternoon that might have resulted fatally. Mrs. Walton was passing a cigar store owned by Alfred Lauter, who, with Dr. Elbert Norton, was standing beside a wooden Indian. Mrs. Walton slipped on the grating and to save herself from a fall clutched the Indian. As it was falling on her Dr. Norton pulled the heavy object to one side, while Lauter pushed Mrs. Walton out of danger. She fainted and was removed to her home suffering from shock.

CHURCHES GET ESTATE.

Stryker, Though Not a Member, Gave To Two Congregations.

New Brunswick, Dec. 11.—Abraham Stryker, a bachelor and non-church member, who recently was found dead at Millstone, left almost his entire estate of $7,000 to the Reformed churches of Millstone and East Millstone. He attended one of these churches in the morning and the other in the evening.

In his will he left a few hundred dollars to relatives and then bequeathed a house and lot valued at $2,000 to the Millstone Reformed church and the remainder of his estate, worth about $5,000, is to be divided equally between the two churches.

He is survived by a brother 81 years old, who is in feeble health, and the churches will see that he does not want.

Charged With Robbing Meters.

New Brunswick, Dec. 11.—Thieves tampering with slot meters have been giving the Public Service Corporation a great deal of annoyance for several months. Not so much on account of the loss of the money from the meters but because in several instances the life of occupants of dwelling houses was endangered by the reckless and careless way in which the meters were robbed. It has been evident that the work was done by some one in possession of a key to the meters and detectives have been working for the last two months. Two arrests have been made. The prisoners are Thomas Higgins and Adam Geipel, Jr. The men have been held in bail to await the action of the grand jury.

MAY IRWIN TO RETURN.

Will Appear at Local Theatre in Connection With Charity Ball.

Following a week's hustling in order to secure an attraction that would in every way be satisfactory to the committee, Manager Counihan, yesterday, contracted for the appearance of May Irwin and her company at the New Plainfield on New Year's Eve in connection with the charity ball. She will present her newest comedy, "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews," which was originally know as "Mrs. Wilson, That's All," and which is now running at the Bijou theatre, New York.

It was originally intended to have Nat Goodwin as the attraction for the theatre end of the affair but a change in his route compelled a cancellation. Manager Counihan and Harry L. Hall, of the ball committee, have since worked hard to get something equally as good, if not better, and through Curt Eisfeldt's friendship for the theatre man, Miss Irwin cancelled a date at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., in order to come to Plainfield.

A NEW WRINKLE.

Pupils in the Public Schools Buying Books.

Many pupils in the Plainfield High School have purchased new song books and they will be used tomorrow morning for the first time. The name of the book is "The Corona Song Book," and comprises a choice selection of special songs desired by the pupils.

The song books which have been used by the pupils are all right and have apparently answered the purpose, but recently there arose a sentiment in favor of a new book. The pedagogues did not feel like asikng the Board of Education to purchase other books so the pupils volunteered to purchase them. The new books are generally distributed among the 300 pupils.

Minister Shot by Daughter.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 11.—In protecting her mother in their home at No. 1714 South Fifteenth street, May McAntee, twenty-six-year-old daughter of the Rev. John Q. McAntee, formerly pastor of the Church of the Holy Communion, today shot her father twice in the left temple, inflicting dangerous, but not necessarily fatal wounds. When the police arrived at the McAntee home they found the wife and the daughter of the injured man seated on a couch in the dining room. The young woman explained that she and her mother had been down town shopping and they returned home shortly after three o'clock. A little later the father came in, and, he began to quarrel with her. The minister picked up a heavy poker, with the evident intention of chastising Mrs. McAntee with it.

Mail Wagon Stolen.

New York, Dec. 11.—When a mail wagon containing seven bags in which were many valuable Christmas gifts addressed to persons in Europe was driven away from the corner of Broadway and Sixty-ninth street last night reserves from every precinct in the city were put on the case, but no trace of wagon or the mail bags was obtained. The mail had been collected from the sub-stations at Columbus avenue and 105th street, 125th street and Eighth avenue, and Eighty-fourth street and Columbus avenue. The driver, Amos Dolan, was making further collections from the Sixty-ninth street station when the horse was driven away.

BAN ON SEWING SCHOOL.

Priest in Morristown Issues Order Against "Baptist" Society.

Morristown, Dec. 11.—The Rev. Father Clifford, of the Roman Catholic Church of the Assumption, has announced that he has been directed by Monsignor Joseph M. Flynn to say that all Catholic children attending the "Baptist sewing school" must desist at once or their parents would be denounced from the altar next Sunday. It has caused surprise among the Baptists.

The "sewing school" referred to is known as the "Industrial School." It is a strictly non-sectarian institution and, while it meets in the Baptist church, is not conected with that denomination in any way. Miss Sadie Coghill, the superintendent of the school, says the attendance averages ninety. The children, who are all girls, are taught sewing and how to care for their health and homes. The school has been in the Baptist church for five years, and in that time the question of religious belief had not before arisen.

STATUTE FOR GENERAL SCOTT.

Committee of Elizabeth Citizens Will Raise Funds.

Elizabeth, Dec. 11.—City Attorney James C. Connolly yesterday named a committee of seven citizens to devise means for raising funds for the erection of a monument to the memory of General Winfield Scott. The committee consists of Warren R. Dix, Colonel Dennis F. Collins, General J. Madison Drake, Captain W. C. DeHart, Augustus S. Crane, Peter Egenolf and Councilman John S. Sauer.

The site proposed for the Scott memorial is in Scott Park, between East Jersey street and Elizabeth avenue. It is proposed to erect an equestrian statue of the war hero.

That Boasted Subway.

New York, Dec. 11.—Utter failure of the subway system because of weather conditions to which it was supposed to be immune culminated Sunday night in the derailing of a Lenox avenue express train just north of Ninety-sixth street station. This accident came at the end of a day full of perils to passengers, during which the charge that the system is mismanaged in all its departments appeared to be fully demonstrated to the patrons of the road. In the early morning the best time from Harlem to City Hall was two hours. Passengers were put to every possible inconvenience, men and women were insulted, roughly handled, kicked and pushed by the employes on the platforms and trains, and so apparently inefficient were those in charge of the road that not once during the day was the service normal or the patrons free from peril or delay.

Butchers Close Shops.

New York, Dec. 11.—Two hundred and twenty-five butchers in the Brownsville district of Brooklyn closed their shops yesterday and will keep them closed for an indefinite time, because, they assert, the prices charged by the Beef Trust are exorbitant and have made it impossible for them to carry on their business. Rioting is expected, as a violent outbreak followed a similar closing of the shops several years ago, and police reserves will be held in readiness throughout the day.

Infant Dies.

Gladys, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Rockafellow, of Dunellen, died suddenly yesterday. The funeral will be held from the house tomorrow afternoon.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Another Charles Klein success is announced for the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. "The Time of Your Life," a musical topical farce on the hypnotic craze and other fashionable fads and fancies written expressly for George W. Monroe by the author of "The Lion and the Mouse" and "The Music Master."

Among the new productions that is being exploited by the progressive theatrical firm, Rowland & Clifford, is the cleverly dramatized story of "Thorns and Orange Blossoms," which Lem B. Parker has converted into an exceptionally strong comedy-drama from Bertha M. Clay's famous novel of the same name. "Thorns and Orange Blossoms" will have a presentation in this city at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night. The play is finely mounted as regards scenery, properties and general appointments, and cast exceedingly above the average. Rowland & Clifford, who bring "Thorns and Orange Blossoms" here also have en-tour many other reputable attractions which include: James Kyrle McCurdy in "The Old Clothes Man;" "The Game Keeper," "Dora Thorne;" William V. Mong in the "Clay Baker;" "The Minister's Daughters;" "The Phantom Detective;" "Over Niagara Falls," and several other successful attractions.

Coming from the Savoy theatre, New York city, after its splendid run "It's All Your Fault" will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night. "It's All Your Fault," written by Edgar Selwyn, is headed by Chas. J. Stine and Olive Evans with the unusually clever boy master, Pincus, who plays the part of "Archibald" with a toughness which will make folks hope his art is natural, together with his newsboys slang and gestures which he unconsciously introduces and which is wholly a part of himself. Manager Edward R. Salter promises a most pretentious production.

The constant cry from playgoers is for novelty and when this is absent there is small hope of the ultimate success of the play. For this reason, if for no other, "The Governor's Pardon," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night, should please mightily. There is no single scene in the entire four acts that does not positively teem with novelty, which is as refreshing as it is grateful. Not in all the plays that have been presented since the drama first became an established institution, has there been such a wealth of different ideas. Built primarily with the automobile as its theme, the production runs along lines that are irresistible.

"His Honor, the Mayor," the musical play which has run for four months in New York, will come to the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night for a return engagement. "His Honor, the Mayor," is in many respects, the most successful entertainment of its kind, having broken all records both at the New York theatre and Wallack's theatre, during its run at these houses during the past summer. Added to this, is its record of six months in Chicago.

Miss Ethel Barrymore comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night with the comedy success, "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire," by J. M. Barrie, in which she was presented at the Criterion theatre, in New York, by Charles Frohman last season for months to crowded houses. The three act comedy, "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire," by J. M. Barrie, is a satire on the modern style play, and is rich with the delicious Barrie humor that first captured the American public in "The Little Minister," and that was never more abundantly or affectively revealed than in the present work. Miss Barrymore plays a charming young mother in the comedy, who, having apparently lost the love of her two children, discovers by a series of incidents the reason for their lack of affection and at once sets about remedying it. Miss Barrymore, it is said, has never acted more exquisitely nor to the purpose than she does in this role.

GOVERNOR HAS RESOLUTION.

Stokes Has Not Signed Law Codification Measure.

Trenton, Dec. 11.—A resolution from the last session of the Legislature is still in the hands of the Governor. Senator B. B. Hutchinson, of Mercer county, introduced the resolution and it provides for the appointment of a commission of three to codify the laws relating to municipal government.

The Governor believes that such a commission should be composed of more members, and it is probable that he will let the resolution go over to the next session in order that provision can be made for more commissioners.

Mrs. Charles Matthews, of Grove street, who has been quite ill, continues to improve.

Harold Hegeman, who is now located at Easton, Pa., has been spending a few days with his parents on Myrtle avenue.

George Burgess, of Central avenue, is improving from a severe illness. During his absence from church duties, Samuel Bingaman is acting as treasurer of the First M. E. church.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON, AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1906 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

The other who had not laughed was Brigham himself. For to this great man had been given the gift to look upon men and to know in one slow sweep of his wonderful eyes all their strength and all their weakness. He had listened with close attention to the remarkable plan suggested by this fiery young zealot, and he studied him now with a gaze that was kind. A noticeable result of this attitude of Brigham's was that those who had laughed became more or less awkwardly silent, while the Entablature of Truth, in the midst of his pantomime, froze into amazement.

"W'd better consider that a little," said Brigham, finally. "You can talk it over with me to-night. But first you go get your stuff unloaded and get kind of settled. There's a cabin just beyond my two up the street here that you can move into." He put his large hand kindly on the other's shoulder. "Now run and get fixed and come to my house for supper along about dark."

Somewhat cooled by the laughter of the others, but flattered by this consideration from the Prophet, the young man had gone thoughtfully out to his wagons and driven on to the cabin indicated.

Brigham talked to him late that night, advancing many cogent reasons why it should be unwise to make war at once upon the nation of Gentiles to the east. Of these reasons the one that had greatest weight with his listener was the assurance that such a course would not at present be pleasing in the sight of God. To others, touching upon the matter of superior forces they might have to contend with, he was loftily inattentive.

From matters of civil government the talk ranged to affairs domestic.

"Tell me," said the young man, "the truth of this new order of celestial marriage." And Brigham had become animated at once.

"Yes," he said, "when the family organization was revealed from Heaven, and Joseph began on the right and the left to add to his family, oh, dear, what a quaking there was in Israel! But there it was, plain enough. When you have received your endowments, keys, blessings, all the tokens, signs, and every preparatory ordinance that can be given to a man for his entrance through the celestial gate, then you can see it."

He gazed a moment into the fire of hickory logs before which they sat, and then went on, more confidentially:

"Now you take that promise to Abraham—'Life up your eyes and behold the stars. So shall thy seed be as numberless as the stars. Go to the seashore and look at the sand, and behold the smallness of the particles thereof'—I am giving you the gist of the Lord's words, you understand—'and then realize that your seed shall be as numberless as those sands.' Now think for a minute how many particles there are, say in a cubit foot of sand—about one thousand million particles. Think of that! In eight thousand years, if the inhabitants of earth increased one trillion a century, three cubic yards of sand would still contain more particles than there would be people on the whole globe. Yet there you got the promise of the Lord in black and white. Now how was Abraham to manage to get a foundation laid for this mighty kingdom? Was he to get it through one wife? Don't you see how ridiculous that is? Sarah saw it, and Sarah knew that unless seed was raised to Abraham he would come short of his glory. So what did Sarah do? She gave Abraham a certain woman whose name was Hagar, and by her a seed was to be raised up unto him. And was that all? No. We read of his wife Keturah, and also of a plurality of wives which he had in the sight and favor of God, and from whom he raised up many sons. There, then, was a foundation laid for the fulfillment of that grand promise concerning his seed."

He peered again into the fire, and added, by way of clenching his argument: "I guess it would have been rather slow-going, if the Lord had confined Abraham to one wife, like some of these narrow, contracted nations of modern Christianity. You see, they don't know that a man's posterity in this world is to constitute his glory and kingdom and dominion in the world to come, and they don't know, either, that there are thousands of choice spirits in the spirit world waiting to tabernacle in the flesh. Of course, there are lots of these things that you ain't ready to hear yet, but now you know that polygamy is necessary for our exaltation to the fullness of the Lord's glory in the eternal world, and after you study it you'll like the doctrine. I do; I can swallow it without greasing my mouth!"

He prayed that night to be made "holy as Thy servant Brigham is holy; to hear Thy voice as he hears it; to be made as wise as he, as true as he, even as another Lion of the Lord, so that I may be a rod and staff and comforter to these buffeted children of Thine."

His prayer also touched on one of the matters of their talk. "But, O Lord, teach me to be content without thrones and dominion in Thy Kingdom if to gain these I must have many wives. Teach me to abase myself to be a servant, a lowly sweeper in the temple of the Most High, for I would rather be lowly with her I love than exalted to any place whatsoever with many. Keep in my sinful heart the face of her who has left me to dwell among the Gentiles, whose hair is molted gold, whose eyes are azure deep as the sky, and whose arms once opened warm for me. Guard her especially, O Lord, while she must company with Gentiles, for she is not wonted to their wiles; and in Thine own good time bring her head unharmed to its home on Thy servant's breast."

"You have built me up," he confided to Brigham, one day. "I feel to rejoice in my strength." And Brigham was highly pleased.

"That's good, Brother Joel. The host of Israel will soon be on the move, and I shouldn't wonder if the Lord had a great work for you. I can see places where you'll be just the tool he needs. I mistrust we sha'n't have everything peaceful even now. The priest in the pulpit is thorning the politician against us, gouging him from underneath—he'd never dare do it openly, for our Elders could crimson his face with shame—and the minions of the mob may be after us again. If they do, I can see where you will be a tower of strength in your own way."

"It's all of my life, Brother Brigham."

"I believe it. I guess the time has come to make you an Elder."

And so on a late winter afternoon in the quiet of the Council-House, Joel Rae was ordained an Elder after the order of Melchisedek; with power to preach and administer in all the ordinances of the church, to lay on hands, to confirm all baptized persons, to anoint the afflicted with oil, and to seal upon them the blessings of health.

In his hard, narrow bed that night, where the cold came through the unchinked logs and the wind brought him the wailing of the wolves, he prayed that he might not be too much elated by this extraordinary distinction.

Bowling and General Sports

BOWLING.

Three matches will be rolled tonight in the Central Journal Bowling League tournament. Westfield will roll at Elizabeth, Cranford at Roselle and the Parks will meet the Newark Bays at home. After tonight only three more games will be rolled this year on December 18, when Cranford will roll at Westfield, Park at Elizabeth and Roselle at Newark Bay. The bowling will be resumed on January 3, 1907.

The Park Club bowling team is making a better showing this year than ever before, individually and as a team. This is due to the steady practice.

"Doc" Thiers, the vet of the Crescent League alleys, is an enthusiast at McLaughlin's these days. He is in as good form as he ever was and is able to show the youngsters some things about the game that they never thought of. If he and "Charlie" Martby continue to use the whirlwind ball, "Warry" will have to put in concrete backstops reinforced by steel braces or else see the back of the building go out.

Charles Meyer, Jr., made a spare with the 7 and 10 pin on No. 2 alley at McLaughlin's last night. It was accomplished by striking the 7 in such a manner that it rebounded from the backstop and picked off No. 10. The feat was witnessed by a large gallery of fans who applauded vociferously.

The two-man team tourney opens at McLaughlin's tonight and from indications a large crowd will be on hand to witness the start. Harry Radin and Harry Ackor are pitted against Gus Sheelen and Joe Alberts and Patsy Reville and Sam Felver will compete with Frank Blatz and Harry Van Emburg. Reville and Ackor have been picked to win in the series and though they are among the best bowlers in the city, they have a formidable team in Reville and Felver. Both are close to the 200 average mark and Reville, especially, is an exceptionally steady man. Blatz and VanEmburg wont be able to lose any time as Sheelen and Alberts, who represent Fanwood in the tourney, have got the goods and know how to deliver them. Sheelen recently made 299 on the Suburban alleys and he declares his arm is in shape to do it again.

GOLF.

Local golf legislation will receive consideration before the players pack their grips to attend the annual meeting of the U. S. G. A. at Chicago on January 18. Tonight the annual meeting of the Metropolitan Golf Association will be held at Delmonico's, when the attendance of all delegates and of players generally is requested by the executive committee. The reports will show a prosperous season.

There were eighteen open competitions on M. G. A. links, including the national, intercollegiate and interscholastic championships. If Atlantic City is included, in which New Yorkers were very prominent, the quota is brought to twenty-one. Although without the territorial limits, the Atlantic City tournaments are usually included in the local summary. The number might be extended by including small tournaments at resorts, such as that at Shelter Island. The only club to pass an important tournament was Nassau, which felt it had done its duty by holding the Women's Eastern Professional Association championship in the spring. In the interscholastic tournament L. B. Gwyer won low score prize with 84, and Fred Herreshoff won out.

Matters to be voted on tomorrow night include the barring from the M. G. A. championship of non-resident players, the election of clubs that may not belong to the U. S. G. A. and an increase of the annual dues from $10 to either $15 or $20. The following ticket is in nomination: President, W. Fellowes Morgan, Baltusrol; vice-president, Arden M. Robbins, St. Andrews; secretary, Leighton Calkins, Plainfield; treasurer, Frank C. Jennings, Nassau; committee, Simeon Ford, Apawamis; Paul Wilcox, Montclair; George T. Brokaw, Garden City; John R. Maxwell, Jr., Dyker Meadow, and S. Vilas Beckwith, Englewood.

Willie Weir, the professional golfer of the Morris County Golf Club, has gone to Summerville, S. C., where he will have charge of a course during the winter.

Marshall Whitlach has joined the Dyker Meadow Club, but will retain his membership in the Montclair Club.

FREEHOLDERS LIKE JAIL

Board Passes Vote of Confidence in Members Who Superintended Its Erection.

SHERRIFF IN POSSESSION

Agreement Allowing Telephone Company to Lay Conduit Between Plainfield and North Plainfield.

The meeting of the Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders held in the east chapel of the First Reformed church in Somerville yesterday was a brief one, yet much business was transacted. A doing of interest to Plainfielders was the presentation of an agreement between the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company and the Boards of Freeholders of Somerset and Union counties, which permits the company to lay a conduit for its wires on the Elm street bridge between Plainfield and North Plainfield. This agreement was ordered executed and the company paid each of the counties $30 for the permit.

The committee on the new jail made a report in which it stated that the sheriff was moving in and that the building is completed with the exception of a few minor details. When it is all finished it will be formally turned over to the county. The purchaser of the old court house and jail, Hyman Kline, was notified to begin at once to remove the buildings.

A resolution was passed by the board which asserted that the confidence of the board in the building committee for the new jail and court house is unimpaired and declared that this method was taken to reassure the committee of the satisfactory service thus far rendered.

The State Road Commissioner has agreed to have the "elbow" removed from the North Branch road and $50 was ordered paid for the purchase of the necessary land.

Former Congressman Alvah A. Clark, counsel for the committee building the new jail and court house, appeared before the board and made an address in relation to recent publications in one of the county newspapers touching the legality of the proceedings of the committee in the question of bonding the county for the payment of the cost of the new structures. Mr. Clark declared that the proceedings of the board and committee were within the law, open and aboveboard, and that the taxpayers have always had the opportunity of attending the meetings of the Freeholders, which are always public. The records are also public and the clerk and collector are always ready and willing to give any information respecting the proceedings of the board.

The board adjourned to meet next Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock on the bridge at Mine Brook.

JAIL FOR "CONJUNCTION."

Gospel, Dice and a Revolver on Him When Arrested.

For twenty days, "Conjunction" Jones will not vex the police. He was arrested last night for flourishing a loaded revolver in a Second street saloon, and Judge Runyon sentenced him to jail for that length of time this morning.

"Conjunction" said he simply wanted to show the revolver. In his pockets, when searched, were found a copy of the Gospel of St. John and a dice.

Adjourned Council Meeting.

The Common Council will hold an adjourned meeting Monday night to pass on third reading the ordinance which provides for the purchase of land on Randolph road, where it is proposed to locate a pumping station for the southside sanitary sewer. At another meeting to be held before the close of the year the city business for the year will be closed up.

Netherwood Club Progressing.

The Netherwood Club, which was recently formed ta the parish house of St. Stephen's church by the men of Netherwood, is making rapid progress. The membership is increasing and plans for an active season are being made. The club meets twice a month at the parish house and enjoys the privileges offered.

New Rector at St. Paul's Church.

Rev. and Mrs. W. O. Jarvis, Jr., of Westfield, have moved to Liberty, N. Y., where Mr. Jarvis will have charge of the Episcopal church. Mr. Jarvis is succeeded at St. Paul's church, Westfield, by Rev. Sydney Cross, formerly curate of All Angels' church, 81st street and West End avenue, New York.

Plum for Matthews.

John J. Matthews, of Hunterdon county, an Assemblyman from Union county in 1887-1888, is said to be slated for clerk of the next House of Assembly.

MOURNED AS DEAD; HE'S ALIVE AND RICH

MAN DISAPPEARED THIRTY YEARS AGO NOW WANTS TO FIND RELATIVES.

The police of Elizabeth received yesterday a letter from a man who mysteriously disappeared from that city thirty years ago. It was supposed he had either met foul play or committed suicide.

In 1876 John P. F. Byrnes conducted a plumber's shop at Rahway avenue and Broad street, Elizabeth. It is not now known where he lived at that time. One day he was missing and all trace of him was lost. His mother tried to find him, but the police could find no trace of him. After waiting some time the man was mourned by his family and friends as dead.

The letter received yesterday from Byrnes asked that the family be looked up, as he wanted to know the present whereabouts of his mother, sister and brother. The writer intimated that he was well off and was anxious to take care of them if they could be found. He said his address is No. 137 Chestnut street, Long Beach, Cal. The letter was posted in San Francisco.

A policeman was detailed to search for the relatives, but found none of them. Only one person remembered Byrnes when he was in Elizabeth. That person is J. Madison Drake, who was Colonel of the Third Regiment. He said Byrnes was a member of Company I, of that regiment. The Colonel gave the police the information that Byrnes at one time conducted the plumbing shop at Rahway avenue and Broad street, but said he did not know the whereabouts of any of the man's family.

At the time of his arrest he claimed to be a detective and when the police found him in Dr. Cannon's house he said that he was lookin for burglars.

MISSING FOR SIX WEEKS

Boston Woman Prostrated Over Absence of Husband Who Started for Plainfield.

MAY BE DERANGED

Kough Was Unbalanced Mentally Sometime Ago—His Sister Formerly Lived Here.

In an effort to locate Dennis Keough, who has been missing from his home in Boston, Mass., for six weeks, the Boston papers and Keough's wife have enlisted the aid of the police and the postoffice here. Keough left Boston to visit his sister, Mrs. Bridget Garrity, who he supposed lived at her old home, 10 Arlington avenue. Nothing has been heard of him by the family since he started from Boston with a ticket for Plainfield and $8.25 in his pockets.

Mrs. Garrity moved, with her husband, from Arlington avenue to New Brunswick, six years ago. No correspondence had passed between the Garritys and the Keoughs in that time, and the Keoughs knew nothing of the change. When the weeks passed without word from her husband, Mrs. Keough wrote a registered letter to Mrs. Garrity here, and when the postoffice reported its inability to deliver, she wrote to Chief Kiely and appealed for his help in locating either her husband or Mrs. Garrity. A few days later the Boston papers became interested in the case, and the "Post," of that city, asked Postmaster Bird to help find Mrs. Garrity.

Chief Kiely discovered the Garritys by chance. He was in New Brunswick a few days after Mrs. Keough's letter reached him, and saw Garrity, whom he knew, standing on a bridge. Mrs. Garrity had heard nothing of her brother for years. Chief Kiely forwarded that information to Mrs. Keough.

Keough suffered from mental trouble not long before he left Boston, losing his memory temporarily, and it is believed now that he suffered a relapse while on his way here and became an aimless wandered, with a blank mind. He cannot write. He was a temperate man, devoted to his wife, and she is breaking down with grief over his disappearance.

Keough is described as five feet nine inches in height, with reddish hair, sandy mustache, and a dimple in his chin. He wore a brown suit, red stockings, rubber-heeled shoes and a derby hat.

Chief Kiely has all his men seeking traces of the missing man about town. He may have come here, and lost his memory after wandering about the streets, in search of his sister's address. Mrs. Keough has written several letters to the Chief, and still has hope that he may be found, or traced, here.

ANCHOR LODGE ELECTS.

J. T. Sutphen Chosen Worshipful Master of Masons.

At a regular communication of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, last night, these officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Rogers; trustees, Rev. E. M. Rodman, O. T. Waring and Frank Wynkoop; representative to Masonic Hall Association, S. B. Joseph; tyler, Casper Bolsterle, of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26.

Archdeacon on North Carolina.

Archdeacon Walter Hughson, who is a missionary in the mountain districts of North Carolina, addressed the Men's Club of Grace church Monday night, telling at some length of his interesting work. He described the moral, intellectual and social conditions of the people of the mountain districts of North Carolina, all of which he said were deplorable. He also touched upon polygamy, which is practiced more or less in that part of the country, and told of the many peculiar customs of the people. Notwithstanding these conditions, Archdeacon Hughson declared that the work is encouraging and much progress is made in promoting Christianity.

VIVED IMPERSONATIONS OF JOSEPH JEFFERSON

GEORGE KIERNAN'S RECITAL OF "THE RIVALS" PLEASES LARGE AUDIENCE.

With all the accessories of scenery and costume to act a single part upon the stage that shall charm the audience with truth to life and reality, is the work of an artist. To act many parts, with neither scenery or costume to accentuate the characters represented, is greater art and requires greater skill. Geo. Kiernan, who appeared for the first time before a Plainfield audience last night at the Casino did not only this but recalled Joseph Jefferson, the best loved actor of his time, in his rendering of Bob Acres in "The Rivals." Before his recital, Mr. Kiernan said he did not essay to re-create the great actor's marvelous personality, but to recall it to memory by suggestion.

Sheridan's famous comedy, written more than a century and a quarter ago, has a variety of characters that on the stage make their appeal to human nature, and Mr. Kiernan last night held the close attention of his audience from the beginning to the close of the entertainment. Sir Anthony Absolute with his fiery impetuosity, his son Jack in his dual part with Ensign Beverly, a manly young fellow deeply in love; Faulkner, the unreasonable and pessimistic lover; Lydia Languish, romantic and rebellious; Mrs. Maloprop, whose astonishing use of language is always convulsing; Sir Lucius O'Ligger, the fighting hero, and David, the faithful and criticising servant, were all represented in quick succession with a skill that made one marvel as well as enjoy. It was in the acting of Bob Acres, a minor part until Jefferson made it famous, that Mr. Kiernan showed his greatest skill. The country man transformed into the good natured fob with curl papers and dancing steps, the inviting of the challenge at the instigation of Sir Lucius O'Trigger, and the oozing away of the poor man's courage in the duel scene were full of absorbing interest as given by Mr. Kiernan. A running ripple of laughter through the audience testified to the pleasure enjoyed as well as applause and recalls. It is not necessary for Mr. Kiernan to imitate Jefferson to give pleasure, for those who never heard the great actor find his representations full of charm.

On Tuesday evening, December 18, Mr. Kiernan will appear again at the Casino in the famous role of Rip Van Winkle, a representation that won for Jefferson the love and admiration of all who love the stage. We bespeak for Mr. Kiernan on that occasion an equally large and interested audience.

BOOTBLACKS UNION IS THE NEXT THING.

Shine Artists to Combine to Prevent Five Cent Jobs.

The spirit of unionism has invaded the ranks of the local bootblacks and steps have been taken by the leading "shine" artists to band together for mutual protection from price cutters. A meeting has been called by scar Nelson, who wields a brush over the pedal extremities of West Enders in a Liberty street barber shop, and it will be held at his home Friday night. His chief supporters in the move are "Jim" Scott, Louis Randolph and George Ruggles and they are now busy preparing a scale of prices to be maintained. It is proposed to inflict fines on those who are caught taking less than a fixed charge for the "slicking" up process.

The customary price for a polish is ten cents but of late competition has been so keen that many of the bootblacks have been doing it for a nickel. The projectors of the union argue that with the increased cost of materials there is no profit in the business at that rate and that is why they want ten cents as the standard.

Groszmann Exercises.

The usual Christmas exercises of the Groszmann School will be held on Saturday afternoon, December 22nd, at 3 o'clock. The programme will consist of songs, recitations, tableaux, calisthenic exercises and the like. The under-lying idea will be to represent the historical development of Christmas from ancient times, the Christian conception of it, and how it has finally become the annual festival of the child in the family, in which loving attention is centered. Admission is by card only. Cards can be obtained by application to the school or at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

Mother's Meeting.

The Plainfield Mother's Association will meet at the High School on Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. An address will be made by Miss Chadbourne.

Song Recital.

Those who enjoy artistic singing will not fail to be present at the song recital given by Mr. Skiff at Y. M. C. A. Hall tomorrow evening. ***

SMITH CONTROLS PARTY

His Supremacy Over Davis Demonstrated by the Selection of Firth as Speaker.

CAUCUS IN TRENTON

Warren County Man To Be Head of Next Assembly—Result May Help Dryden.

The Democratic members-elect of the House of Assembly, who constitute a majority of that body, at Trenton in caucus yesterday to select a speaker and to apportion the House officers to the various counties. The caucus resulted in the choosing of Joseph H. Firth, of Warren county, for Speaker by a vote of 18 to 13 for Joseph A. Riordan, of Hudson county. This was a victory for ex-United States Senator James Smith, Jr., over Robert Davis, the Democratic leader of Hudson county.

Abram Klenert, of Passaic, was elected chairman of the caucus, which carries with it the House leadership. It is understood that ex-State Senator Lewis J. Martin, of Sussex, will be Speaker Firth's private secretary.

Another thing that was made evident as the result of the day's work was that, if there is a real, lasting compact between Smith and John F. Dryden, the former can deliver the goods and the latter can be re-elected United States Senator.

The caucus was called to order at 3:45 p. m. by Assemblyman Morris, of Sussex, who acted as chairman and leader last year. Edward H. Wright, Jr., of Essex, was made temporary secretary. The election of a new chairman was then in order. Klenert, of Passaic, was nominated by the Smith people, and Alexander, of Hudson, was the choice of the Davis following. By a rising vote Klenert was declared elected by a vote of 18 to 13. This was the first test vote, and showed how well Smith had his forces in hand.

Nominations for Speaker being called for, Joseph A. Riordan presented the name of Edward H. Wright, Jr., of Essex. He was liberally applauded. Simon Hahn, of Essex, named Joseph H. Firth, of Warren. Wright at once withdrew. Mr. Alexander said Hudson would return to its original candidate, Joseph A. Riordan, and presented his name.

The vote was then taken, and Firth was declared elected by a vote of 18 to 13. Firth received the solid vote of Essex, four votes from Passaic and a vote each from Hunterdon, Sussex and Warren. Riordan got the twelve votes of Hudson and one vote (Mertz) from Passaic.

When the vote was announced Baker, of Hudson, created a sensation by moving that the Speaker-elect address the audience. This was greeted with laughter, for, although Mr. Firth was a member of the Legislature last year, he never said a word, and is said to be unable to make a speech of any kind.

Hudson is inclined to be sore over the result. The Davis men charge that Smith will destroy the party just as it is getting on its feet again. There is also a good deal of quiet talk about that a "game" is being played in connection with the United States Senatorship, and that, if the Dryden scheme fails, Smith hopes to land it for himself.

The various House offices were not filled by the selection of individuals, but were apportioned to the different counties as follows:

Essex county—Clerk of the House, assistant supervisor of bills, assistant journal clerk, four doorkeepers and three pages.

Hudson county—Assistant clerk of the House, journal clerk, supervisor of bills, sergeant-at-arms, assistant sergeant-at-arms, assistant supervisor of bills, four doorkeepers and two pages.

Passaic county—Speaker's assistant secretary, assistant sergeant-at-arms, bill clerk, assistant bill clerk, assistant to the clerk of the House, two doorkeepers and two pages.

Warren county—One doorkeeper and one page.

Hunterdon county—Assistant journal clerk, one doorkeeper and one page.

Sussex county—Speaker's secretary, assistant supervisor of bills and one page.

The individuals to fill these offices will be selected by the members from the various committees.

Funeral of Eleanor Harold Braider.

The funeral of Eleanor Harold Braider, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Braider, of East Front street, was held at the parents' home, yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. Two selections were sung by a quartette composed of Mrs. Bender, Miss Nichol, Elmer D. Cutting and F. C. Iglehart. Interment was made at Hillside.

MISSIONARY SERVICE AND AFTERNOON TEA

SOCIAL HUMOR FOLLOWS CRESCENT AVENUE CHURCH UNION MEETING.

The Home and Foreign Missionary Societies of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church held their annual union praise service yesterday afternoon, and, to mark it, they had Rev. J. E. McAfee, of New York, assistant secretary of the Board of Home Missions, make an address on mission work. The attendance was large. A tea followed the meeting.

Responsive readings and hymn singing were the opening numbers of the programme. They were led by the president of the Home Society, Mrs. I. C. Pierson, and one of the vice presidents of the Foreign Society, Mrs. John Gray Foster. Miss Hubbell sang a solo.

Rev. Mr. McAfee's address was on the spirit of missionary support. He urged his hearers to take part in the advancement of missions in a larger, finer spirit. To approach the work with heroism and not self-seeking.

While missionary work was like the casting of bread upon the waters, its returns were not for those who gave in a selfish spirit. Only by real giving, with the thought of self-sacrifice for the benefit of others behind it, could the profit of the work be secured. The returns lay in an enlarged spiritual vision, an enlarged self, and an enlargement of the ehoric spirit. He pleaded for a strong, virile interest in missions, and not something born of maudlin sentiment.

The tea and social hour closed the afternoon delightfully. The committee was made up of Mrs. L. N. Lovell, Mrs. G. H. Campbell and Mrs. F. L. Hyde. Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Louis Kepler Hyde poured.

DR. BERG COMMANDER.

Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R., Elects Officers.

These officers were elected at a regular meeting of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., last night:

Comander, Dr. J. F. Berg; senior vice-commander, Andrew Cox; junior vice-commander, Frederick Wenzel; quartermaster, John R. Naylor; surgeon, Israel Compton; chaplain, Nathan C. Pennington; officer-of-the-day, S. R. Struthers; officer-of-the-guard, Edward Vanderweg; trustees, William C. Smith, William Hand and M. C. Dobbins; delegates to Department Encampment, Andrew Cox, John R. Naylor; alternates, Job Coddington and James Clarkson.

Owing to the fact that the next regular meeting will fall on Christmas Eve, it was decided to meet on Tuesday night, January 8, at which time there will be a public installation of officers. The Women's Relief Corps will nominate officers on Friday night and elect the same on Friday night, December 28, and arrangements will probably be made to install them the same night the post officers are installed. At the conclusion of the business last night, L. V. F. Randolph gave an excellent talk.

A MISSPENT LIFE ENDED

Wayward Girl's Body Saved From Potter's Field by Chief Kiely.

SHE DIED DESERTED

Mother Found In Nyack, N. Y., By Plainfield Police Head—Daughter's Sad Career.

Through the efforts of Chief of Police Kiely, the body of the girl known here five years ago as Evelyn O'Neil, who gained notoriety through acts that drew the attention of the police to her, has been saved from the Potter's Field in New York. She died in the Manhattan Hospital, of that city, and the body was taken to the morgue, where it lay awaiting a claimant until a friend of the dead girl, remembering that she spoke of her mother in Nyack, wrote to Chief Kiely and started the police on a search that located the mother in the New York town.

The girl's death was the sombre climax to a misspent and unhappy life. She went completely wrong here, and fell into the hands of the police several times. The young man to whom she was engaged finally cast her off, and she ended her career here directly after that by attempting to commit suicide in the hallway of Henry Windham's cafe. She swallowed a very weak solution of carbolic acid, and the city physician had no trouble in saving her life. She was held under arrest and steps were taken to have her put away. Rev. Father Farley, who was connected with St. Mary's parish, interested himself in the case and through his influence Evelyn was placed in a house of refuge in Newark.

Plainfield heard nothing more of Evelyn until Chief Kiely received a letter from Michael Keeffe, of New York, who befriended the girl in the metropolis, to where she went after winning her release from the institution, asking for help in finding Evelyn's mother. Keeffe's letter tells a story of constant trouble for the girl. She married a man named Hunter, he says, who abandoned her, ill and care-worn, in a boarding house. Suffering from an incurable disease, the girl was taken to Bellevue Hospital, from where she was transferred to the Manhattan Hospital July 15. She lay there until she died, three weeks ago.

Keeffe had the body held to his order, and sought to find the girl's mother. Failing, he wrote, as a last resort to Chief Kiely. There was not much time left, the morgue authorities limiting the period in which the body could be held, but the chief, stirred by pity for the unfortunate Evelyn, worked swiftly and found the mother before the limit expired. The mother's name is McAvoy. She has relatives here.

The young man to whom Evelyn had been affianced here went all to pieces after the girl was taken away. He took to drinking heavily, and his life became a wreck.

MRS. M'CREA HEAD OF MISSION SOCIETY.

Pastor's Wife New President of Elizabeth District Foreign Society.

Officers were elected and interesting reports and addresses were the features of the annual meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Elizabeth District held at the Fulton Street M. E. church, yesterday afternoon and evening. Owing to illness the president, Mrs. A. C. McCrea, of this city, was unable to preside and Mrs. William Trewin, of Elizabeth, took her place.

These officers were elected for the coming year:

President, Mrs. A. C. McCrea, of Plainfield; first vice-president, Mrs. L. M. Winter, of Plainfield; second vice-president, Mrs. Isabelle Waldman, of Junction; third vice-president, Mrs. Andrew Henry, of Woodbridge; fourth vice-president, Mrs. W. R. Porter, of Princess Bay, S. I.; recording secretary, Mrs. R. L. White, of Westfield; secretary of literature, Miss Louise Karr, of Elizabeth.

There was the report of the general executive meeting and messages from the society's missionary, Miss Jennie V. Hughes, of Kinkiang, China. An intensely interesting address was given by Miss Estey, the society's missionary at Corea.

As a memorial to the conference secretary, Mrs. J. H. Knowles, a Bible Training School is to be founded, perhaps in China. It means $3,000 as a thank offering to be raised by the women of the Newark Conference by September 25, 1907. Mrs. Knowles, who has been conference secretary for twenty-eight years, knows of the intention and approves of it.

—The Sesame Club will meet tomorrow morning at the residence of Mrs. Ostrom, 748 Carlton avenue.

Miss Susie Parse was the guest of friends in Plainfield yesterday.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The funeral of Mrs. Betty Steele Faber, who died at her home in Brooklyn after a long illness of typhoid fever, took place yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at 312 Canal street, Brooklyn. She was the only daughter of Judge and Mrs. Hiram R. Steele, whose summer home is near here. She was married about a year ago and was prominent in the younger society set, having been a member of the Country Club and active in outdoor sports. Mrs. Steele has scarcely recovered from the shock of her mother's death, which took place very suddenly while Judge Steele and family were sightseeing in the West. The burial of Mrs. Faber was in Greenwood cemetery in the family plot.

The prayer service last evening was unusually interesting, the eighteenth Psalm being the theme for consideration. The singing was entered into with more zest than usual and great interest was shown in the work.

The Board of Freeholders of Middlesex county has just paid out $9,373.50, the cost of conducting the election.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Smith attended the funeral of Mrs. Betty Steele Faber, yesterday.

A noted physician of Pittsburg, Pa., in a recent letter to Dr. Oidman says:

"In your prescription known as 'Pepsoids' you have given the medical world the greatest and most valued discovery in medicine of the present century. You have at last solved the problem that has baffled the skill of the best physicians of recent times, how to cure permanently all Acute or Chronic Stomach Diseases known as Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Catarrh of the Stomach and Digestive Weakness. I have used your prescription, 'Pepsoids,' in hundreds of cases without a single failure. I attribute the success of your treatment mainly to the fact that the disease germs of the stomach cannot resist Pepsoids. Consider 'Pepsoids' the best and most valuable remedy yet discovered for the treatment of stubborn stomach ailments."

Pepsoids cure Dyspepsia and all Stomach Diseases, in a new way, by repairing the wornout lining of the Stomach and at the same time, destroy all disease-breeding germs. Dyspepsia and the worst forms of Stomach Disorders once cured in this way never returns.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The splendid dramatization by Lem B. Parker of Bertha M. Clay's delightfully interesting book, "Thorns and Orange Blossoms," is drawing full houses en-tour. The play, like the novel, is full of truth to nature's interest that delights the feminine heart and large proportion of women in the audience watch the delineations of the plot in which true love culminates in marriage, is then turned to misery by a designing one, but in the final act triumphs. The drama will be presented by a strong and unusually well-balanced cast. It will be at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and evening.

Manager Edward R. Salter will present at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night Edgar Selwyn's latest play, "It's All Your Fault," featuring Charles J. Stine and Miss Olive Evans in the leading roles. A regular Kansas cyclone comedy pace is set early in the first act and the action never lags until the final curtain falls. Complications of the most ludicrous kind follow hard on the heels of each other until the stage characters become involved in a seemingly hopeless "mess," but of course it all comes out right in the end. The plot is cleverly conceived and worked out. The situations are mirth provoking in the extreme and the piece possesses all the elements necessary for a jolly good evening's entertainment. The farce had a run of 100 nights at the Savoy theatre, New York city, last season and Alan Dale said it was one of the "few" real treats of the season.

Few American plays have sprung into such instant favor in so short a time as Arthur Nelson's automobile racing play, "The Governor's Pardon," and, judging from what the New York press say of the production, its wonderful success is not without some cause. But great as the play and its wonderful effects undoubtedly are, one of the reasons of its great success can be laid to the fascination of the motor car. Automobile manufacturers generally, are unable to supply the orders for cars, so great has been the demand. Whether the owners of "The Governor's Pardon" are the originators of the automobile play, is hard to say, for it is probable that others might have attempted what Arthur Nelson has accomplished had the large investment necessary to this style of play not kept the smaller play managers out of the field. "The Governor's Pardon" will be at the New Plainfield theatre Friday night.

The New Plainfield theatre will have for its attraction Saturday afternoon and night one of the most successful musical plays that has been presented in New York in many years, for on that occasion Alfred E. Aarons will bring his production of "His Honor, the Mayor," here for a return engagement. It comes from an all summer run at the New York theatre and Wallack's in New York, where it enjoyed a season of success unprecedented in the theatrical history of the metropolis. In many respects the production will be given more elaborately than when seen here before as several new features are to be added, while all the principals who have done so much to assure its success will be retained.

One of the notable events of the present local theatrical season will be the appearance of Miss Ethel Barrymore at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night, when Chas. Frohman will present her in J. M. Barrie's delightful three-act comedy, "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire," in which she appeared with great success for several months last season at the Criterion theatre in New York. The story of "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire" dwells chiefly upon a mother's love for her children, but in the course of the play there is not a little of Barrie's delightful satire upon the up-to-date style of play.

Scratch Kills Surgeon.

New York, Dec. 12.—Dr. Alfred Wild Gardner, forty-eight years old, died at his home, No. 325 West Eighty-ninth street, Sunday, of septic poisoning. Dr. Gardner scratched his hand during a surgical operation several weeks ago. Soon afterward the swelling of his arm convinced him, and so a diagnosis proved, that he had been inoculated with poison from the patient.

THE BUILDING INSPECTOR.

The building inspector should be a man who could devote his whole time to his work and the fire chief should be one who could likewise confine his entire time to the one office. Both are important positions and no man can be expected to hold them and do justice. We do not mean to reflect in anywise on Mr. Doane for he is a capable official, but it does seem that too great a task devolves upon him in the discharge of the duties of two distinct positions. The thing to do is to make his salary right as fire chief and then appoint another man for building inspector.

IT GOES RIGHT ON.

Like former State Senator Charles A. Reed, former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., is a pretty active man for one who has retired from politics. The President of the Fidelity Trust Company issued his valedictory some months ago but only yesterday he got his man chosen in the Democratic caucus for the next speaker of the House. Smith is dead; long live Smith!

NEW SCENERY.

Why should the owner of property lend assistance to the further disfigurement of the streets by placing an ugly looking "lunch-wagon" on his premises? The old shanties in Park avenue, at the head of North avenue, were not near so repulsive to the eye than the thing on wheels which has been backed in on the tract.

A Trenton woman broke her leg yesterday while carrying water. That's what you call "news." Had she broken her leg while carrying a "load" of something stronger, whiskey for example, not so much importance could be attached to it, for the unusual would not figure in the story.

"Can gold be too plentiful?" asks an exchange. So far as we are personally concerned it cannot.—Trenton State Gazette.

Gold? Gold? What is that?

Bowen's precedent is admirably followed by Storer. It's a toss up which was the most un-diplomatic ex-diplomat.

Assemblyman-elect Firth, who will be the next Speaker of the House, is said to be an ex-saloon keeper.

$3,500 RITE FOR GOVERNOR.

Ceremony Will Take Place in East Orange December 21.

It was announced today that Governor Edward C. Stokes will have the Order of Malta, the highest degree of the York Rite Masons, conferred upon him at East Orange Friday night, December 21. The conferring of this honor will be under the auspices of Jersey Commandry, of East Orange. Washington Commandery, of Hartford, Conn., the only commandery qualified for the work, will perform the ceremony. Including the travelling expenses of the Hartford commandery, it is expected the ceremony will cost $3,500.

The ceremony will take place in the womens clubhouse, East Orange. Special music will be rendered by the New York Templar quartette and a large orchestra. The order of Malta in full form has never before been conferred in New Jersey. The grand officers of Connecticut will be present.

Mother Fined for Child's Thefts.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 12.—Mrs. Marie Vanso was fined today for keeping stolen goods brought home by her five-year-old daughter Margaret. The child has for some time purloined her schoolmates' wearing apparel, portions of which were found in the mother's possession. Judge Mathewson scored Mrs. Vanso for "employing the innocent child as a tool for committing theft."

Wings and Flies

By Tom Muir.

"Alice Sit-by-the-Fire," which will be seen at the local playhouse next Monday night, derives its name from a scene at the very close of the play where Miss Barrymore reads some of the most poetic lines that Barrie has ever written. This is the young actress' eighth season as a star and in "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire" she has made the hit of her career.

Ralph Stuart, who was seen in Plainfield twice last year, has been secured by Manager Counihan for his Christmas day attraction. He will present his popular play, "By Right of Sword."

The big attractions that will hold the boards at the New Plainfield in the near future include the following: "His Honor, the Mayor," December 15; Ethel Barrymore, December 17; Digby Bell in "The Education of Mr. Pipp," December 27, matinee and night; May Irwin in "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews," December 31; "Under Southern Skies," New Year's afternoon and night; Fay Templeton in "Forty-Five Minutes from Broadway," January 7; "David Harum," January 8; "Piff-Paff-Pouf," January 9; Lillian Mortimer, January 10; "The Girl from Broadway," January 12; Sousa's "The Free Lance," January 15; "The Mayor of Tokio," January 19.

Charles Klein's newest play, "The Daughters of Men," now meeting with great success at the Astor theatre, New York, has been secured for appearance in this city on February 18.

Harry Kelly, the young comedian who has scored so remarkable a success in New York the past summer in Alfred E. Aarons' production of the musical play, "His Honor, the Mayor," has been on the stage since he was seven years old. He was for many years associated with his stepfather, John T. Kelly, so long a member of the Weber & Fields All Star Stock Company. Young Mr. Kelly is under a five year contract with Mr. Aarons, and will be starred next season in a musical play called "Deacon Flood," built around the amusing character he plays in "His Honor, the Mayor."

WORLD'S PEACE PRIZE TO ROOSEVELT FOR ENDING WAR.

Christiania, Norway, Dec. 12.—The Norwegian Parliament has conferred the Nobel Peace Prize upon President Roosevelt.

The Nobel Peace Prize is awarded to President Roosevelt in recognition of his services in ending the Russo-Japanese War. Candidates for this distinction must be proposed by legislative bodies, peace organizations or universities. It is understood that the President's sponsors were Professor H. P. Judson, acting president of Chicago University; Professor Baldwin, of Yale; Professor Harberger, of the University of Munich and the Faculty of Georgetown University, Washington.

The peace prize went last year to Baroness von Uttner, of Vienna, and in previous years to W. H. Cremer, M. P., of England; Professor de Martens, of Russia, and Henri Dunant, founder of the Red Cross.

The Nobel Peace Prize is part of a bequest left by Dr. Alfred Bernhard Nobel, the Swedish scientist, who died in 1896. By his will a large portion of his fortune was devoted to five annual prizes, each valued at about $40,000. They were awarded for the most important discoveries in physics, chemistry, physiology or medicine; for the most distinguished work of an idealistic tendency in the field of literature, and for the best effort toward the fraternity of nations and the promotion of peace. The last named is awarded by the Norwegian Parliament. The others are awarded by institutions at Stockholm.

Remarkable Lockjaw Cure.

New York, Dec. 12.—After six weeks of unconsciousness, during which time his body was bent like a bow, Richard Miller, thirty-three years old, a carpenter, who lives in No. 433 Flushing avenue, Astoria, has fully recovered from an attack of lockjaw. Miller's case is said to be the most remarkable in the history of the disease in this city and has attracted wide attention in the medical profession. His body bent so that, lying face upward, only his heels and the back of hih head would touch the bed, his body forming a strongly curved arch. The antitoxin treatment did not relieve this condition, the man remained unconscious and soon his case was regarded as practically hopeless so far as recovery was concerned. Miller continued to live, however, although his death was daily expected. His only diet was the small quantity of liquid food which could be forced through his tightly locked teeth. When six weeks had elapsed and the carpenter was almost a skeleton he began to have brief returns of consciousness. His jaws remained locked at first after these periods began, but he was found one day semi-conscious and gnawing at his bed clothing, his jaws at last relaxed and apparently seeking to exercise in any way immediately possible their long discontinued functions.

MINSTRELS TO BEGIN 3D SEASON TONIGHT

GOLD MEDAL TO MAKE FIRST STOP ON KEROSENE ROUTE AT SCOTCH PLAINS.

Muir's Gold Medal minstrel troupe, which is now in its third year, opens up the present winter's season at Scotch Plains tonight. The members will give one of its well known black face entertainments in Excelsior hall for the benefit of the Scotch Plains Baseball Association and from indications it will be greeted by an S. R. O. audience.

The troupe this season consists in all of twenty well known local artists. In the customary first part, Joseph C. Martin will act as interlocutor and the ends will be held by Harry Blimm, Tom Muir, George B. Cose and Will Doud. They will all give end songs and other soloists will be Horace Martin, Jr., Harry Roberts, Jack Todd and Jack Hall. In the olio, Tom Muir gives a monologue styled "Tersely Told trolleyisms and other talk," The Musical Stewarts put on an elaborate musical act and The Four H Quartette entertains with a singing and talking specialty. The latter organization is composed of Horace Martin, Jr., Hugh Ricketts, Harry Roberts and Harry Blimm and they have a "headline" act. The show closes with an afterpiece entitled "The Last Resort, or Medical Attention while you Wait," in which the characters are taken by members of the troupe.

Following the performance at Scotch Plains, the Gold Medals will play dates at New Market, South Plainfield, Stirling and Bound Brook.

STITES THE WINNER.

Judge Swayze Gives Republican Contested Dunellen Collectorship.

I. J. Stites, Republican, was declared the winner in the contested election for collector of Dunellen, by Judge Swayze in the county court at New Brunswick yesterday afternoon. He is given two votes more than his opponent, John Moynihan, Democrat.

The election, according to the Dunellen election board, was a tie. Mr. Stites protested against the rejection of two ballots, and carried the case to the county board. The board vigorously excluded every questionable ballot and cut heavily into the vote of both men. Moynihan suffered most, when Judge Swayze approved the majority of the findings, Stites trimphed. The revised total is 177 to 175.

Machines Exonerated.

That it was the election officers at Rahway and not the voting machine that bungled in giving 165 votes to James E. Martine, Democratic nominee for Congress, in the Fifth district, that did not belong to him, was the conclusion reached by the State Board of Election examiners after inspecting the machine at the State House yesterday. Senator E. R. Ackerman is a member of the State Board.

The line-up: Stillman—Bromfield, Miller, f; Bohan, c; Lester, Bustol, g. Y. M. C. A.—Robins, Richardson, Knowlton, f; Conroy, c; Vail, Lindsay, Richardson, g.

TRINITY TO HAVE AN S. S. LIBRARY

REPORT AT ANNUAL MEETING THAT FUND ON HAND IS SUFFICIENT.

Officers were elected, committees appointed and matters of more or less importance were discussed at the annual meeting of the officers and teachers of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school, last night. The school was reported to be in a flourishing condition financially and otherwise and there is a balance of $452.79 as reported by Treasurer E. H. Bird. But as it is proposed to buy a new library, something needed very much, it will require most of this fund to secure it.

All were impressed with the overcrowded condition of the primary department, yet the school does not feel at present like expending a large sum to build an addition to the rear of the church to meet the demand for more room. The beginners' department meets in the church proper and the little tots have been using the pews. Upon the recommendation of the teacher it was thought advisable to purchase a sufficient number of small chairs which will add to their comfort. This will probably be done. There are 143 children in the primary department and Mrs. J. M. Tier, the superintendent, reported that last Sunday 133 were present and she accounted for the remaining six who had good excuses for not attending. The question of purchasing small chairs was left to the executive committee.

These officers and committees were selected for the coming year:

Superintendent, F. E. Smith; assistant superintendent, Horace J. Martin, Jr.; superintendent junior department, Mrs. L. R. Schofield; superintendent primary department, Mrs. J. M. Tier; superintendent beginners' department, Mrs. H. E. Gayle; superintendent of the Home department, Mrs. Charles E. Ball; secretary Home department, Mrs. Louis M. Dunavan; treasurer, H. E. Gayle; secretary, Elias H. Bird; assistant secretary, Chauncey F. Colthar; librarian, H. C. VanEmburgh; assistants, Alfred W. Dunavan, Clarence Rittenhouse, LeRoy Woodhull.

Executive committee, William F. Oliver, chairman; J. P. Laire, Miss Mabel Wilson; teachers' committee, Mrs. Cornelius Schenck, chairman; George L. VanEmburgh, Miss Mabel Wilson; librarian committee, Alfred W. Dunavan, chairman; Harry F. Crawford, Mrs. William Tunison; music committee, Miss Lillian A. Force, chairman; Miss May Randolph, Elmer Wheeler, Horace J. Martin, Sr., W. C. Leek; pianist, Miss Lillian A. Force; assistant, Miss Hazel Martin.

Conferred the Third Degree.

Before a large gathering in Knights of Columbus hall, last night, the Third degree was conferred upon twenty-two members of Watchung Council. The work was accomplished by the Third degree team of the Newark Council and the witnesses included members of the order from Elizabeth, Perth Amboy, Rahway, Morristown and New Brunswick. State Deputy Charles J. Barreet, of South Orange, was also present. The exercises were followed by a collation.

The Light That Lights

Gas light has a clear quality that illumines every object which comes within its logical radiation.

It shows up pictures on the walls to their best advantage.

It adds to comfort by adding to the general beauty as well as usefulness in the home.

Supplemented by Welsbach Burners it is the right light for all night work.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON, AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHAPTER VIII.

A Revelation from the Lord.

From his little one-roomed cabin, dark, smoky, littered with hay, old blankets, and skins, he heard excited voices outside, one early morning in January. He opened the door and found a group of men discussing a miracle that had been wrought overnight. The Lord had spoken to Brigham and word had come to Zion to move toward the west.

He hurried over to Brigham's house and by that good man was shown the word of the Lord as it had been written down from his lips. With emotions of reverential awe he read the inspired document.

"The Word and Will of the Lord Concerning the Camp of Israel in its Journeyings to the West." Such was its title.

"Let all the people," it began, "of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, be organized into companies with a covenant and a promise to keep all the statutes of the Lord our God.

"Let the companies be organized with captains of hundreds and captains of fifties and captains of tens, with a President and Counsellor at their head under the direction of the Twelve Apostles.

"Let each company provide itself with all the teams, wagons, provisions, and all other necessaries for the journey.

"Let every man use all his influence and property to remove this people to the place where the Lord shall locate a stake of Zion, and let them share equally in taking the poor, the widows, and the fatherless, so that their cries come not up into the ears of the Lord against His people.

"And if ye do this with a pure heart, with all faithfulness, ye shall be blessed in your flocks and in your herds and in your fields and in your families. For I am the Lord your God, even the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and of Jacob. I am He who led the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt, and my arm is stretched out in these last days to save my people of Israel.

"Fear not thine enemies, for they are in my hands, and I will do my pleasure with them.

"My people must be tried in all things, that they may be worthy to receive the glory that I have in store for them, even the glory of Zion; and he that will not receive chastisement is not worthy of my Kingdom. So no more at present. Amen and Amen!"

This was what he had longed for each winter night when he had seen the sun go down,—the word of the Lord to follow that sun out over the rim into the pathless wilderness, infested by savage tribes and ravenous beasts, abounding in terrors unknown.

Early in April the life began to stir more briskly in the great camp that sprawled along either side of the swollen, muddy river. From dawn to dark each day the hills echoed with the noise of many works; the streets were alive with men and women going and coming on endless errands, and with excited children playing at games inspired by the occasion. Wagons were mended and loaded with provisions and tools, oxen shod, ox bows renewed, guns put in order, bullets moulded, and the thousand details perfected of a migration so hazardous. They were busy, noisy, excited, happy days.

At last, in the middle of April, the signs were seen to be right. Grass grew and water ran, and their part, allotted by the Lord, was to brave the dangers of that forbidding land that lay under the western sun. Then came a day of farewells and merry making. In the afternoon, the day being mild and sunny, there was a dance in the bowery,—a great arbor made of poles and brush and wattling. Here, where the ground had been trodden firm, the age and maturity as well as the youth and beauty of Israel gathered in such poor festal array as they had been able to save from their ravaged stores.

The Twelve Apostles led off in a double cotillion, to the moving strains of a violin and horn, the lively jingle of a string of sleigh-bells, and the genial snoring of a tambourine. Then came dextrous displays in the dances of our forbears, who followed the fiddle to the Fox-chase Inn or Garden of Gray's Ferry. There were French Fours, Copenhagen jigs, Virginia reels, — spirited figures blithely stepped. And the grave-faced, square-jawed Elders seemed as eager as the unthinking youths and maidens to throw off for the moment the burden of their cares.

From midday until the April sun dipped below the sharp skyline of the Omaha hills, the modest revel endured.

CHAPTER IX.

Into the Wilderness.

On to the West at last to build the house of God in the mountains. On to what Daniel Webster had lately styled "A region of savages and wild beasts, of deserts, of shifting sands and whirlwinds of dust, of cactus and prairie dogs."

The little band of pioneers chosen to break a way for the main body of the Saints consisted of 143 men, three women, and two children. They were to travel in 73 wagons, drawn by horses and oxen. They knew not where they were to stop, but they were men of eager initiative, fearless and determined; and their consolation was that, while their exodus into the desert meant hardship and grievous suffering, it also promised them freedom from Gentile interference. It was not a fat land into which they were venturing; but at least it was a land without a past, lying clean as it came from the hand of its maker, where they could be free to worship God without fearing the narrow judgment of the frivolous. Instructed in the sacred mysteries revealed to Joseph Smith through the magic light of the Urim and Thummim, and sustained by the divine message engraved on the golden plates he had dug up from the hill of Cumorah, they were now ready to feel their way across the continent and blaze a trail to the new Jerusalem.

"Keep in My Sinful Heart the Face of Her Who Has Left to Dwell Among the Gentiles."

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Before you give the contract to paint or paper your house consult Charles Conover & Co., of Elmwood place. The firm's line of wall papers is large and attractive.

The H. E. Gayle Hardware Company is offering a large stock of hardware, household utensils and many useful articles just the thing to make a Christmas gift. Look this stock over before purchasing elsewhere.

Roth & Co., the East Front street butchers, are selling the choicest cuts of beef, salt and fresh, chickens, poultry, fish, and in fact everything to be found at a first-class market. In preparing for the holidays just remember this place. You will save money.

M. Weinberger, the West Front street clothier, is prepared to sell you the best suit of clothes, proper cut, guaranteed material, at the lowest prices. His stock for the winter is one of the largest to be found outside of New York. The line of men's furnishings is also very attractive and affords an opportunity for people to purchase suitable Christmas presents.

DO YOUR SHOPPING NOW.

Or Before December 13 by Telephone When You Can.

A movement is on foot to relieve as far as possible the over-worked clerks and shop girls of the big department stores, during the holiday rush. This movement has been started by the Consumers League of New Jersey, to relieve the shopping conditions as far as possible in the Newark stores.

Some stores are open from 8:30 a. m. to 11 p. m. for nearly two weeks preceding Christmas. These long hours are not made necessary by the greed of the shopkeepers, but by the habit into which the purchasing public has fallen of crowding their holiday shopping into the last few days.

This results in overwork and actual suffering on the part of salesmen, package girls, delivery boys, and messengers to a degree which can hardly be appreciated. To relieve these conditions as far as possible the adoption of the following rules is advised:

1. Shop early, not later than December 15th.
2. Shop early in the day.
3. Request that no packages be sent after 6 p. m.
4. Telephone your orders is possible.

This last is perhaps better than any of the other three, as if one telephones he is not only saving his own time, but the time of the clerks in the store, and is avoiding the crush and the inconvenience of mixing in the holiday crowd of buyers.

If these suggestions are pertinent to conditions in Plainfield how much more applicable are they to conditions existing in our New York stores.

COURT WARNS SMALL FIRMS.

Must File Certificates in Order to Recover Debts by Legal Processes.

According to a decision rendered by Judge Erwin, in the Second District Court in Jersey City, last Saturday, unincorporated concerns that have not filed with the county clerk, in the counties wherein they do business, certificates showing who constitutes the firms, cannot recover by legal proceedings any debts that may be due them.

This decision was based on a law passed by the Legislature. The act provides that any person or persons transacting business in this State under a company or firm name must file certificates showing the name of the firm and who composes it. The penalty for failing to do this is a $1,000 fine or imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months. The failure to comply with this act also debars any such concern from all legal standing in court.

It was because of his failure to file a certificate that the plaintiff in the case at issue lost his suit. He was Wallace D. Patterson, of West Hoboken, who sued as the Consumers' Coal Company to recover $10 from Henry Brianski, for three tons of coal.

STEP TOWARD CENT POSTAGE.

Bill Asks One-Cent Rate for Each Ounce After First Up to 4 Pounds.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—What amounts to an initial step toward one-cent postage is represented in a bill introduced yesterday by Senator Penrose regulating rates on packages. The plan was devised by ex-Postmaster Huidekoper, of Philadelphia. The bill provides that mailed packages up to four pounds shall be accepted as first-class matter on payment of 2 cents for the first ounce and 1 cents an ounce for each ounce in excess of one ounce.

Senator Penrose has gone carefully into the plan as proposed by Mr. Huidekoper and gives it enthusiastic indorsement.

Joseph Savalonsky, the West Third street butcher, who was injured on the Park avenue crossing of the Lehigh Valley Railroad a couple of weeks ago, is improving rapidly and hopes to return home from the hospital soon.

DIED IN HIS WAGON.

Body of Grocer Still Warm When Found by Freeholder.

Henry Herlick, of Warrenville, a travelling grocer, was found dead in his wagon at Contown, this afternoon, by Freeholder Joel Coddington. The body was still warm, but in the opinion of Dr. Albert Pittis Herlick has been dead for at least an hour. Heart trouble is the cause given. The county physician has been notified.

Mr. Herlick kept a grocery store at Warrenville, but had an extensive country route. When he left home this morning he was in his usual good health. He was 62 years old and leaves a wife and five children. The latter are Mrs. Rudolph Kiersting, of Plainfield; Charles and Robert Herlick, of Newark; Miss Lucy Herlick, of New York, and Miss Grace Herlick, who lives at home.

Bowling and General Sports

BRITTON AND WILLET LEAD IN BOWLING TOURNEY

START OFF IN BIG CONTEST BY CAPTURING THREE GAMES.

With six teams combatting for points, the two-man team tourney started off at McLaughlin's alleys in good shape last night. The pins were smashed in a way that tickled the fancy of the large gathering of fans on hand and gave promise of some of the best rolling ever seen in the city as soon as the competitors settle down to their gait.

Honors for the evening went to Ed Brittin and Frank Willett, who captured all three games they rolled with V. W. Nash, Jr., and Louis Skelley. It gave them three points and in addition they got the highest team score for the entire series, making 400 in the first game. Sam Felver and Patsy Reville took two games from the three they rolled with Harry VanEmburg and Frank Blatz, while Harry Radin and Harry Ackor fared similarly in their three with Gus Sheelen and Joe Alberts. Acker got high score for the evening, making a 229 in his third game and he and Radin took high team score, a 421. Something was radically wrong with Felver at the start-off and he turned in 137 for his first game, the lowest for the twelve bowlers.

As the record stands now, Brittin and Willet, who are known as the "candy kid" team, have three points; Felver and Reville have two, Ackor and Radin two, VanEmburg and Blatz one, Sheelen and Alberts one, and Nash and Skelly begin with a ciper.

The prize lies for the tourney aggregates $100, to be divided as follows: For team winning greatest number of points $40, team getting second greatest number of points $20, team getting third number $10, highest team average $10, highest team score $10, highest individual score $10.

PARKS TAKE TWO GAMES FROM NEWARK BAY

TIE SECOND GAME BUT WIN ON THE ROLL OFF.

The Parks visited the Newark Bays at Bayonne, last night and maintained the good work begun by them in the Central Journal Bowling League tournament last week, when they won two games from Roselle Casino. Last night they defeated Newark Bay in the first game by a score of 755 to 740. The second game was a tie each team rolling a score of 776, but in the roll off of the tie, the Parks won by 106 to 86. In the third game the local five fell down and Newark Bay won out by a score of 797 to 775.

Despite the good work on the part of the Parks they met with more or less misfortune. The pins fell very hard and there were innumerable splits, making it impossible to score high. Not a single member of the local team reached the 200 mark, F. O. Ball being high man with a score of 183, which he rolled in the second game. The other scores averaged between 137 and 167.

On the average the Newark Bays did not do so well, in fact the individual and collective work was below that expected of them on their own alleys. Beckwith was their high man with a score of 183 in the third game and the remaining scores were only fair. The scores:

SIXTY GOLF CLUBS REPRESENTED AT DINNER.

Metropolitan Association Holds Annual Meeting at Delmonico's.

Sixty clubs were represented at the annual meeting of the Metropolitan Golf Association last night at Delmonico's. Daniel Chauncey presided until the election of W. Fellowes Morgan as president for the coming year. It was voted to raise the dues to $15, but not to open the doors to clubs not in the first place members of the United States Golf Association.

It was voted that none but resident players may hereafter compete in the annual amateur championship of the Metropolitan Golf Association. A motion to extend the territorial limits to a radius of seventy-five miles of New York city, the object being to take in the New Haven Country Club, was left to the executive committee. Those elected to office were: President, W. Fellowes Morgan; vice president, Arden M. Robbins; secretary, Leighton Calkins; treasurer, F. C. Jennings. Simeon Ford and J. R. Maxwell, Jr., were elected to the board of governors.

DIAMOND DUST.

Frank J. Farrell, owner of the New York American League Club, will attend the annual fall meeting of the American League, which will convene today at the Auditorium Hotel, Chicago. For the first time since Ban Johnson decided to invade the metropolis the New York club is on Easy street. When Farrell received the franchise in 1903 he spent $125,000 in fixing up the present home of the Americans. In 1904 after breaking even on expenses only during the preceding season the club made a few thousand dollars, while in 1905 the profits were about $28,000, exclusive of the receipts from football. But during last season the public began to appreciate American League ball more than ever before, with the result that three times as many persons saw the Griffith team play in New York as attended in 1905, while the patronage on the road was immense. As a natural result Farrell was able to figure up about $90,000 after all expenses had been paid, which placed the club on velvet in anticipation of a money making campaign in 1907. Farrell therefore goes to the American League meeting well satisfied with his baseball investment and determined to give to metropolitan fans the best return possible for their patronage.

BASKETBALL.

The first game in the Inter-City Basketball League will be played at the Y. M. C. A. court this afternoon between Leal's team and the one from the North Plainfield High School. Both teams are evenly matched and a fine game should result.

New York Election Figures.

New York, Dec. 12.—Charles E. Hughes' plurality over W. R. Hearst, according to the official figures of the canvass in each county, is 57,973. William Astor Chanler was elected Lieutenant Governor over M. Linn Bruce by 5,442.

Casino Project Tonight.

A meeting of citizens interested in a scheme to purchase the Casino for a club house will be held at that place tonight.

Two candidates were initiated by Freedom Castle, No. 42, K. G. E., last night.

FREEHOLDERS IN A TILT

Somerset County Official Says Fellow Member of Board Was Wrongfully Elected.

HOT BATTLE FOLLOWS

Wordy Encounter When the Accusation Is Made By W. J. Logan Against Joseph Fitzga.

The meeting of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders, Tuesday, developed an exciting period that made the session an unusually lively one. Alvah A. Clark, counsel for the Building Committee which has been appointed to erect a new county jail and courthouse at the cost of $400,000, went before the board and read a statement in reply to stories questioning the legality of the appointment of the Building Committee, which had expended more than $8,000 for architects and counsel fees before the ground was broken for the new courthouse. Mr. Clark said the action of the committee was justifiable, and wound up his address by saying that there was perfect harmony between the freeholders and the Building Committee despite stories to the contrary.

This brought Freeholder Fitzga to his feet with the declaration that he had held up Mr. Clark's bill for counsel fees until it had been signed by a member of the Building Committee and had also questioned the expenditure of $7,000 for the new courthouse, which had not yet been started, and that he had done so openly at the last regular meeting of the board. Freeholder Hoagland of the Building Committee, accused Mr. Fitzga of underhand methods in stirring up trouble for the committee.

Mr. Fritzga retorted that the unusual delay in constructing the new jail and courthouse, and the heavy expenditures, was being talked about by the taxpayers all over the county and he had a right to question the methods of the committee in the interest of his constituents. William J. Logan, former director of the Board of Freeholders, now chairman of the Building Committee, charged Mr. Fitzga with criticizing the amount of per diems received by the committee and keeping secret the per diems received by himself, which were in excess of those received by the committee.

Mr. Fitzga said his per diems was justifiable, as he had Bridgewater township, the most populous in the county, to look after. He then turned on Mr. Logan and said:

"The former director has continued to make a disturbance for me ever since I usurped him as a member of this board. He has even circulated incriminating stories and charged me with securing my election by fraud.

"He has stated that I helped defraud him out of thirty or forty votes which he says were taken from the ballot-box and never counted in the Raritan district. He has also charged me with offering to build a bridge for a man to secure my election, a story that I have already proven a falsehood."

Former Director Logan said that he desired to reiterate his charge that Mr. Fitzga had secured his election by fraud and that he (Mr. Logan) had been defrauded out of thirty votes that had been cast for him at the Raritan polls. Pointing his finger at Mr. Fitzga, Mr. Logan said: "That man was never legally elected and has no right to sit here."

Mr. Fitzga made a heated retort and the wordy war kept up until Director Baird called the men to order.

SCOTCH PLAINS WELCOMES GOLD MEDAL MINSTRELS

LOCAL BLACKFACE TROUPE AGAIN PLAYS TO CROWDED HOUSE.

Scotch Plains and the surrounding countryside turned out in full force again last night for the annual appearance of Muir's Gold Medal Minstrel troupe at Excelsior hall. The show provided by the Plainfield company has become an expected event in the village each season and a capacity crowd is always in attendance to greet it. The local contingent was added to by a large number from Plainfield, last night, and the result was the putting out of the S. R. O. sign.

The show was the best the Gold Medals have yet given at the 'Plains and the audience was convulsed with laughter all through the programme. In the first part, the end men, who were Harry Blimm, Will Doud, Tom Muir and George Cose, got off a batch of good jokes at the expense of Interlocutor Joseph C. Martin and the soloists scored distinct hits. Horace Martin, Jr., delighted with a pretty tenor solo, "Won't You Come Over to My House," and Jack Hall and Jack Todd were greeted with tumultuous applause.

A big feature of the show was the first appearance of the Four H Quartette, composed of four members of the troupe. It consists of Horace Martin, Jr., first tenor; Harry Roberts, second tenor; Hugh Ricketts, baritone, and Harry Blimm, bass. They gave a singing and talking speciality in costume that was a "scream" from start to finish. It was harmony and fun nicely blended and earned the artists several hearty encores.

The Musical Stewarts, the well-known local performers, presented their musical act, and the closing afterpiece, "The Last Resort," in which the parts were taken by Harry Roberts, Tom Muir, Harry Blimm, Will Doud, Jack Todd and George Cose, sent the audience home in good humor.

The show was given under the auspices of the Scotch Plains Baseball Association for the benefit of its treasury.

PINNED BENEATH HIS RIG

Driver Morris Powers Held Down When It Was Overturned by Runaway Horse.

SAVED BY PATROLMAN

Lifted Out Half Conscious and Taken Home in Patrol Wagon—May Be Hurt Internally.

Patrolman Dan McDonald was cooling his heels at Central avenue and Sixth street at 5:15 o'clock this morning, waiting for his relief, when a horse, with one shaft trailing from the remnants of its harness, galloped in sight from Seventh street. McDonald got busy and brought the animal to a standstill. He tied it to a light pole and ran to Seventh street to see if there was any sign of the rest of the rig.

As he sighted up and down the streets a faint cry, from westward, reached his ears. He got busy again and hustled down the street. At Plainfield avenue he found Morris Powers, of 765 East Second street, driver for Marchant Bros., milk dealers, pinned under the wagon that belonged with the horse McDonald stopped.

McDonald got busy once more, and lifted the wagon from Powers. The latter was badly bruised, and half conscious. McDonald carried him into a house, and telephoned for the patrol wagon. Driver Thomas O'Gorman picked up Dr. C. B. Lufburrow, the city physician, on the way down. The doctor could find no broken bones, and he brought Powers around into shape that admitted of his removal to his home in the patrol wagon in a half an hour. Powers came out of his daze and told what had happened.

He had been on the point of turning his wagon around, after delivering milk at the house before which he lay, when one of the shaft bolts dropped out, and one of the shafts fell with a clatter that startled the horse. The animal jumped around, and the wagon went over, pinning Powers before he had half a chance to save himself. The horse jerked himself loose and went on to stir up McDonald.

The loosing of the horse and the activity of McDonald that resulted from it was probably fortunate for Powers. He might have lain in the street for an hour, with serious consequences, for it was cold enough to chill an injured man almost fatally.

Powers' condition was favorable this morning, although the full extent of his injuries will not be known for a day or two. Internal hurts may be disclosed.

FORMER LOCAL PATROLMAN HELD UP AT PERTH AMBOY.

Two Men Suddenly Spring Upon Peter Hamilton But Are Driven Off.

Peter Hamilton, a former member of the local police force, who is now a watchman at the Raritan Copper Works at Perth Amboy, was held up and assaulted in that city, Tuesday night.

He was casually walking along Maple street, near the postoffice, when suddenly two men appeared and tried to grab him. He defended himself with his fists and succeeded in landing a few good blows on the fellows, who seeing that Hamilton was too much for them took to their heels and fled. Hamilton followed, but said the men disappeared after reaching the Central Railroad tracks.

Hamilton went to the police station and reported the affair, but could give no clue to the identity of his assailants. The police are investigating the affair and hope to throw some light on the case soon. His face was badly cut and bruised by the blows landed by the men.

BOROUGH FIVE WINS FIRST LEAGUE GAME

STRENUOUS BASKETBALL MARKS THE BEGINNING OF INTERSCHOLASTIC RACE

North Plainfield High School defeated Leal's School in the opening game of the Interscholaic Basketball League at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. Score 15 to 11.

It was a rough game, in which the borough boys were the chief offenders. Fouls and double fouls punctuated the plays right along, and if the Leal shooting had been more accurate the private school would have won handily on foul goals alone. In general play, the teams made an even showing. North Plainfield led at the end of the first half, 7 to 3.

The line-up and score:

LEAL'S.	N. P. H. S.
Averill	Overton
Howard (Capt.)	Van Arsdale forwards
Bergen	McClintock center
Brokaw	Powlison
Duke	Steiner (Capt.)
guards

Points: Averill, 4; Howard, 7; Overton, 4; Van Arsdale, 7; McClintock, 4.

The next game will be between Plainfield and North Plainfield High Schools.

Death of J. Lowenstein.

The sudden death of J. Lowenstein, formerly connected with the Groszmann School on Watchung Crest, occurred at White Plains last week. Last year he founded a school at White Plains for nervous children, and it was very successful. His wife and daughter were preparing to join him, when death intervened. A few days before his death he visited Mrs. John Koch, of Berekman street, and the Drs. Moldenke at Watchung. Mr. Lowenstein was an earnest and indefatigable worker a man of broad learning and a true pious Christian. The funeral services were held at White Plains on Monday, December 4. Those who attended from here were Dr. M. P. Groszmann, Waldemar H. Groszmann, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Moldenke, Dr. and Mrs. Carl Moldenke and Mrs. Koch.

Occupying New Jail.

Deputy Sheriff John L. Anderson and his charges are now domiciled in the new Somerset county jail, which is very nearly completed, and yesterday Sheriff Cooper moved his office to the Reed building at the corner of Main and Grove streets in Somerville, where he will probably do business until the new court house is completed. Hyman Kline, who purchased the old buildings, has had his orders to tear them down, but when he will begin the work is not known. Yesterday some young wag tacked up a "smallpox" notice in front of the old court house, and to those not "onto" the joke it caused some alarm.

Dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Hyde.

Mr. and Mrs. Evarts Tracy, of Hillside avenue, gave an informal dinner party last night in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Louis K. Hyde. Covers were laid for ten, those present beside Mr. and Mrs. Tracy being Mr. and Mrs. Louis K. Hyde, Mr. and Mrs. Francis DeLacy Hyde, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. Ginna and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sprague Martin.

CHARITY BALL DETAILS

Committees Hard at Work Preparing For the New Year's Night Social Function.

TICKETS NOW OUT

Theatrical Performance in Conjunction a New Feature—Several Others Promised.

Details are rapidly being completed for the annual charity ball to be held New Year's Eve and it is predicted that as a social function it will far exceed anything of the kind ever given in Plainfield. In connection with the ball to be held at the Casino it has been arranged to have May Irwin appear at the New Plainfield theatre in "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews," one of the season's greatest successes.

While the charity balls in past years have always been a success those in charge feel that they ought to give the people more for their money, hence the scheme for the theatre performance. The tickets will cost $5 each and this will entitle the bearer to admission to the theatre performance, the ball and the supper with all the attendant privileges.

The appearance of May Irwin should result in a full house at the theatre. She has an exceptional company of twenty people, all of them among the best known of metropolitan stage folk. During the performance Miss Irwin sings four songs which have become famous. The first is "Cherry," the second "Honora Doolin," the third "Moses Andrews Jackson," and the fourth "Moonshine."

Arrangements have been completed for the perfect handling of carriages at the theatre and the Casino. Frank Hedden will be in charge.

At the Casino there will be two orchestras under the direction of Austin, and in addition there will be the Eureka Trio, which will furnish vocal and instrumental music during the serving of supper. The supper will be served in the basement of the Casino, the bowling alleys being covered to provide for numerous small tables. Local florists will decorate the Casino. Mrs. Lena Helstrom will be the caterer. The committee has arranged for a novel method of ushering in the New Year which it is not ready to explain at present. The committee on tickets worked until a late hour last night in sending them out.

The executive committee, comprising the chairmen of all the other committees, is as follows: Dr. F. C. Ard, chairman; William C. Kinney, Thos. R. Van Boskerck, Harry L. Hall and Lewis G. Timpson.

The other committees follow:

Finance—Wm. C. Kinney, chairman; Charles J. Fisk, Howard W. Beebe, Lewis E. Waring, George A. Beaton. Ball committeee—Lewis G. Timpson, chairman; Evarts Tracy, F. W. Butler, W. B. Tyler, Owen H. Fleming, A. B. Laing. Theatre—Harry L. Hall, chairman; William J. Counihan and Thomas M. Muir. Supper—Thomas R. VanBoskerck, chairman; Joseph M. Shellabarger, Howard Huntington, George T. VanBoskerck.

Dancing will be started at the Casino at the usual hour and those not wishing to attend the performance at the theatre can avail themselves of it. Supper will be served during the entire evening.

Revival Services Successful.

The series of two weeks' revival services in the Reformed and Methodist churches at Raritan will come to a close Sunday evening, when Rev. Dr. William H. Morgan, of Newark, will preach the sermon. His brother, Rev. John W. Morgan, also of Newark, has been conducting the services and has had much success in winning souls. Already fully a score of young people and older ones as well have confessed their faith and it is expected that before the services are completed fully as many more will go to the altar. After meetings are being held every night this week. Last winter when Dr. Morgan and his brother were in Somerville and Raritan for a month over 100 people were converted.

Belated Wedding Announcement.

Announcement has just been made of the marriage of Miss Evelyn Clark Sergeant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Sergeant, of East Second street, and Hugh B. Paterson, of Albany, N. Y. The ceremony was performed at the parsonage of Trinity church, Elizabeth, on June 24, by Rev. J. P. Atkinson. The witnesses were Thomas J. Burns and Miss Ethel L. Gulberg. The young couple kept the matter a secret until yesterday, when they made it known. They are making their home in this city.

—Neuman Brothers have a splendid line of fancy fruits. The list includes Indian River oranges, tangurines, lady apples and grape fruit.

THEIR OWN HOME THE SCENE OF WEDDING

MISS ADELAIDE CARNEY BECOMES THE BRIDE OF ARTHUR AUSTIN.

In the home her fiance had built and furnished, at 817 West Sixth street, Miss Adelaide Carney was married to Arthur Vermeule Austin, last night. Rev. Dr. C. W. Parsons, of Grace M. E. church, pastor of the bride, performed the ceremony in the presence of 150 guests.

The house was charmingly decorated with cut flowers and palms, pink and white predominating in the color scheme. In the parlor, where the ceremony was performed, the floral effect was particularly pretty.

Dr. Parsons spoke the words of union at 8:30 o'clock. The bridal party, which included ushers, flower girl and page, entered into the room to a wedding march played by Alfred Theime, of New York.

Miss Carney was attended by Miss Tina Voehl, as maid-of-honor. The best man was William Ford, of New York. Frank Merrill and Benjamin Schuck were the ushers. The page was Elsworth Runyon, and the flower girl was Lucille Fritts.

The bride's gown was white crepe de chine over taffeta, trimmed with Irish baby lace. She wore a veil, caught up with a spray of orange blossoms, and a diamond brooch, the gift of the bridegroom. The maid-of-honor was gowned in crepe de soie, trimmed with satin ribbon and baby lace. The bride carried white roses and the maid-of-honor pink ones. The flower girl was dressed in white point d'esprit over taffeta. The page wore a black velvet suit, with a collar of Irish lace.

The bridegroom's gifts to the best man and the ushers were the conventional scarf pins. The bride gave her maid-of-honor a stickpin, the flower girl and page received signet rings. The bride received an unusually large number of gifts.

A reception followed the ceremony, and a supper was served by a caterer. Mr. and Mrs. Austin started on a short honeymoon trip last night.

Mrs. Austin is the daughter of Mrs. Eliza Carney and the late John H. Carney. She has been a prominent worker in Grace M. E. church for several years. Mr. Austin has lived here practically all his life. He is employed by a big New York commercial house.

HELD TURKEY SUPPER

Successful Affair Conducted by Women of St. Stephen's Church.

Under the auspices of St. Ann's Guild, of St. Stephen's church, a successful turkey supper and fair were held in the parish house, last night. The house was crowded with patrons throughout the evening and everything was disposed off at good prices. The supper, an excellent one, was particularly well patronized and over 100 persons were served.

The fair was a great attraction, there being on sale candy, cake and fancy articles. The women arranged several booths where the sale was conducted. Mrs. A. J. Beal is the president of the guild and every member assisted in one way or another in making the affair a success.

Somerville Clergyman Injured.

While making pastoral calls on some of the members of his congregation who live in the rural districts near Somerville, yesterday, Rev. Dr. Edward G. Read, pastor of the Second Reformed church, met with a serious accident. He and his wife got in the buggy and the horse turned sharply, upsetting the vehicle. Dr. Read was thrown violently to the ground and sustained a fracture of his right ankle and a severe cut in his forehead. Dr. Stillwell was obliged to take several stitches in the latter. Mrs. Read was also thrown out and severely cut and bruised.

NEW MEN'S CLUB PLANNED

The Project Fully Discussed at Meeting of Prominent Citizens Last Night.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED

Promoters Will Incorporate and Probably Take Over the Casino Property As a Permanent Home.

That Plainfield is to have a first-class men's club is practically assured and the Casino will undoubtedly be its home. In answer to invitations sent out by Charles J. Fisk, who controls the property at Arlington avenue and Seventh street, a large number of prominent citizens gathered at the Casino last night, and after a statement of the situation by Mr. Fisk, two committees, consisting of five members each, one to draft a plan and arrange for incorporation of a club and the other to secure subscriptions, were appointed. The committees will meet at the Casino, Wednesday night, December 19, to report, and another general meeting of those interested will be held soon after the holidays to undertake the work of organization at once.

The sentiment expressed by the majority of those present last night was that Plainfield needs an up-to-date club for men, where all the privileges of such an organization can be enjoyed as in any one of the numerous New York organizations.

Alexander Gilbert was one of the first to approve the plan to form such a club and he offered to be one of twenty to give $1,000 to secure the property. The idea is to purchase the property and then allow others to become members by paying the annual dues.

While a number agreed with Mr. Gilbert there were others who desired that bonds be issued in the denomination of $100 or $200, it being argued that not many could afford $1,000. C. A. Marsh expressed the opinion that it would be well to make the bonds of $500 denomination, he being willing to take one at that figure. Upon information furnished to Mr. Fisk by Major Maze Edwards, it was shown that the receipts at the Casino during the past year were more than sufficient to keep up the place and it was agreed that if it was so desired, these receipts could be increased.

Mr. Fisk mentioned the various clubs and organizations which have been meeting at the Casino. These include the Monday Afternoon Club, the Hartridge School gymnasium, Mrs. Davenport's dancing class, Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, members of the Plainfield club car, Plainfield Riding and Driving Club, Oshkosh Club, Plainfield Operatic Club, Watchung Hunt Club. In addition, there are numerous bowling clubs and the Casino is frequently engaged for concerts and a general meeting place. If a club is formed, such as outlined last night, it might be impossible for all of these clubs to meet there. Some satisfactory arrangements, however, might be made whereby they could.

Mr. Gilbert suggested that a committee be appointed for the purpose of deciding what kind of a club to have and to arrange for incorporation. Then the subscription committee could go ahead and do its work, having some definite plan to present.

A lengthy telegram was received at the meeting from George A. Beaton, who is in Washington. He deplored the possibility of tearing down the Casino and clubhouse and offered to be one of two or more to take the property over and form a club.

It was suggested by Mr. Fisk that the name of the new club, if formed, be called the Watchung Club, and the idea was generally thought to be an excellent one.

The committee to draft by-laws and a plan for organization, together with the details of incorporation, as appointed by Mr. Fisk is as follows: Joseph M. Shellabarger, C. A. Marsh, William T. Kaufman, Lewis E. Waring and George S. King. Mr. Fisk also appointed the following subscription committee: George A. Beaton, H. G. Runkle, Jabez C. Gilbert, Charles J. Fisk and William C. Kinney.

The mortgage on the property is held by the Mutual Life Insurance Company, of New York, and Mr. Fisk stated that since he had been in control, the mortgage had been reduced to $2,500. Various plans to transfer the property from Mr. Fisk to a new organization were discussed and will be taken into consideration by the committee before its report is presented.

The Casino and clubhouse property is in excellent condition, yet the expenditure of some money would be needed to make it the home of such a club as proposed.

PITNEY, CHANCELLOR-FARMER.

Jersey Judge Gives a Health Board Points on Cows.

Morristown, Dec. 13.—Priding himself upon being a successful farmer as well as a jurist, Vice Chancellor Pitney, who is now nearing his eightieth birthday, appeared before the local Health Board Tuesday night with hsome suggestions as to milking cows and caring for live stock of various kinds.

The Vice Chancellor entered a protest against the proposed new sanitary code which the board is considering and told the members that they needed a few pointers on the milk question which he as a farmer would give them. The milking of cows ten days after a calf had been born was wrong he said. In his opinion a calf should be as tenderly cared for as an infant. There should be perfect cleanliness about the cow stables and the farmer who kept his cows and calves in filth should be indicted.

"One of the greatest evils," said the Vice Chancellor, "is the farmer who uses milk and keeps pigs. He has no business in the pig business, for the temptation to feed them on cream is too strong, and the public gets the skimmed milk."

Cheaper Xmas Turkeys.

New York, Dec. 13.—There is a promise that turkey will be cheaper at the Christmas holidays than they were at Thanksgiving time. Fine birds that sold at retail for twenty-eight cents a pound immediately before Thanksgiving Day can be bought this morning for twenty-five cents. There is no evidence of any shortage in the supply during the next fortnight, and as a large stock is on hand there is likely to be no excuse for raising the price materially above that of today. Then the weather is now, and promises to remain, favorable for handling, shipping and holding the supply. The receipts of this week have n ot been large, but equal to the demand, amounting to about 350,000 pounds daily.

Meat Riots Begun.

New York, Dec. 13.—Serious disturbances marked the beginning yesterday of the meat strike of the kosher butchers in the Brownsville district of Brooklyn and several shops were wrecked by mobs led by a band of women sympathizers. Several persons were injured and the police reserves, called out from the Liberty avenue station shortly after noon, made many arrests. Most of the prisoners were allowed to go under suspension of sentence when arraigned in the Gates Avenue Court. Not content with battering in the windows and doors of the rival butchers which insisted upon doing business, women rioters sprinkled kerosene on the stock in the various places and hacked the fixtures in the shops with cleavers.

Kill Pulajane Chiefs.

Manila, Dec. 13.—Full reports from the island of Leyte show that the fight on December 5, between the troops and constabulary and a band of Pulajanes, was an important victory for the government forces. Four Pulajane leaders were killed, leaving only one important chief still at large. The bandits lost forty-three killed. Major General Wood has ordered the troopers of the Seventh Cavalry to participate in the active pursuit of those who escaped.

J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 3, 1906.

AN ORDINANCE

To Amend An Ordinance Entitled, "An Ordinance to Create and Define the Duties of a Board of Police and a Police Force." Approved February 28, 1882, as Amended.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That section 3 of the ordinance to which this is an amendment, be further amended so as to read as follows:

"Section 3. The Police Force shall consist of such number of regular and special policemen, each of whom shall be a resident and legally qualified voter of this city, as the Common Council shall from time to time deem necessary, and by resolution order to be appointed. The said Police Force shall rank as follows: Chief, Captain, Sergeant, Detective Sergeant, Roundsmen, Regular Policemen, Doorman; and the duties of the several members and officers of said Police Force shall be those prescribed by the laws of the State, the ordinances of the city, and the rules and regulations that may from time to time be prescribed and established by resolution of the Common Council for the better government and discipline of the Police Department.

That beginning with the first day of January, 1907, the salaries of the Chief and Captain shall be the following sums per annum, that is to say: Chief Sixteen Hundred Dollars; Captain Eleven Hundred Dollars; and the salary of Doorman Fifty-Five Dollars per month; and the salaries of Sergeant and Detective Sergeant, respectively, from said first day of January, 1907, shall be at the following rates per month, that is to say: Sixty-Eight Dollars per month during the first year of service on the police force of said city; Seventy-Four Dollars per month during the second year of such service; Seventy-Nine Dollars per month during the third, fourth and fifth years of such service; and Eighty-Five Dollars per month during the sixth year of such service, and thereafter at the rate of Eighty-Five Dollars per month; and the salaries of Roundsmen and Regular Policemen, respectively, from said first day of January, 1907, shall be at the following rates per month, that is to say: Sixty-Six Dollars per month during the first year of service on the police force of said city; Seventy-Two Dollars per month during the second year of such service; Seventy-Seven Dollars per month during the third, fourth and fifth years of such service; and Eighty-Three Dollars per month during the sixth year of such service, and thereafter at the rate of Eighty-Three Dollars per month. The time from which the several dates of service in the police department of the city is to be calculated, are the dates at which the continuous service of said policemen, respectively, commenced, and said Sergeant, Detective Sergeant, Roundsmen, Regular Policemen and Doorman, respectively, shall be paid at said rates for the number of full days only of service actually performed by them respectively, in each month, except that they severally may, at the discretion of the Board of Police, be paid for any time during which they severally shall be disabled from the performance of duty by reason of physical injuries, provided that the Board shall be satisfied that such injuries were the direct result of personal violence inflicted upon them, respectively, in the performance of their respective duties; and hereafter, each of such officers and policemen shall provide, at his own expense, all uniforms and other wearing apparel necessary for their use respectively, as from time to time required by the Board of Police in compliance with the rules of the Department."

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

In the unanimous selection of Ray Biglow as captain for the Yale University football team for 1907, there is a certain amount of local pride and pleasure. Biglow spent several years here and as a student at Leal's School he was always active in athletics of all kinds, especially football and basketball. He was considered one of the best players in the city at that time. He was also popular among his fellows, being of a quiet and unassuming turn. It is undoubtedly these traits, together with his superior playing as a tackle on the Yale team during the past two years that won for him the high honor he enjoys today. Not only in Biglow, but also Howard Roome, is Plainfield represented in the college football world. Roome played a strong game this year and won many honors on the gridiron. In the choice of Biglow for captain his fellow-students have decided wisely, and the confidence rested in him will not be misplaced.

A. A. Stagg, while advocating no radical changes in the present football rules, says that for the sake of harmony and also to simplify matters he would readily agree to these modifications in the code. A return to 35 minute halves, the resumption of the old style of tackling below or above the knees, a fifteen yard penalty to the team making a forward pass which touches the ground, a more definite signal for a fair catch. But Stagg says he is unalterably opposed to granting an extra down in ten yards, the exchange of positions between linemen and backs, providing mass plays are eliminated, two forward passes in one scrimmage, the widening of the playing field and the adoption of a differently shaped ball. Many close students of the game as it was played this fall favor only one change—the lengthening of the time of play to thirty-five minute halves.

GOLF.

To forbid all three or four ball matches on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays is a standing rule at the golf clubs and no one questions the justness of the rule in the busy season. In the dull months, after the seasons competitions have been settled, there are some who believe the ban should be lifted against the slow and sociable threesomes and four ball matches. Such a contention has been started at the Montclair Golf Club and the question is to be voted on at the next meeting. In the advance discussion the members seem to be about evenly divided on the issue.

George Low, president of the Eastern Professional Golfers' Association, will sail on the Baltic on December 19 to spend the holidays at Carnoustie, his old home. Horace Rawlins, of the Wykagyl Country Club, will leave for Bermuda about the same date. It will be Rawlins' sixth season at Bermuda, and he has become very popular with the resident golfers and the English and American tourists. Orrin Terry, who is now at the Pine Forest course, Lakewood, is to go to Bermuda with Rawlins for the first time.

Old blood won out very easily in the four ball match for $500 between Braid and Harry Vardon and Duncan and Mayo. Braid and Vardon were 4 up at Walton Heath in the first half and they won out at Timperly by 9 up and 8 to play in the seventy-two holes. Vardon played very well at Timperly, but Braid bore the burden of the fray at Walton Heath. In the twenty-eight holes played at Timperly Duncan and Mayo were not up to the flag on their mashie shots on a single green, but the other two always gave the ball a chance to hole out on their approaches.

An octogenerian foursome at the Westword Ho!, England, course within a fortnight was of interest. Capt. T. E. Gordon and Dr. W. L. Reid, the latter the senior of the four at 86, represented Scotland and R. B. James and Capt. E. M. Molesworth, R. N., played for England. The Scots won by 3 up and 1 to play, in eighteen holes.

Although passed over by the promoters of the ideal course, the sandy turf of Montauk Point is to be used for golf after all. Some of the summer cottagers and amateurs who go there to fish have incorporated the Montauk Golf Club at Albany. The directors named are F. S. Benson, G. M. Gill, W. T. McCoy, R. S. Starrir, R. Rodman, A. B. Thatcher, M. Runyon, W. J. Kingsland, T. D. Webb, E Corning and T. Spencer Miller.

The links of the Morris County Club have been closed for the winter, but the governors have decided to keep the house open.

The West has claimed the annual meeting of the United States Golf Association, and it has been decided to hold it there on January 18 next.

NEW ASBURY PARK PIER.

To Be Six Hundred Feet Long and Built By Trenton Capital.

Asbury Park, Dec. 13.—A new pier, located between First and Second avenues and extending seaward some 600 feet, is to be built this winter by a syndicate of Trenton capitalists. The plan was approved last night at a special meeting of the Public Grounds Commission.

The franchise has been sold for $187,500 for a term of twenty years. Work on the pier will be begun at once, and part of it will be ready for use early next season. A theatre, skating rink, band pavilion and auditorium will be the principal buildings first erected.

The pier will have a frontage of nearly two hundred feet on the Boardwalk. The pier company will be permitted to have pleasure and fishing craft land at the sea end of the structure.

The city officials have disposed of $150,000 bonds. The money will be expended in beach improvements. These will include new and more modern bathhouses, concrete jetties and a pavilion on the Boardwalk in North Asbury Park.

French Crisis Is Grave.

Paris, Dec. 13.—The press today unanimously recognizes the extreme gravity of the religious issue precipitated by the Pope's attitude and many papers predict a veritable religious warfare. It having been decided that religious services can be no longer held after tomorrow without a preliminary declaration under the law of 1881, the Pope's orders entail the immediate initiation of prosecutions in 36,000 communes and logically the invasion of churches by the police for the purpose of pronouncing their dissolution and expelling the parish priests. Militant Catholics seem to hail with joy the prospect of violence, which will compel the closing of the churches, with the attendant excitement of religious passions. M. Jaures, socialist leader, professes to believe that the Vatican has deliberately determined to test the strength of the party of reaction in an effort to overthrow the Republic.

Hears Protests of Hebrews.

New York, Dec. 13.—At a hearing yesterday afternoon the Committee on Elementary Schools at the hall of the Board of Education heard rabbis and representatives of the orthodox and reformed Hebrew congregations who have been agitating the question of Christmas festivities in the public schools. Abram Stern, chairman, and the members heard protests of twenty-five prominent Hebrews. Mr. Stern said afterward that the committee would hold the matter under consideration. The contention of the Hebrews is that their constitutional rights are being violated when their children are compelled to listen to exercises which commemorate the event. They want the custom of decorating Christmas trees removed from the public schools.

Puerto Rico Citizenship.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—President Roosevelt, in a special message dealing with his recent visit to Puerto Rico, submitted to Congress today, urges that the full rights of citizenship be conferred on the people of the island. The President, after expressing his surprise and delight at the evidences of progress observed by him during his visit to various sections of the island, gives cordial praise to the natives.

Overcame Nurse and Died.

New York, Dec. 13.—Suffering from a temporary attack of insanity, Mrs. Edward Thomas, of No. 3,120 Broadway, after a hard struggle with her nurse, threw herself backward through a window on the fouth floor of Dr. Josephine Sherman's sanitarium, No. 126 East Sixtieth street, at half-past three o'clock yesterday afternoon, and was instantly killed on the flagstones below.

Dogs Led to Master's Body.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 13.—It is owing to the intelligence of three dogs, one of which stood watch over the dead body in the woods while two summoned and led a searching party, that the family of Henry A. Smith have his corpse to inter today. Several days ago Smith went into a woods in the eastern suburbs with his revolver and his dogs. The pistol was discharged and a ball passed through the man's brain, killing him, last Sunday morning. But for the dogs the body of the hunter would probably not have been found for some time, as it was in a spot remote from any public way, and its position was such that a few heavy rains would have buried it completely from sight. One dog stood guard over the body and kept his vigil for nearly three days and two nights, while one dog and then a second one returned to the man's house in the city, attracting the attention of Smith's family by their strange actions.

Black Hand Killing.

New York, Dec. 13.—While celebrating his forty-fifth birthday anniversary with his wife and daughter and about forty other relatives and friends in his home at Bay Forty-sixth street and Harway avenue, Bath Beach, Tuesday night, Frank Massa, one of the wealthiest Italians of the Coney Island district, was shot through the heart by men believed to be representatives of a "black hand" society who had gained entrance to the house by false pretences. There were three men in the group, and which one fired the fatal shot is not known, as all escaped. About a week ago Massa was visited by an Italian whom he did not know who said he represented a "black hand" organization, and who made a demand upon Massa for $1,000, threatening him with death if he did not comply.

Steps In French Crisis.

Paris, Dec. 13.—The government has decided to suppress the pensions and other allowances to ecclesiastics who fail to conform to the law of 1905 regulating the question of the seperation of the Church and State in France. It is also taking steps to dispose of the public edifices, connected with the services of the Catholic church as well as the Episcopal palaces, rectories and seminaries. The government is concerting to take such measures as are necessary to safeguard the national interests. These measures comprise those to be taken dealing with priests who refuse to obey the law in obedience to the orders of the Pope. It is generally believed that they will be deprived of their French citizenship, being considered to be in the service of a foreign ruler, that is to say, the Pope.

Former Senator Brown Dead.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—Former Senator Arthur Brown, of Utah, who was shot on Saturday last by Mrs. Anna Bradley, who had followed him here from Salt Lake, died in the Emergency Hospital here at midnight last night. Dr. Charles White, superintendent of the hospital, declared Mr. Brown's case was one of the most remarkable that had ever come under his observation. The former Senator's death was due to complications brought on by kidney trouble and not by septic poison as a result of the wound. The shock of the bullet wound, however, had aggravated the affections of the kidneys until these organs refused to perform their function.

Sugar Trust Fined Again.

New York, Dec. 13.—Fines aggregating $150,000 were imposed yesterday afternoon by Judge Holt, in the United States Circuit Court, upon the American Sugar Refining Company, and the Brooklyn Cooperage Company, upon pleas of guilty to indictments alleging an acceptance of rebates on sugar shipments in violation of the Elkins Anti-Rebating act. This, with the $18,000 imposed upon the same defendant a few days ago on conviction, makes a total of $168,000 it will have to pay this morning for "rebating."

Bishop McCabe Worse.

New York, Dec. 13.—Though a slight change for the worse appeared last night in the condition of the Rev. Charles C. McCabe, a bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, who is in the New York Hospital, in West Fifteenth street, suffering from apoplexy, he is not regarded by the surgeons in charge as critically ill. He was conscious last night for a time. The wife and daughter of the clergyman, who hurried from their home in Germantown, Pa., are with him in the hospital.

Has His Nose Manicured.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 13.—The story of a girl who has a finger tip for a nose and of a man who has a finger nail growing out of his nose were related by Dr. J. M. T. Kinney at the meeting of the Southern Surgical and Gynecological Society at the Johns Hopkins Hospital yesterday. Dr. Finney explained how he had grafted the girl's little finger on her face where her nose should have been and then amputated it. The patient is now a very presentable looking child. Dr. Finney also described a similar operation performed on a baseball player. After the man's finger had been transplanted to his face it was discovered that a trace of the finger nail had not been removed and that it persisted in keeping on growing. Thus the poor man has to cut it regularly between his eyes.

Died in a Saloon.

New York, Dec. 13.—Henry Horan, of No. 259 St. Nicholas avenue, Brooklyn, died yesterday in the rear room of the saloon of Thomas Goetzer, No. 280 Wyckoff avenue. After buying a drink he sat down at a table, apparently fell asleep and was permitted to remain undisturbed. After a while friends tried to arouse him, but were unsuccessful. An ambulance surgeon said Horan had been dead an hour. Heart disease is supposed to have caused his death.

Insurance Man Convicted.

New York, Dec. 13.—First of the officials of any life insurance company to be convicted for his conduct of its affairs, George Burnham, Jr., slept in cell No. 111 in the Tombs Monday night. A jury, after deliberating two hours and a half, had declared the vice president and counsel of the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance Company guilty of the larceny of $7,500 of the company's funds. The money went, as the testimony showed, to pay a personal debt of his brother, Frederick A. Burnham, who is president of the company and who is also under indictment.

Girl Shooter Released.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 13.—Miss May McAtee, accused of attempting to kill her father, Rev. John Quincy McAtee, in their home, at No. 1714 South Fifteenth street, Monday, was arraigned before Magistrate Eisenbrown yesterday and released in $1,000 bail for a further hearing on December 24. Detective Linden tsetified that Miss McAtee had admitted shooting her father in defence of her mother, whom he was beating; that the wounds are not serious, and that the injured man will probably be able to leave the hospital in ten days.

Morgan Plans Big Gift.

New York, Dec. 13.—Reports became current yesterday, after a visit of the Mayor and several city officials to his house, that J. Pierpont Morgan was about to make to the city of New York a gift in connection with art which would be one of the most important donations ever made to a municipality. A friend of Mr. Morgan who would not permit his name to be used said last night that for certain reasons which would be evident when an official announcement was made nothing could now be said concerning the matter. He declared the benefaction contemplated was stupendous, that it related to art and that no gift equal to it had ever been made at one time to the city.

Headlight Discloses Body.

New York, Dec. 13.—With his head protruding from the icy surface of Hook Creek, near Jamaica, Henry VanDoeselear, a diamond polisher, forty years old, of No. 43 Hicks street, was found dead yesterday morning. He had spent the previous night in the company of friends prior to his departure for Antwerp on the Red Star liner Finland, which sailed yesterday. His body was found by a motorman of a car running between Jamaica and Far Rockaway shortly before daybreak, who saw in the ray of a headlight the man's head projecting above a thick coat of ice.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Dec. 16: "Missions. A Worldwide Responsibility."

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

The worldwide purpose revealed in the Scriptures.—Luke xxiv. 45-47. This the significance of the life of Christ.—Luke 30-32; Rev. v. 9. We are His representatives in this work.—Luke xxiv. 48. The church's baptism not given for a local but for a worldwide conquest.—Acts i. 8. A narrow spirit corrected.—Acts x. 9-36.

There has been and still is too much of a disposition among Christians to consider salvation a purely personal matter of their relation to God. There is much need of emphasis being placed on the individual, and no one must sink his individuality in the mass of mankind. But there is much also needing consideration in the relation which each person sustains to the whole mass of men in society. It needs constant repetition, lest we forget it, "No man liveth unto himself, and no man dieth unto himself." We not only hold relation to God in all the ongoing of existence, but we are intimately related to our fellow men. We are individuals, this is true, but we are individuals in society. In this society each is dependent in many ways on the others and has duties and rights toward them.

There are signs of a broadening of sympathies at the present time and a deeper study of our conditions, relations and duties in society.

It is apparent to any one who will read the Bible with any considerable degree of attention that the design of God is not to save any special few or many of the race to the exclusion of all others, but that salvation is adapted to the needs of all men everywhere and at all times and that full provision is made for the salvation of all and its application is limited only by the willingness of men to receive it.

There is profound significance in the death of Jesus Christ for all men, and the way this is stated in the fifth chapter of the Epistle to the Romans sets at rest forever any idea that only a part of the race have been included in the plans for redemption.

There is, then, responsibility placed on every one who comes into conscious fellowship with God through Jesus Christ to assist in the actual uplifting of the race. Of course the very first thing which every one is under obligation to do is to be himself the very best kind of a person which he can be. We are to make one person into the likeness of the Master as far as our conceptions and ability will permit and to ever count on the assistance of the Holy Spirit being given us in this work. We are never to neglect personal piety.

But at the same time we are messengers of God to every one whom we can in any way reach. The growth of our own character will also depend in large measure on the manner in which we discharge this duty to show salvation to other men.

We must by personal contact, by voice and manner and all sorts of dealings which men have with men show ever the pattern of true godliness and example of true Christian living to all with whom we come in contact. But there is more in it than this. Our neighbor, whom we are under obligation to love and help, is not always merely the one we meet most frequently, the one near at hand. He may be and ever is the man at the other side of the earth whom we never have seen and never shall speak with, the one indeed of whom we have never heard individually, but of whose existence we know in a general way. Him we are to help also. This is not to be accomplished by personal contact, but by organization and combination with others. When we cannot go we can send. Here lies the foundation of our great connectional benevolencies.

We are to be careful as to our personal trust in God and our individual salvation; we are to have regard for our local church and its maintenance but we are to also have sympathies as broad as the race and to send our helpfulness worldwide wherever men are in sin and need of a Saviour. We are to do this with heart in it. Our money should be used freely and wisely in this service. More than this, we should have the deep and abiding spirit of earnest prayer for the oncoming of the kingdom of God. And, then, we should cultivate the broadest intelligence possible as to the needs of the world vineyard and the strategic possibilities of the hour, that all our prayers and energies may be expended in the wisest efforts.

Snares.

Why, it is asked, are there so many snares? That we may not fly low, but may seek the things which are above. For just as birds, so long as they cleave the upper air, are not easily caught, so thou also, as long as thou lookest at things above, wilt not easily be captured, whether by a snare or by any other device of evil.—Chrysostom.

Earthly and Heavenly Joy.

I look into the heavens dark,
Yet bright with many a shining spark
Of light ethereal and sublime,
Whose sources reach beyond the time
Of human history's appeal
To God above for human weal.

Across that diamond crown of God
Through vast infinitude of void,
From Nature's hidings, quickly sped
A falling star, that brightness shed
With flash of momentary light—
A plunge, with radiance, into night.

Moments I thought of, fleeting fast,
Brief hours of joy that could not last,
Bright hopes that falling starlike gleamed
Athwart the void of life's work dreamed:
Some glory spots from out the night
Of human sense and human sight.

These moments, hours, of transient gain,
These earthly pleasures fraught with pain,
Like falling stars, so wondrous bright,
An instant, from and into night.
Behind them shine, eternal, broad,
Fadeless and deep, the stars of God.
—Anson P. Atterbury in Christian Work and Evangelist.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 16.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—What truth has chiefly appealed to you from our year's Sabbath school lessons?—Matt. xiii, 52; Isa. liii, 3-15; liii, 1-12.

The Sabbath school lessons for the past year have been devoted to the life of Christ. The subject of the first lesson was an incident connected with His infancy, and the last subject will be His ascension. Looking back over an entire year, we may not be able to select one truth that impressed us most. If compelled to make a selection I am sure that with one accord we would choose the death of Christ. No truth, no fact, has ever appealed to the human mind and heart like this greatest fact in all human history—Christ's death for the world. It was not so much His death that appeals to us as the great truth that He died for us. "He was wounded for our transgressions and bruised for our iniquities." This is why His death stands out as the supreme event in His mission to this world. But we have studied not only the death of Christ, but also His entire life, and it all should appeal to us, for His death is only appreciated and fully understood through His entire life. We should be familiar with the life of Christ throughout, and in proper proportion it should all appeal to us. We should remember it and apply it to our lives.

After a year's study in the life of Christ:

1. We should remember Christ's life itself. No more wonderful life was ever lived. It is the world's only ideal life. Human nature is weak at its best, and when we see man's proneness to wander from God and his unfaithfulness to his fellow men it is no small thing to have at least one life to contemplate that was without a flaw. Nor should we only remember it. It should be our ideal and our inspiration. We should not only admire His life and character, but should imitate them.

2. We should remember the works of Christ. He did not live an idle life by any means. He was ever going about doing good. But, above all, the marvelous works of Christ should appeal to us. Nor should we ever doubt that Christ performed miracles. In this day, when so many would do away with the supernatural, we must firmly stand our ground. All we know of Jesus Christ is told us in the Scriptures, and they declare that He performed miracles. If the testimony concerning the supernatural is false, can we accept that concerning the natural? If one man can strike out the miracles, cannot another with as much reason strike out the parables? If some one can say that one chapter should be omitted, cannot some one else say that another chapter should go? What is therefore the result? Simply that the Scriptures all stand or all fall. The records of the miracles of Christ are true or we can believe nothing else written about Him, for His only historians record His miracles. And why should it be thought incredible that the Son of God did a few things that an ordinary man could not do? Could God make millions of eyes and not heal a few that had become diseased? Could God create a universe and not put new life into a single human arm that had become paralyzed? What absurdity! Let us accept all the works of Christ and by His miraculous ones be convinced of His deity.

3. We should remember the words of Christ. What gracious words fell from His lips—matchless parables on God's love and human duties, tender words of invitation to the erring and the fallen and words of comfort and good cheer to the weary, the bereaved and the discouraged! "Never man spake as He spake." Therefore let us treasure His words and be helped and comforted by them.

4. We should remember, above everything else, Christ's death for us. He died the innocent for the guilty, the just for the unjust, the righteous for the sinful. We were among the guilty, the unjust, the sinful. Therefore He died for us. And let us remember that He died for us in the sense that He died in our stead. If He had not paid the penalty of our sins upon the cross we ourselves would have been compelled to pay the penalty for them. Let us therefore remember and rejoice in the fact that—

Jesus paid it all,
All the debt I owe.
Sin had left a crimson stain,
He washed it white as snow.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON, AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

They went in military style with due precautions against surprise by the Lamanites—the wretched red remnant of Abraham's seed—that swarmed on every side.

Brigham Young was lieutenant general; Stephen Markham was colonel; the redoubtable John Pack was first major, and Shadrach Roundy, second. There were two captains of hundreds and fourteen captains of tens. The orders of the lieutenant general required each man to walk constantly beside his wagon, leaving it only by his officer's commands. To make the force compact, the wagons were to move two abreast where they could. Every man was to keep his weapons loaded. If the gun was a caplock, the cap was to be taken off and a piece of leather put on to exclude moisture and dirt; if a flintlock, the filling was to be taken out and the pan filled with tow or cotton.

Their march was not only cautious but orderly. At five a. m. the bugle sounded for rising, two hours being allowed for prayers and breakfast. At night each man had to retire to his wagon for prayer at eight-thirty, and to rest at nine. If they camped by a river they drew the wagons into a semicircle with the river at its base. Other times the wagons made a circle, a fore-wheel of one touching a rear wheel of the next, thus providing a corral for the stock. In such manner was the wisdom of the Lord concerning this hegira supplemented in detail by the worldly foresthought of his servant Brigham.

They started along the north bank of the Platte river under the auspicious shine of an April sun. A better route was along the south bank where grass was more plentiful and the Indians less troublesome. But along the south bank parties of migrating Gentiles might also be met, and these sons of perdition were to be avoided at any cost—"at least for the present," said Brigham, in tones of sage significance.

And so for 200 miles they broke a new way over the plains, to be known years after as "the old Mormon trail," to be broadened later by the gold-seekers of forty-nine, and still later to be shod with steel, when the miracle of a railway was worked in the desert.

Joel Rae, walking beside his wagon, meditated chiefly upon the manner in which his Witness would first manifest itself. The wonder came in a way, while he thus meditated. Late one afternoon the scouts thrown in advance came hurrying back to report a large band of Indians strung out in battle array a few miles ahead. The wagons were at once formed five abreast, their one cannon was wheeled to the front, and the company advanced in close formation. Perceiving these aggressive maneuvers, the Indians seemed to change their plan and, instead of coming on to attack, were seen to be setting fire to the prairie.

The result might well have been disastrous, as the wind was blowing toward the train. Joel Rae saw it; saw that the time had come for a miracle if the little company of Saints was to be saved a serious rebuff. He quickly entered his wagon and began to pray. He prayed that the Lord might avert this calamity and permit the handful of faithful ones to proceed in peace to fashion His temple on earth.

When he began to pray there had been outside a woeful confusion of sounds,—scared and plunging horses, bellowing oxen, excited men shouting to the stock and to one another, the barking of dogs and the rattling of the wagons. Through this din he prayed, scarcely hearing his own voice, yet feeling within himself the faith that he knew must prevail. And then as he prayed he became conscious that these noises had subsided to a wonderful silence. A moment this lasted, and then he heard it broken by a mighty shout of gladness, followed by excited calls from one man to another.

He looked out in calm certainty to observe in what manner the Lord had consented to answer his petition. He saw that the wind had veered and, even as he looked, large drops of rain came pounding musically upon his wagon-cover. Far in front of them a long, low line of flame was crawling to the west, while above it lurid clouds of smoke rolled away from them. In another moment the full force of the shower was upon them from a sky that half an hour before had been cloudless. Far off to the right scurried the Indians, their feathery figures lying low upon the backs of their small ponies. His heart swelled within him, and he fell again to his knees with many earnest words of thanksgiving for the intercession.

They at once made camp for the night, and by Brigham's fire later in the evening Joel Rae confided the truth of his miracle to that good man, taking care not to utter the words with any delight or pride in himself. He considered that Brigham was undue surprised by the occurrence; almost displeased in fact; showing a tendency to attribute the day's good fortune to phenomena wholly natural. Although the miracle had seemed to him a small, simple thing, he now felt a little ashamed of his performance. He was pleased to note, however, that Brigham became more gracious to him after a short period of reflection. He praised him indeed for the merit which he seemed to have gained in the Lord's sight; taking occasion to remind him, however, that he, Brigham, had meant to produce the same effects by a prayer of his own in due time to save the train from destruction; that he had chosen to wait, however, in order to try the faith of the Saints.

By the first of June they had wormed their way over 500 miles of plain to the trading post of Fort Laramie. Here they were at last forced to cross the Platte and to take up their march along the Oregon trail. They were now in the land of alkaline deserts, of sage brush and greasewood, of sad, bleak, deadly stretches; a land where the favor of Heaven might have to be called upon if they were to survive. Yet it was a land not without inspiration,—a land of immense distances, of long, dim perspectives, and of dreamy visions in the far, vague haze. In such a land, thought Joel Rae, the spirit of the Lord must draw closer to the children of earth.

CHAPTER X.

The Promised Land.

So far on their march the Lord had protected them from all but ordinary hardships. True, some members of the company had suffered from a fever which they attributed to the clouds of dust that enveloped the column of wagons when in motion, and to the great change of temperature from day to night. Again, the most of them were for many weeks without bread, saving for the sick the little flour they had and subsisting upon the meat provided by the hunters. Before reaching Fort Laramie, too, their stock had become weakened for want of food; an extended drought, the vast herds of buffalo, and the Indian fires having combined to destroy the pasturage.

This weakness of the animals made the march for many days not more than five or six miles a day. At the last they had fed to the stock not only all their grain but the most of their crackers and other breadstuffs. But these were slight matters to a persecuted people gathering out of Babylon.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

After its successful run in London and at the Savoy theatre, New York, Manager Edward R. Salter's big farcical production "It's All Your Fault" comes to the New Plainfield theatre tonight. "It's All Your Fault," written by Edgar Selwyn is built for laughing purposes only and it proves a great tonic for the risibles. The first of the three acts takes place in Dobbins lodgings, where Howard Boasley confesses since he was married the year before he had been pinched for money and had taken advantage of a wealthy uncle who had promised him an annuity on the birth of a son to be named after him. The eccentric uncle played by Charles J. Stine is not exaggerated, but funny to the extreme and Miss Ollie Evans as the "model" wife has won personal laurels for splendid work of the most difficult kind.

One of the most pleasing and successful theatrical productions made last season was an automobile racing drama in four acts by Arthur Nelson entitled "The Governor's Pardon," which will have its first presentation here at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night. The play itself is a mommoth affair requiring two specially constructed sixty foot baggage cars for the transportation of the scenery, automobiles and effects. It is in four acts with many entirely new and startling scenic effects, which have heretofore never been attempted on the stage. The first act represents an automobile garage, where the racing machines are stored, over thirty people appearing in this scene. The automobiles are undergoing repairs, real iron has been heated and during the struggle between the hero and the villain, the latter is branded with the red-hot iron bar.

Charles Frohman will present Miss Ethel Barrymore at the New Plainfield theatre Monday night in J. M. Barrie's three act comedy, "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire." In this play Miss Barrymore won the highest praise during its long run in New York last season. The appearance of Miss Ethel Barrymore in a new role is always a matter of marked interest and the interest is added to on this occasion by the fact that the role is the central figure in a play by J. M. Barrie, who has enriched the stage by such plays as "The Little Minister," and "Peter Pan," and who has contributed so much of value to the literature of the day. "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire" was one of the most notable hits of the past theatrical season in New York where it ran for months at the Criterion theatre.

The attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night will be a beautiful scenic production of the pretty Southern comedy drama, "A Romance of Coon Hollow." Besides an efficient company, there will be a noted quartette in songs of the South, and a troupe of dancers said to be of unusual merit. There are over a score of people upon the stage, the comedy being much larger than the average.

GOLF.

Dates for the British amateur and open championships have been fixed for a week later than usual in each instance. The amateur will begin at St. Andrews on May 27 and the open at Hoylake on June 17.

On the Baltusrol links George Low frequently does some great stunts. Recently, using only a putter, he beat the best ball of three men, one of whom was Ennever, who frequently plays the course in 90. Last Wednesday Low played against the best ball of Louis Bayard, Jr., a former champion of the club; Edwin N. Todd, Mr. Davidge and a professional named Layng. He scored 74, and not only won, but kept his opponents from getting a single hole. Low till soon sail for Scotland to visit his old home, Carnoustie, and play some games with the "pros" of England and Scotland. It was in Carnoustie that Alexander Smith, the American champion, also learned to play the game.

At the meeting of the Metropolitan Golf Association Tuesday night, the handicap committee, in view of the trouble and expense, recommended the giving up of the general handicap list of all players and the substitution of a ranking list of all at nine strokes or under. The committee stated: "Our conclusions are, of course, of little value unless we can recommend some course of action for the future. It seems to us that there is but one thing to do, namely, discontinue the general list and substitute a ranking list. This ranking list should not rate any players at more than nine strokes on par. That would mean a list of about eight hundred names. Or possibly the limit might better be kept as low as nine, which would mean a list of only about five hundred players. From such a list clubs giving open or invitation tournaments would receive little aid in rating players if they simply used it to get a line on the players whose names appeared on it, as in past years, for by far the greater proportion of competitors in the handicap events are rated above 9 on par. But it would be easy to devise some plan by which the ranking list could be made very useful. For example, when a club gives a tournament let it be one of the conditions that any unrated M. G. A. player who enters the handicap shall present a certificate from his club handicapper giving his handicap based on the low man from his club on the M. G. A. ranking list. We believe we could work out a form of certificate for clubs to use in that way." As a substitute for the championship plate won out last year by the Nassau Country Club through the three successes of its members in the amateur championship of the M. G. A., Daniel Chauncey, the retiring president, presented a new trophy to the association which was accepted with a vote of thanks. There is not unanimity of opinion regarding the holding of an open M. G. A. tournament in 1907. Chauncey opposed, and Tappan, Batterson, Stern and Emmet spoke in favor of such a tournament. On Chauncey's motion the committee was instructed to consult with the Massachusetts, Philadelphia and all associations interested with the object of establishing an annual Eastern open championship. Should the offers fail, then the committee has authority to ask for bids for a M. G. A. open championship.

BASKETBALL.

At a meeting of the Intercollegiate Basketball Association held at Columbia University an attempt was made to patch up the difficulty between Pennsylvania and Harvard, so that in the event of either team defeating all the other teams comprising the association that team might get a clear title to the championship. Neither Pennsylvania nor Harvard would make any concessions, however, and the status of the teams was left undecided until the next meeting of the association. The rules committee met and after a thorough discussion of all the rules in force decided on a uniform interpretation for each rule. This is expected to do away with much of the dissatisfaction that has been caused in past years by different ruling by different officials. It was announced that in general the interpretation would be liberal and that a greater liberty in clean blocking than in the past would be permitted. A provision similar to that in force in football was adopted allowing each team only three two minute periods of time out in each half. Each period of time taken out in excess of this will cost the team asking for it 1 point. The presence of Plummer, of Dartmouth, at the meeting gave credence to the report that Dartmouth was seeking admission to the association. This proved not to be true, however. After the meeting it was announced that arrangements had been made for a game to be played between the winner of the intercollegiate series and the winner in the Eastern league, which is made up of many of the smaller colleges in the East.

The introductory overtures of the intercollegiate basketball season having been played, the real season will open this coming Saturday when Pennsylvania plays Princeton at Philadelphia in the first game of the schedule. On December 19 the Columbia five will play Princeton in New York, and then there will be a lull until the collegians return from their Christmas vacation. All the colleges in the league, Yale, Princeton, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Cornell and Columbia, are fortunate this year in having many of their veteran players still with them; but of the six, Pennsylvania is thought to be a shade the strongest. Every man of last year's five is out again, including Capt. Lawrence, and the squad of basketball candidates numbers ninety. Yale, Harvard and Columbia are thought to stand about even in the next best chance. At New Haven, Capt. Noyes, Church and Kinney are among last season's men who are on the floor. Harvard has four old players who are eligible in Brown, Amberg, Burnham and B. Brown and Columbia has a seventy-man squad for position on the 'varsity, college and freshman teams, all of whom have had previous experience in the game. Princeton has had but twenty-one candidates, in answer to the call, but two-thirds of these have played on their class teams or as substitutes, and three of the 1905-1906 team, Thompson, Clark and Halliday, are out. Cornell appears to have fairly good prospects, for with four veterans in the squad, the physical director of the university has consented to act as coach, an officer which the Ithacans have lacked heretofore.

The basketball team of the Plainfield High School will play a game with the team from the Montclair High School, on the local court Saturday afternoon at 3:30. A good game is anticipated.

The Plainfield High School girls' basketball team play the girls' team from the Newark High School tomorrow afternoon on the local court at 3:15 o'clock.

FOOTBALL.

Walter Camp, Yale's leading athletic adviser, yesterday stated that while he did not want to be quoted in the matter he had heard nothing about a severance of athletic relations between Harvard and Yale. He intimated from his conversation that from his knowledge of the situation no such event was likely to take place, saying: "I know nothing about it." He further said that so far as he was aware no serious discussion had taken place among Yale men regarding visionary plans for filling the vacancy caused by any future withdrawal from the Yale schedule by Harvard. Other alumni familiar with the athletic situation are of the general opinion that there is little foundation in fact for the statement that such a move is contemplated by any number of Harvard men.

The Rev. Dr. Ethelbert D. Warfield, president of Lafayette College, addressed the students at the State School in Trenton on Tuesday and caused enthusiasm among the young people and astonishment for the faculty by upholding the game of football and advising the use of slang. He declared he was a positive friend of the game of football, characterizing it as the most manly contest in which the college athletes of America can engage. Of slang he said that some of it was sometimes the best of English because of its expressive value and in spite of whatever inelegance might be attached. He declared that the grammarians were not always the best judges of worth in language, adding that a great many of the expressions of Shakespeare could not have passed the censure of the grammarians of his day.

Prof. C. V. P. Young, head of the physical department at Cornell University and one of the football coaches, yesterday advocated a systematic method for selecting the All-American Football teams of the future. In his opinion, a group of men should be selected whose expert knowledge and opportunities for observation would compel recognition and acquiescence on the part of all. He thinks that this might come within the province of the rules committee, at least from a sub-committee of five to be appointed from that organization. He thinks that under such circumstances to make the All-American team would then be an honor and would indicate something more than an individual preference.

A Western football coach is out with a suggestion to the rules committee to change the shape of the ball. By lengthening it a couple of inches and giving the sphere more tapering ends, with a bulge in the centre, this expert says fumbling would be reduced, punts could be driven much further and forward passes could be made longer and more accurate. But it is safe to say that the rule makers will let well enough alone.

DIAMOND DUST.

Frank Delehanty, who played left field a part of last season for the New York Americans, was operated on last week for appendicitis at his home in Cleveland. Although the ordeal was severe, Delehanty is now recovering rapidly and will be out of the hospital in a few days. Delehanty says that he was bothered a great deal by this ailment last season, but expects to be in better condition than ever before when he reports to Griffith in the spring.

Spike Shannon, who was purchased from the St. Louis Nationals last summer by Manager McGraw, is putting in a strenuous winter at Los Angeles, where he is assisting the starter in lining up the horses at the race-track. Shannon's side partner in this occupation is the veteran Jake Beckley, who has been using the bull whip for several winters with much success. It is probable, by the way, that the New York Nationals will train in the spring at Los Angeles, in which event it will be possible for McGraw and Broadway Alec Smith to see the ponies run for their money occasionally between practice stunts on the diamond.

This is the time of the year when baseball magnates make big cash offers for star players whose services they know are not in the market. By adopting this policy the magnates believe they can throw dust in the eyes of the loyal supporters of their teams who are vainly clamoring for winners. A club owner would be safe in offering Barney Dreyfuss $25,000 for Hans Wagner, for instance, and upon the receipt of a prompt turndown he coud go home and say for publication: "Well, I did my best to strengthen the team by offering $25,000 in spot cash for Wagner, but Dreyfuss would not have it. The other clubs have combined against me and we will have to do the best we can!" Then as another angle to the proposition Dreyfuss could go home to Pittsburg and say to the fans: "I turned down $25,000 for Wagner because I want to give you a winning team!" It is a play that works both ways and the magnates have been working it for years. Consequently when big offers for star players are made with reckless abandon nowadays they should be taken by the baseball public with plenty of salt.

Charley Murphy is fathering a scheme to have all ball players numbered, with corresponding numbers printed on the score cards. The players' numbers are to be attached to the sleeve or back of the uniform. Murphy thinks spectators would like this innovation. When Dovey, of Boston, heard that Ebbets had offered $12,000 for three Chicago players he raised the bid to $15,000. Ebbets' reiterated that he never had any intention of parting with Lumley and Jordan. "It would be suicidal," he declared. "I'll give $30,000 for two ball players that I can name, and that is on the level, too. The two in mind would make us a pennant winner. As our club now stands we'll be in the hunt for the pennant. The Brooklyn club expects to make money next year, and isn't going about it by weakening the team."

Christy Mathewson was among the baseball players at the Victoria Hotel, yesterday, exchanging the glad hand with the managers and lesser moguls of the National League.

BOWLING.

There will be three more games rolled in the Central Journal Bowling League tournament this year. On Tuesday night, December 18, Cranford will roll at Westfield; Park at Elizabeth and Roselle at Newark Bay.

In a game at McLaughlin's alleys yesterday, the city record for five men was beaten. An aggregate of 1025 was made as the following scores will show: C. R. Thiers, 243; Ed. Britten, 190; Willie Mullen, 206; Joe Farley, 180; Louis Menzenbach, 206.

The second series of games in the two-man team tourney will be rolled at McLaughlin's tonight. The teams will compete as follows: Meyer and Mack against Day and Gahagan, Leland and Dodge against Gaddis and Dilkes, Kiely and Runyon against Causebrook and J. McLaughlin.

In two match games in the series being played between them, the P. B. A. team was defeated by the Rahway five last night. The contest took place at McLaughlin's and was followed by two thers, not in the series, both of which were taken by the Plainfielders. The scores:

SENIORS VICTORIOUS.

Defeat P. H. S. Juniors in a Lively Basketball Game.

The inter-class basketball game on the Plainfield High School court, yesterday afternoon, between the senior and junior classes, resulted in a victory for the seniors, the score being 12 to 8. It was a fast game and held the interest of the spectators from start to finish. Leggett was the star player for the seniors and Moritmer for the juniors. Lambert showed improvement, exceeding his record by shooting a goal. The line-up:

Seniors—Forwards, Leggett, Taylor, William Osgood; center, Douglas; guards, Kyte, VanDeventer, Gavett.

Juniors—Forwards, Lambert, Mortimer, Foster; center, Robins; guards, Schofield, Rubenstein.

Goals made—Leggett, 4; Osgood, 1; Kyte, 1; Mortimer, 2; Robins, 1; Lambert, 1. Referee, Mathewson; timer, Major. Final score, 12 to 8 in favor of the seniors.

Basketball Notes.

The first and second Y. M. C. A. basketball teams had fast practice last night. They need it, because both St. George teams, against which they will play Monday night, are the paprika in basketball about this region. They are as good as anything in the game. There is hope for the local men, because the cripples are rounding into shape. Scull's wrist is almost as good as new and Smith has whittled down his cold to an occasional cough or two. Leary, child of hard luck, is still out of the game with no hope of speedy return and a wrist bone that has evidently decided to knit when it gets darn good and ready.

Basketball Schedule.

The schedule of the interscholastic basketball league has been arranged as follows: December 19, P. H. S. vs. N. P. H. S.; January 9, Leal's vs. P. H. S.; January 23, N. P. H. S. vs. Leal's; January 30, P. H. S. vs. N. P. H. S.; February 6, P. H. S. vs. Leals; February 20, N. P. H. S. vs. Leal's; March 15, N. P. H. S. vs. P. H. S.; March 27, P. H. S. vs. Leal's.

Athletic Tournament Starts.

The all-around championship athletic tournament will open at the Y. M. C. A. tonight, with the standing broad jump. The event will be run off after the regular class work. From now on, an event will be held each week until the card is worked out.

(Other sporting news on page three).

Chased Suspected Firebug.

The man suspected of having fired Mrs. Augusta Blackford's barn at Oak Tree Monday night is said to have fled from the village. It was heard that he had slipped away Tuesday, and neighbors of Mrs. Blackford started in pursuit. The chase lay in this direction, and it is said to have developed into a case of the fastest sprinting. The suspect won, and disappeared. It is said that arrangements were being made to surround his favorite haunt when news of his flight was received.

Democratic Primaries Monday Night.

Announcement is made in the advertising columns of the Democratic primaries for the election of one county committeemen for each election district of the city, to be held Monday night, December 17, at 8 o'clock. The primaries for the First, Third and Fourth wards will be held at the rooms of the Grocers' Protective Association, Park and North avenues, and for the Second ward at the Bryant Public School. Polls will be open from 8:30 to 9:30 o'clock.

Moving Van Bumped.

One of Captain William Hand's large moving vans, while returning home from Scotch Plains, last night, was run into by an automobile and slightly damaged. The owner of the machine is not known, but as so little damage resulted it is not likely that anything will be done about the matter.

Reception to Seniors.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Winthrop Travell will give a reception to the senior class of the Plainfield High School, in the High School auditorium, December 22.

—Two large gas arc lights placed by Shirley & Johnston in front of their place of business in the Babcock building, are a great improvement, lighting up a particularly dark spot.

FIRE DESTROYS HOME OF GEO. WOOD'S GRANDMOTHER

House in Coontown Figured Conspicuously in Murder Trial Two Years Ago.

MAN'S NARROW ESCAPE

Leonard Marks Saves His Life by Jumping from Second Story Window—Mrs. Pollock Away.

Fire destroyed the Mrs. Sarah Pollock homestead, located on the road between Warrenville and Mt. Horeb, between 1 and 2 o'clock this morning, and Leonard Marks, an old man, employed on the place as a woodchopper, just escaped with his life by jumping out of the second story window. The homestead was completely destroyed, the loss being about $2,000. Neighbors were aroused by the big blaze, but by the time they reached the scene there was no hope of saving the structure.

The homstead was owned by Mrs. Sarah Pollock, grandmother of Geo. Wood, who killed George Williams, the Watchung grocer. She was not at home at the time of the fire, being called to Woodbridge by the serious illness of her brother. She was notified this morning by telegraph of the disaster.

As far as can be learned the fire started in the kitchen from a defective chimney. That part of the old house had probably been burning a half hour, when Marks was awakened by the smoke which had penetrated a room overhead, where he was sleeping. A hurried investigation on his part disclosed the fact that the whole rear of the dwelling was in a blaze. Marks attempted to leave the house by a back stairs, but when he opened the door he found the passageway cut off by smoke and flames. He then made his way to a window and jumped out, landing safely on the ground, a distance of fifteen or twenty feet.

By this time the whole house was in flames and within an hour was reduced to ashes. The greatest loss to Marks is that of his winter supplies, including potatoes, vegetables of all kinds and pork which he had stored away. Mr. Pollock owned three houses in the vicinity and she allowed Marks to occupy the homestead for the care and keeping. The neighbors are now interesting themselves in his behalf and will render him substantial assistance.

SNEAK THIEF WORKS QUIETLY IN THE NEW MADISON.

Gains Entrance to Mrs. Strader's Apartments and Gets Quantity of Her Jewelry.

In looking for some jewelry at her home in the New Madison, last night, Mrs. A. K. Strader discovered that a sneak thief had been in the apartments and taken the greater part of a case filled with ornaments. Among the articles missed were two gold watches, a gold bracelet, a gold locket and an opal ring belonging to her daughter, Miss Madeline Strader, and also a sterling silver pocketbook and a silver watch. The robbery was evidently committed some time during the afternoon when no one was at home.

The matter was reported to the police, but as yet no clue to the thief has been discovered.

HAND BELL RINGERS PLEASED.

Large Audience Greets the Quartette at Grace M. E. Entertainment.

The second of the series of entertainments planned by Grace M. E. church was given last night before a very large audience. It was furnished by the Criterion Hand Bell Ringers, who, in addition to playing on many unique instruments, provided a reader, Miss Florence Allwood, and a soprano soloist, Miss Evelyn Navillus. Both of the latter pleased with their numbers and were longly applauded. The musicians extracted harmony from bottles, bells, glasses and many other instruments, playing difficult selections on all of them.

The next and concluding entertainment will be given on January 22 and will be furnished by the Metropolitan Male Quartette.

Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., will elect officers on Tuesday night, December 18.

REVOLT IS STARTED TO OUST J. H. FIRTH

MOVEMENT TO MAKE HIM WITHDRAW AS CAUCUS NOMINEE FOR SPEAKER.

Several Hudson county, N. J., Democrats who are not interested in the factional quarrel between Robert Davis and former Senator James Smith, but who have the interest of the party at heart, have started a movement having for its purpose the withdrawal of Assemblyman Joseph H. Firth from the Speakership contest.

Democrats throughout the State will be asked to lend their aid to the movement, and it is the intention to hold a series of meetings in Passaic, Essex and other counties to protest against the selection of the Warren county Assemblyman.

When Hudson county Democrats, especially the members of Assembly, read in the papers yesterday that the man whom former Senator Smith forced on the Democratic caucus for Speaker had been fined $500 for keeping a disorderly house they were astounded. It was the universal opinion that Firth as Speaker would lose the Democratic party thousands of votes in the State and in the Gubernatorial contest next fall.

Several of the Hudson Assemblymen did not conceal their digust, and the talk was that if Smith perists in the desire to make Firth Speaker, there will be trouble.

The opinion was expressed that if Senator Smith put the Warren man in the race, in the hope of causing a split, the members of the Essex delegation whom he controls would, in case Hudson bolted Firth, have an excuse for casting their votes for Dryden for Senator.

It was a similar situation that defeated Leon Abbett for Senator at the time Rufus Blodgett was chosen.

PROSPECTS FOR THE NEXT HORSE SHOW.

Waring Pleased Over the Outlook—Improving Grounds.

Lewis E. Waring, of West Seventh street, who recently returned from visiting several important horse shows, where he acted as one of the judges, has heard nothing but words of praise concerning the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club, and a majority of the exhibitors who have been here during the past two shows, have assured him that they will return next June.

The club has been making a big addition to the stables at its show grounds at an expense of about $4,000. This will make it possible to accommodate seventy more horses. Last year the stable were not adequate to provide for the large number of entries and the club decided that an addition was an absolute necessity.

It is perhaps unfortunate that during the week of the show next year, there will be a big show in London, which will attract many American horses. However, the local club was unable to get a better date than the one already fixed and besides the officers have been assured of a majority of the entries received last year so that it will really not make a great difference. W. K. Vanderbilt promised to bring his horses here last year, but found at the last minute that it was impossible. Although C. W. Watson intends sending many of his best horses abroad he will probably be represented here.

The Plainfield show following as it does the one in Philadelphia makes it possible to secure a great many fine entries and now that exhibitors are better acquainted with local conditions they are more anxious than ever to come here each year.

"Linen" Peddler Fined.

Alphono Saragosa, arrestedd yesterday by Patrolman Kelly for peddling white goods, purported to be linen, without a license, was fined $5 by Judge Runyon this morning, in spite of a plea for clemency by Lawyer Fred J. Huff. The magistrate said he didn't fine the prisoner for peddling without a license, but because he believed the goods were misrepresented by the peddler. The sale of "linen" at ten cents a yeard was becoming too popular, the court said.

Recovering from Operation.

Barry Got Gay.

John Barry, of the borough, got gay on Somerset street, last night, and ran afoul of Marshal Flack. He was placed under arrest for disorderly conduct and will be arraigned tonight.

LUSARDI ARRESTED ON A NEWARK CAPIAS

ISSUED IN A BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT FOR $10,000.

Antonio Lusardi, Jr., fruit dealer, was arrested on a capias warrant, last night, in a suit for $10,000 for breach of promise instituted against him by Ethel Emery, seventeen years old, of Newark, through her father, Watson Emery. He furnished $4,000 bail before Supreme Court Commissioner W. S. Angleman, and was released pending the trial.

The capias was issued by Judge Raymond, of the Newark District Court, as a supreme court commissioner. It was served by Deputy Sheriff Peter Weaver at Lusardi's house. Judge Raymond fixed the bond at $2,000 and Mr. Angleman, as directed by the law in such cases, doubled it.

Lusardi was not held at the station house long. Judge William Newcorn, his lawyer, had bondsmen on hand, soon after his arrest. Christian Gloekler and Alex. Lusardi are the bondsmen.

Watson Emery, the girl's father, recently secured a verdict for $3,000 for the alienation of his wife's affections from David Taylor, then a Lincoln hotel keeper. Mrs. Emery has since returned to her husband.

DIED IN HIS BATHROOM

Justice of the Peace J. P. Mosher Expired While Alone.

A MARRYING SQUIRE

He Had Been a Local Justice for Many Years—Borne in New Market Seventy-four Years Ago.

Though he had been ill for more than two weeks and his case was considered helpless, death came suddenly this morning to Joseph E. Mosher, for eighteen years a local justice of the peace and one of the city's best known residents. He had been ailing for a year or more with Bright's disease but it was only a short time ago that he gave up conducting business and took to his bed at the home of his son, William R. Mosher, of New street. Early this morning he was feeling unusually better and at 9:30, while no one was about, he got up to go to the bathroom. While there heart failure developed and he fell to the floor. The noise brought a member of the family to the room who found that life was extinct.

Mr. Mosher was born at New Market on June 23, 1832, but almost his entire life was spent in Plainfield. His father owned and lived for many years in a property on Exchange alley, in those days known as Mosher's alley. He was a tailor by trade and for twenty-two years was in the employ of Christian Schepfin, when his clothing factor on West Front street was one of the largest in New Jersey. In the latter years of his service, he delivered the unfinished garments to home workers as far as Whitehouse, collecting them afterward and shipping them back to Plainfield.

Eighteen years ago he opened a cigar store on North avenue, where Timbo's restaurant is now located and soon afterward was elected justice of the peace. He continued to hold the office until the time of his death and from the outset was known familiarly to everyone as "Judge." He was of a genial, sunny disposition and his court was the principal one for petty cases for a long time. When he left North avenue, he located in the First National Bank boulding but for the past few years his office has been in the Marsh building. He was known as a "marrying 'squire," having united many couples.

Mr. Mosher was a member of the Seventh-Day Baptist church and a regular attendant. He leaves two sons, Edward M. Mosher and William R. Mosher, both of Plainfield.

The funeral will be held at the home of William R. Mosher Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Interment will be at Hillside.

DR. SCHENCK SUFFERS A SERIOUS STROKE

HIS RIGHT SIDE AND SPEECH BADLY AFFECTED.

Rev. Dr. Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, suffered a stroke of paralysis while in bed this morning. His speech is much affected and Dr. P. B. Cregar, who was summoned, said today that he considers the case quite serious. The minister is confined to his bed and is being attended by the family physician, Dr. J. B. Probasco, who reported this afternoon that his patient is in a serious condition.

Last night, Dr. Schenck attended the meeting of Trinity Reformed church's consistory and appeared to be in the best of health. He was chatting in his customary lively spirit during the entire evening.

At 4 o'clock this morning, he awoke feeling a numbness in his right side. His wife hurriedly summoned Dr. Cregar. The physician stated after the examination that the stroke was severe.

APPRECIATIVE AUDIENCE GREETS J. EDMUND SKIFF.

In Recital He Is Assisted by Miss Colton and Mrs. Greene.

It was an enthusiastic and appreciative audience that gathered last evening in the Y. M. C. A. Hall to listen to the recital given by J. Edmund Skiff, tenor, with the assistance of Miss Mae Jean Colt, reader, and Mrs. Caia Aarup Greene at the piano. Mr. Skiff has never been heard to better advantage than in the seventeen songs which he gave last evening. It was a programme which called for much resource and insight into the author's meaning, but Mr. Skiff adapted himself exceedingly well to the various changes and sang with feeling and expression.

The hits of the evening were the three songs of the last group entitled "Bliss," "An Explanation," compositions by Mrs. Greene, and Lohr's "A Little Irish Girl." The four Indian love lyrics, however, gave him more opportunity for show of dramatic art and expression.

Miss Colt was an exceedingly able assistant. She is a dainty little body, but an actress. She not only reads her lines well, but goes to the heart of her hearers. She is as attractive a reader as a Plainfield audience has heard in a long time.

To Mrs. Greene belongs great credit for her superb accompanying. She was a tower of strength as an assistant to Mr. Skiff in his songs. The evening was altogether a delightful one and the hall should have been filled to its capacity.

NEW LAW MAKES COUNTY TAX BOARD THE ASSESSOR

So Says the Union County Board in Its Report to Governor Stokes.

THE WORK DIFFICULT

If Increases Had Not Been Made in Rate, Much Property Would Have Paid Less Actually Than a Year Ago.

The report of the Union County Board of Taxes to Governor Stokes made by the chairman, follows:

Hon. E. C. Stokes, Governor State of New Jersey.

My Dear Sir:

At your request I send you herewith copy of the statement which I read to you October 23d, setting forth in part the work of the Union County Board of Taxation.

"We assume that you are interested in knowing something of the detail of the work of the board, and also, the methods by which it arrived at certain conclusions, together with the results of the first year's assessments in Union county.

"Where personal interests are so much involved throughout the community, as in the question of taxation, the execution of the new law must, of necessity, cause more or less friction.

"We found at the outset that the requirements under which thirty-thirty-eight assessors were to change completely the basis upon which they were to arrive at values would be acompanied by misunderstandings. We know our work is likely to be criticised; but we are conscious of having tried to apply the law impartially and justly. We find, moreover, that we have the sympathy and forbearance of a large body of fair-minded men, who have expressed themselves as not expecting final results the first year, but who believe strongly in the methods for which the new law stands, and we have had strong expressions to this effect from leading lawyers and real estate men in the county, irrespective of party.

"Our board had no previous year's books from which it could arrive at even comparative values, so was forced to examine thirty-eight books in seven weeks and fix a fair valuation for the county. It was necessary for the board to work day and night to reach the conclusions it has. Some of its methods may interest you.

"Finding that gas and water companies were assessed an underground mains at different rates in different localities, the board with the aid of an expert fixed a uniform rate and notified all assessors to conform to this rate.

"Again the question of value of many industrial plants received our attention. Local assessors found it difficult to get figures from the companies, and it was difficult to arrive at an intelligent conclusion. An expert, disinterested builder, was employed, and his conclusions were used in reaching figures.

"The total assessment for the county is $106,259,437. Last year's assessment was $55,260,709,—an increase of 92 per cent. over last year. What is the result to the taxpayer?

"There has not been time to give the new law a fair test, and besides the State School Tax has been increased over $10,000, and the county tax $46,000, besides which most of the municipalities have increased their budgets. These amounts were difficult to absorb in making up the rates and make the satisfactory showing we wished for. As it is, the rates are as follows, compared with last year:

"Clark township, $1.28, 78c; Cranford, $2.36, $1.37; Elizabeth, $2.86, $1.46; Fanwood township, $2.08, $1.52; Fanwood borough, $2.50, $1.50; Garwood borough, $2.42, $1.23; Linden township, $1.26, 65c; Linden borough, $1.92, $1.03; Mountainside borough, $1.36; New Providence borough, $2.24, $1.20; Plainfield, $2.48, $1.35; Rahway, $2.78, $2.12; Roselle borough, $2.52, $1.49; Roselle Park, $2.48, $1.17; Springfield township, $1.45; Summit, $2.94, $1.64; Union township, $1.60, $1.06; Westfield, $2.30, $1.78.

"If it had not been for the increases noted a large proportion of the properties would have paid less actual taxes than last year; a fair proportion will not pay any more this year, and many pay less.

"Perhaps the framers of the law under which we are working did not realize it, but as a matter of fact, the law practically makes these county boards the assessors for the county. To review the assessors' books intelligently, the board has to have

POOR MEMORIES NO HELP TO PANHANDLERS

BENTFORD AND MOORE WERE IDENTIFIED AND HAD TO PAY FINES.

When Robert Cook opened the door of his house on Crescent avenue early last night in response to the ringing of the bell, two men, one tall and thin and the other short and fat, pushed by him into the hall. The tall one asked for fifty cents. Mr. Cook didn't like the look of things, and handed over the fifty cents in a hurry to get rid of the pair. As soon as they were out of the house he telephoned to the police.

Patrolman Overbaugh went out after the pair. He had Mr. Cook's description of them, and when he saw Andrew Bentford, of Cottage place, who is tall and thin, and Robert Moore, one of Bentfords' recent acquaintances, who is rotund, eating a sandwich on Seventh street, a block from the Cook house, his sleuthing instinct awoke. The sandwiches bespoke handout, and Overbaugh placed the pair under arrest on the chance that they were the Cook panhandlers. Bentford was drunk and Moore not far from it.

In court this morning they denied, with much wealth of detail and circumstance that they had panhandled, or that they had been at Cook's house at all. The sandwiches, Moore assured Judge Runyon, were purchased at Clevely's restaurant. They wouldn't even recognize the possibility of their having gone to Cook's house under the influence of a skate and subsequently losing recollection of the visit. They were positive they hadn't asked Mr. Cook for fifty cents.

"Well," said the magistrate pleasantly, "we will send for Mr. Cook. If he identifies you it will cost you each $5 to get away. If he doesn't, you may go for nothing."

Mr. Cook was called to headquarters by telephone. While waiting for him, the police were kept busy shooing Mrs. Maggie Bentford, the aged and bent mother of Andrew, away from the station house.

Mr. Cook identified the prisoners without hesitation. Moore managed to get his fine from his wife, who works in town, and Bentford was given until Saturday to pay.

Y. M. C. A. DINNER PLANS.

Date In Doubt, Pending Choice of a Speaker.

Plans for the annual dinner and meeting of the Y. M. C. A. are progressing. The committee met last night and further steps toward the affair were taken.

The chief speaker has not yet been secured, and until he is the date will be held open. It is customary to allow the speaker to pick the date most agreeable to him. It is not unlikely that two speakers of prominence will be secured.

In addition to the speeches President Gavett's annual report will be heard at the dinner.

The dinner is to be more elaborate than usual. It will be served in the large hall, by Mrs. Henry Johnson, who catered last year. The subscription has been raised to $1, and ice-water will flow freely.

The annual election will follow the dinner. Six directors are to be named.

K. of C. Election.

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, has elected these officers for the ensuing year: Grand knight, Arthur A. Cannon; deputy grand knight, Michael D. O'Keefe; chancellor, Robert McCormack; financial secretary, John J. Hines; recording secretary, Richard Birmingham; warden, William Shafer; inside guard, John Carty; outside guard, David Doyle; advocate, Francis J. Blatz; lecturer, Andrew E. Kenney; trustees, Patrick Traynor, John C. Traynor and John J. Kenney.

Old Charge Against Suspect.

The neighbors of Mrs. Augusta Blackford, whose barn at Oak Tree was burned last Monday night, are still on the lookout for the suspected incendiary, who is said to have fled from Oak Tree Tuesday morning. The suspect has generally been credited with having burned down Ellis Campbell's barn ten or more years ago, after he had been put out of the old "Club House."

Sues Brewing Company.

Through her lawyer, F. J. Blatz, suit has been started by Mrs. O. W. Young against the National Brewing Company, of Newark, on contract, in the Newark District Court.

DIAMOND DUST.

Harry Pulliam has been re-elected president of the National League. Pulliam's clean ball platform and other labors for the organization since he has been its chief executive made such a hit with most of the club owners that there was little doubt he would be re-elected. Any other course would have been a surprise. There was not other nomination. Pulliam was nominated by Stanley Robison, of St. Louis, and Ebbets, of Brooklyn, seconded the nomination. Six of the eight clubs voted for Pulliam on the first ballot, so that only one ballot was necessary. The Cincinnati club did not vote, while John T. Brush, of the New York club was the only one who voted no. August Herrmann, of Cinnati has, like Brush, been opposed to Pulliam, and he made the following statement: "The Cincinnati club will not vote on the proposition of president, but as the president of the Cincinnati club I desire to say that in the event of the election of Mr. Pulliam he will have the unqualified support of the Cincinnati club, and especially will he have the earnest support of the club in the enforcement of discipline on the ball field." John Arnold Heydler, who has been Pulliam's secretary since the former has been in office, was elected secretary and treasurer of the league. Pulliam heretofore has been secretary and treasurer as well as president. Not in a good many years have the officers been held separately. The election of Mr. Heydler was unanimous, his nominator being Dreyfuss, of Pittsburg. The following board of directors was chosen: Dreyfus, of Pittsburg; Ebbets, of Brooklyn; Herrmann, of Cincinnati; Murphy, of Chicago, and Dovey, of Boston. The only change was Herrmann for Shettsline, of Philadelphia. The old committee on constitution was named: Brush, of New York; Herrmann and Ebbets. Also the same committee on playing rules: Dreyfuss, Hanlon and Murphy.

In addition to the baseball schedule of the University of Pennsylvania as announced for next spring, the management of the team is contemplating a post-season trip into the West, where a series of games with Chicago, Wisconsin, Michigan and Illinois will be played. This trip is not merely for the love of the sport, however, for it is thought that the Quakers have a motive in invading the West, and a good one at that. Pennsylvania is looking forward to the 1907 football season already and at present there seems to be no likelihood of more than one big game in the East, that with Cornell. Of course the Red and Blue will go to Michigan to return the trip of the Wolverines to Franklin Field this past fall, but if they cannot take one some other Western team for an Eastern game the schedule will be lacking in interest and fall as a money maker. Harvard has severed relations in all sports with Pennsylvania. Yale is not apparently over anxious to meet the Quakers in football, although willing to try comparisons in other sports, and Princeton is also averse to bucking up against the Red and Blue line. Therefore it behooves the Quaker university to do something to establish cordial athletic relations with other of the Western colleges other than Michigan, and such action should be easy next fall, inasmuch as the Big Nine conference of the West, while allowing a seven game schedule for the Western colleges, still refuses to let the big colleges come together. If any team comes East it will probably be Chicago, as such a game would draw a larger crowd probably than any other intersectional contest.

ASSISTANT TREASURER CHOSEN BY CONSISTORY.

Mr. Vroom to Aid Mr. Gayle in Managing Trinity's Finances.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Consistory of Trinity Reformed church, last night, George Gayle, who has served the church faithfully as treasurer for the last eighteen years, was re-elected for the year. The clerk was instructed to convey to Mr. Gayle by letter the hearty thanks of the Consistory for his past services and also for his willingness to serve another year.

In view of the amount of work necessary to keep a correct account with the large number of persons who pay for sittings by the envelope system, Philip A. Vroom was elected as assistant to Mr. Gayle for the purpose of looking after the envelope system exclusively.

Carnegie for Income Tax.

New York, Dec. 14.—Andrew Carnegie's views concerning the proper disposition of America's great fortunes attracted much attention at the meeting of the National Civic Federation yesterday during a discussion of a national inheritance tax and an income tax. He believed with Gladstone, he said, that an income tax made a nation of liars. Men were like bees. They should not be interfered with while making the money, but at their death, he believed, a large part of all the great fortunes that men acquire should go back to the community which makes their accumulation possible.

Railroad Casualty List.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—In reporting a total of 933 persons killed and 16,004 injured during the second quarter of 1906, in its recently published accident bulletin, the Interstate Commerce Commission declares that the number is less than in the last preceding quarter, but more than in corresponding quarter of 1905. "In considering train accidents alone, however," says the report, "there is a gratifying diminution both in passengers killed and employees killed, compared with either of the two earlier uarters mentioned."

Wings and Flies

By Tom Muir.

Miss Nelia Webb, the milliner girl in "His Honor, the Mayor," is the pretty young woman whom Frank Daniels, the comedian, recently kissed at Wallack's theatre, while she was singing her "A Little Girl Like Me" song. Mr. Daniels, who was seated in a box, could not resist the temptation, so he leaped over the box rail onto the stage and implanted a fervent caress on the lips of the singer, to the mixed delight and envy of the spectators.

In presenting "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire" at the New Plainfield next Monday night, Miss Ethel Barrymore will be supported by Bruce McRae, who was her leading man in "Sunday" and "Cousin Kate."

Mrs. Lottie Blair Parker's pretty play, "Under Southern Skies," has been secured by Manager Counihan for the New Year's afternoon and night attraction. It was presented here last February to two crowded houses and left a decidedly favorable impression.

Manager Counihan expects to have his new office completed by the first of the year. It is situated in what was formerly the confectionery store to the right of the lobby and when ready for occupancy will be handsomely appointed. The space was needed because of the increased clerical work brought about through bookings for the new house to be erected at Perth Amboy by Mr. Counihan.

The second act setting of "The Governor's Pardon," to be seen at the New Plainfield theatre tonight, one drop alone requiring four weeks' labor to paint, and is by Herr Biedeman, late master artist of the Chicago Art Institute. There is an unusually handsome and massive grand staircase in this scene, three pairs of French windows, with nearly one hundred and fifty panes of real glass, expensive furniture, tapestries and draperies. During the scene a terrific fight occrs between the hero and the villain, wherein everything on the stage, including vases, bric-a-brac, statuary, furniture and even the chandeliers are smashed, finally culminating in a mad struggle on the staircase. They sway to and fro until the hero succeeds in throwing the villain down the stairs backward, a distance of eighteen feet.

THE FORUM.

The City's Eyesores.

Editor, The Daily Press:

I am much inpressed with the force of your editorial regarding the encumbrance of the business portion of our city with ungainly electric light poles, upon which to string wires. The writer was today handed a postal card upon which the new Trust building is shown, but the most prominent feature depicted thereon is a crude pole to carry the Public Service wires. Aside from the unsightly appearance of these wires, they are carrying about 10,000 volts, which in cases of break or damage would deal eath and destruction to all around. On July 12 ,1898, an ordinance was passed proposing to abolish wires in this section of our city. Why is it not enforced?

POOR TRAIN SERVICE.

Several communications protesting against the shabby railroad service from Trenton to Plainfield in the afternoon have been received by The Daily Press. Among them is the following:

Editor, The Daily Press:

I wish to protest against the inadequate train service in the afternoon from Trenton to Plainfield. I have lived here for twelve years and we have always had three good afternoon trains, but under the new arrangement there is nothing between 2:10 and 6:08.

In most walks of life men strive for improvement, but the Reading Company seems to use its best endeavors to make matters worse. A few months ago the Plainfield stops of several of the Philadelphia trains were given up because—so it was said—"so many people used them." Now they take off two trains that have been established features of the time-table for years. If we had never had decent accommodations the present arrangement could be endured, but as it is, it is outrageous.

Trenton is the capital of the State, a city of 90,000 people, with large business, social and educational interests, the seat of the State government with all its many branches, and the home of all the important courts. These things draw travel and it is the duty of the railroad to encourage it.

Yet now a lawyer with a case in court, a citizen with business at the State House, a legislator attending a meeting of the house, a parent returning from Princeton or Lawrenceville, or a business man with work to do, must all be ready to leave Trenton at 2 o'clock on else wait for four hours. Such a state of affairs is disgraceful.

I also call attention to another grievance and that is the failure by the railroads for the feelings and rights of their patrons is to a great extent the cause of the hostility and hatred which the public feel for the railroads.

Hunt Club May Return Here.

White it is a source of regret to some Plainfielders that the Watchung Hunt Club was obliged to go so far away from the city to find a club home, the proposition was really one of the best that could be made and was accepted. Charles D. Freeman, who owns the farm and farm-house used by the club, gives the club the use of the property for two years at the nominal rental of $1 a year. The farm-house has been remodelled and is in every way adapted for club purposes. It is thought that should a new club be formed at the Casino the Watchung Hunt Club may return here and enjoy its privileges.

Miss Virginia Hegeman, of Myrtle avenue, has returned home from a month's stay in Detroit.

WOULD DIVIDE CRANFORD.

Movement for Separate Government On Each Side of Railroad.

Cranford, Dec. 14.—Many property owners and taxpayers residing on the south side of the town are agitating a movement to divide Cranford township into two distinct municipalities, with the Central Railroad tracks as a boundary line, making the conditions similar to those in Roselle, where the borougs of Roselle and Roselle Park have separate forms of government.

The promoters of the movement say that the project is not a political but a progressive one. A meeting will be called in the near future to take action on the matter.

HOPE CHAPEL FAIR DOES GOOD BUSINESS

ENTERTAINMENT AND SALE AT THREE-NIGHT'S AFFAIR IN WEST END.

The three-night fair at Hope chapel started well last night by making profits of over $50. The worthy object of the organ fund has attracted a gift for another popular object, namely the Children's Home. A fine hand sewing machine has been donated by Mrs. Harry Corliss and is to be given to the Home on condition that the patrons of the fair contribute enough for it to pay $10 into the organ fund. This is placed on the crowded fancy table in charge of Mrs. William Gray and committee, among a great variety of beautiful and useful articles for Christmas and other times. Next to this stands the artistic candy booth, Mrs. Wharton, chairman, on one side and the mysterious art gallery, under Mrs. Thomas Brown, on the other. Both were well patronized and the latter was found to be exceedingly interesting as well as amusing. Among the world famous paintings of which a representation is offered is The Horse Fair.

The Men's Club "Polytechnic" showed a stranger variety of goods than any other table, exhibiting the generosity of Plainfield merchants as well as the zeal and industry of the committee in charge. It had the appearance of an industrial fair all by itself. Mr. Slorah is chairman of this committee.

The Young People's Society, presided over by Miss Haughter, occupied a central place, serving chocolate and selling postal cards from a most artisic booth. Ice cream tables filled one portion of the room and were in constant use.

For entertainment there were piano solos by Mrs. L. R. Howard and vocal solos by Ferd. C. Iglehart as well as a basketball game between the High School seconds and the Boy's Club. The High School turned the tables on Hope, winning this first out of three games by a score of 22-16 after a hard fought contest.

It was announced that Whittier School would play Hope on Friday evening and a contingent of the High School Musical Clubs with other musicians would contribute to the entertainment.

REQUIEM HIGH MASS FOR P. E. CHURCH BISHOP.

Bishop Potter As Celebrant Assisted By Bp. Scarborough at Bp. Seymour's Funeral.

Many men of prominent in the financial district in New York left the noisy exchanges at 11 a. m. yesterday to attend the solemn and impressive funeral services for Bishop George F. Seymour in old Trinity church. For the second time in the history of the edifice the requiem high mass was celebrated there, the other occasion being the funeral of Bishop Horatio Potter. The celebrant of the requiem high mass yesterday was Bishop Henry C. Potter. He was assisted by the Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix, who read the lesson; Bishop Scarborough, of New Jersey, who read the epistle, and Bishop Whitehead, of Pittsburg, who read the gospel.

Other prelates of the Protestant Episcopal church who were present in their vestments were Bishop Coadjutor Greer, of New York; Bishop Osborne, who succeeds Bishop Seymour at Springfield, Ill.; Bishop Burgess, of Long Island; Bishop Lyons, of Newark; Bishop Darlington, of Harrisburg; Bishop Talbot, of Central Pennsylvania; Bishop Worthington, of Nebraska; Bishop Griswold, of Kansas, and Bishop Vinton, of Western Massachuetts. Nearly all the rectors of Episcopal churches in New York were at the funeral, wearing their vestments, and with them were nearly two hundred of their assistants, clergymen from nearby cities.

The Women's Relief Corps will meet on Friday night, December 27, to elect officers. The installation will take place on the evening of January 8, at which time the G. A. R. will have a public installation.

HIS $2,000 SPREE ENDS IN SUICIDE.

Sings to Drinking Companions As He Drinks Fatal Carbolic Acid.

After singing "You Dwell in My Heart," Frederick Buchler, of Paterson, swallowed yesterday an ounce of carbolic acid and died half an hour later at the General Hospital. Buchler went to the bar-room of Slumpf's Hall to have a merry time before he died, although he said nothing to the friends he met there about talking his life until after he had swallowed the fatal dose.

About six months ago Buchler returned from Germany after collecting about $2,000 left him by his father. He started on a spree as soon as he arrived and continued it up to the time of his death. He was a member of the Baker's Union, but had not worked since he came back from Germany.

About a dozen members of the union were with him yesterday. He ordered drinks for all. His associates were emptying their glasses when Buchler drained the bottle of carbolic acid. He was thirty-five years old and unmarried.

Reichstag Dissolved.

Berlin, Dec. 14.—Dissolution of the Reichstag came suddenly yesterday afternoon, amid scenes of considerable excitement, after the defeat, by 178 votes to 168, of the government's bill for a supplementary appropriation to support the troops in German Southwest Africa. This action by the government, although foreshadowed several days ago, took the House by surprise, as dissolution means a direct attack upon the clerical party, which has grown into such intimate relations with the government that it frequently has been called the governing party. The clericals have grown so stron gand obtained such an influence over the policy of the government that political prophets asserted that Prince von Bulow's would never venture to break with the party.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"The Governor's Pardon," which appears at the New Plainfield theatre tonight, is undoubtedly the most thoroughly advertised production of the road. Judging from the lavish praise bestowed upon it, by the New York and Chicago press, it is also one of the few shows that justifies such a large advertising expenditure.

No musical play of recent years has met with a greater measure of success than "His Honor, the Mayor," which Alfred E. Aarons brings to this city, at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night. "His Honor, the Mayor" has a record of six months in Chicago, and five months in New York, in the latter city breaking all summer records at two houses—the New York, and Wallack's. This successful business is not alone due to the excellence of the music, which was written by Julian Edwards and Mr. Aarons, but to the fact that there is laughter ever interspersed with melody. The comedy in "His Honor, the Mayor" is particularly strong, with the result that an evening's entertainment is provided that does not tax one's mentality too severely.

Charles Frohman will present Miss Ethel Barrymore at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night in J. M. Barrie's three act comedy, "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire." The central theme of "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire" is a mother's love for her children, but in the course of the play there is not a little of Barrie's delightful satire upon the up-to-date style of play. The story of the play centers about Alice, the wife of Colonel Grey, an English army officer stationed in India. Following the English custom Colonel and Mrs. Grey have sent their children to England and some years later join them there. The daughter is inclined to take the mother under her wing and the son dreads any display of affection on the part of his father. For awhile all is at cross purposes but in the end Alice realizes that her children are growing up and that she must be content for the remainder of her days to take her place by the fireside. It is in the very last scene of the play that Miss Barrymore as the mother, reads some of the most poetic and delightful lines that Barrie has written.

"A Romance of Coon Hollow" has held the road with unvarying success over eleven years, since its original bringing out at the Fourteenth Street theatre, New York, in August, 1894. What better can be said of a play than this? It has never been cheapened, never been allowed to fall below the high standard of its original production, either in the grade of the company, the introduced singers and dancers, or the beautiful scenery, which is all carried by the company, no house scenery whatever being used. Everything connected with Coon Hollow is big except the prices. Miss Marguerite Blake, who made a universal hit with the company last year, will again be seen, as well as the noted Four in Hand Quartette, the best plantation dancers on the road, and entire new scenery by Platzer, of the Academy of Music, New York. The show is announced for next Tuesday night at the New Plainfield theatre.

CENTURY FOR 1907.

The Century promises for 1907 a remarkable list of fiction, more, and more exquisite color work than ever, and special articles that will cover a wide range of vital and timely topics.

A. E. W. Mason's brilliant novel, "Running Water," will continue through several months; and arrangements are made to give new subscribers from November the numbers containing the earlier chapters. In an early issue will begin a new serial, "Come and Find Me," by Elizabeth Robins, a big, bold, fascinating story of the magnetic attraction of the Far North. Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's new novel, "The Shuttle," begins in the November Century. It is the expectation of those who have read the manuscript that popular opinion will rank this "novel of social internationalism" as the greatest work Mrs. Burnett has yet accomplished. The year will be notably rich too in shorter fiction, contributions being already in hand from some of the best-known and most popular story-tellers of the day. There will be at least seventy-five short stories during the year.

Unusual phases of the American Civil War are to be treated in a style to appeal to the general reader as well as to those who were active participants in the struggle. The story of "How the Civil War was Financed" tells of Jay Cooke's efforts to aid the government and how he helped to float the great loans. General O. O. Howard, the only surviving commander of a separate army during the Civil War, has added his personal recollections of some of the leading men of those great days.

Only Two of 'Em.

The daring explorer had reached the North Pole.

"Well, which way now?" asked his assistant.

The explorer looked irresolutely around the horizon.

"Dashed if I know!" he muttered.

Then his brow cleared.

"Can't you see?" he said. "We've found all the north there is. We'll have to go south!"

Merely stopping long enough to eat another dog, the party started in the general direction of the South Pole.—Chicago Record Herald.

HOW HIGH BRIDGE WAS NAMED

AN INTERESTING HISBORY OF THE OLD CENTRAL RAILROAD BRIDGE.

High Bridge gets its name from the old Central Railroad bridge which spans the river just east of that town. The bridge is not now visible, having been buried more than forty years. The work of creating an embankment there, thus covering up the bridge, was a gigantic undertaking. The High Bridge Gazette has an interesting article on the old bridge, accompanied with a picture of the original structure. The Gazette says:

"When the survey of the Central Railroad was made it was found that it would be necessary to cross the valley of the South Branch of the Raritan river here at right angles. There was no way to avoid it, and while many plans were considered it was finally decided to construct an immense bridge across the valley, which was done.

"Sidney Dillon has the contract for constructing the road from Somerville to Easton and the construction of this bridge was one of the worst problems he had to deal with, as it was necessarily slow work, and was a very tedious and hazardous undertaking. The promoters were not easily discouraged, however, and in a few years the immense structure was completed. From the start it was known as 'the high bridge' and in a short time the name fell naturally on the town.

"Some idea of the size of this structure can be gathered from the fact that it was 1,300 feet, or very nearly a quarter of a mile long. When completed the top of the rail was 120 above the level of the water in the river. This of course was the highest point. The eight immense piers, which were constructed of cut stone, were imposing, as the ones nearest the river were nearly one hundred feet high. The bridge proper rested on these piers and was constructed of wood, with iron bolts and straps. This structure was twenty feet high. The cost of the entire bridge was $200,000.

"It was thought that this structure would last for a long time, but when the trains began running over it in 1852 it soon became apparent that something else would soon have to be done. Owing to the length of the bridge and the distance between the piers the bridge rolled like the waves of the ocean when a train passed over it. The engine would sag between the piers and rise again as it passed over a pier, making the bridge appear to be very unsafe.

"At first the building of a stone bridge was considered, but it was finally decided to fill the valley with an earthen embankment, building an arch for the stream and for the road to pass through. This work was begun in 1859, but did not get fairly under way until 1865, so it took over five years to do the work. The bridge, piers and all were buried by the dirt as it was dumped on them, and nothing was saved from the structure. It is estimated that $60,000 worth of iron was buried. The cost of filling in the valley was $500,000, the two arches alon gcosting $80,000. Sidney Dillon also had the contract for filling in the valley.

"The first steam shovels ever seen in this section were used in the work. One dug on the Hackett farm, on one side of the railroad, and the other dug on the Fox farm on the other side. Whole fields were dug away and the immense holes they left are still visible. There were two "pony" engines to draw the loaded dirt cars from the shovels on the bridge, where they were dumped, after which they were returned to be filled again.

"Great trouble was experienced not only in constructing the bridge but also in filling in. It was not an unusual sight to see the dump cars or the 'pony' engines taking a tumble. When the engines went over, a track had to be laid to get them up again.

"Several accidents are reported in connection with the structure. One very foggy morning a passenger train from Easton started to cross the bridge at about the same time that a freight train started from the other end. As there was practically only one track a collision was inevitable, and the two engines met in the middle of the bridge. Both trains were running very slowly an neither the engines nor the cars left the rails. William Rex, who died a few years ago at Junction, was the engineer of the freight train. He had a leg broken by the collision.

"While the bride was building an Irishman fell from the top of one of the piers, a distance of ninety feet, and landed on his head. His head was pushed into the hard ground to his shoulders, but he was not killed. In six weeks he was back at work again. One night in 1859 a man named Owen McCahran fell from the bridge and was killed, and another was caught on the bridge by one of the 'pony' engines and cut to pieces, but these were the only serious accidents reported."

Bowling and General Sports

TOURNEY BOWLERS HAVE SEASON OF STAGE FRIGHT

IN LAST NIGHT'S GAMES SEVERAL WERE SADLY OUT OF FORM.

Stage fright in a slight form seemed to have taken hold of the competitors in last night's games of the tourney at McLaughlin's. Of the six teams taking part, three won two out of the three games, but in several instances the scores were less than an ordinary bowler would roll. The great surprise was occasioned by Kiely's rolling, his best being 175, while the others were 160 and 148. Ordinarily he can top off 200 without removing his coat. His misfortunes came from splits, nine of them occurring in the three games.

His partner, Judge Runyon, held up his end with 178, 182 and 156, though these are a little below his usual run. They worked against Causebrook and John McLauhglin, who also ran bad in the first and second game, the third being the only one they captured. In that, Causebrook hit the timber for 225, high score for the night.

The best bowling for the evening was put up by "Bill" Dilks, who averaged 206 2-3. His partner, Percy Gaddis, was way out of form, but they also took two from Dodge and Leland. Den Mack and Charles F. Meyer, Jr., got two from Roy Day and his partner, Gahagan. The latter handed in 131 for his last try, the lowest score of the night's games. The series was witnessed by a large crowd of fans and the rooting frequently brought back recollections of baseball days.

The games tonight will be as follows: Vail and Myers against Schaub Brothers; Mullen and Conklin against Woolston and Cunningham; Causebrook and McLaughlin against Maltby and Thiers.

Last night's scores:

Gaddis	149	152	146

GOTHAM'S AMUSEMENTS

Not during the past ten years of theatrical history has there been such an unqualified success on Broadway as that which Bonita and The Wine Woman and Song Company made at the New Circle theatre, where they are playing an unlimited engagement. The attraction is one of Mortimer M. Theise's offerings, and has been proclaimed by the New York press as being the best of his many attractions. Every dramatic critic voiced the entertainment in the most praiseworthy terms. Miss Bonita, who is unquestionably the most beautiful, as well as accomplished star, appears to wonderful advantage in the stellar roles. She possesses a remarkable voice and delivers her many musical selections with the style and dignity which has so long characterized her work. Her gowns are the talk of the town and her clever impersonations of several of the most prominent actresses has created for herself a most enviable position in the theatrical world. The title of the satire in which Bonita and her clever company appears isstyled "Going Into Vaudeville," in which all of the most popular actors and actresses are satirized. It certainly is a revelation in the amusement field, and judging from present indications, it will eclipse both financially as well as artistically any of past or present New York reviews.

All records for attendance and financial receipts at any indoor place of amusement have just been broken by the New York Hippodrome with its double production of "Pioneer Days" and "Neptune's Daughter." The opening day of the sale, the advance receipts taken in at eight box offices amounted to $91,000. The first night house, with many invited guests present, figured a total of $5,413.50. The next day was Thanksgiving, and at the matinee the receipts were $5,627, and at the night performance $5,639.50, making the remarkable total of $11,266.50. This record has never been equalled in any other amusement place, and it exceeds the best record for a day's receipts ever known at the Hippodrome. At the matinee Friday, November 30, nearly 1,000 people were turned away, unable to obtain tickets, and the receipts, with one dollar as the highest price, amounted to $4,478. The indications are that "Neptune's Daughter" and "Pioneer Days" will play to absolute capacity for many weeks to come, and as that means gross receipts of $60,000 a week, it can easily be seen that Messrs. Shubert & Anderson have a gold mine in the Hippodrome, instead of the white elephant some people thought they had.

Anna Held, more delicately lovely, chic and special than ever, with beauty enhanced and delicious individuality accentuated, is greeted with admiration and cheer in welcome, after her long desertion of America, and is delighting large audiences every evening at the Broadway theatre, New York, in her new musical play, "The Parisian Model." It is a brilliant, dazzling and tuneful romp, all whirls of dance, melody and revolving pictures. Max Hoffman, the composer, has supplied some of the prettiest, whistly music for the entertainment and Harry B. Smith has written some of the cleverest songs heard in years. Costume after costume and set after set are shown until the riot of color and glitter of jet palls on the onlooker and fairly bewilders him, and so much has been shown that when the time arrives for the last scene, the skating picture, it seems a foregone conclusion that no further surprise can be in store. But it comes. All the characters are transferred to a Skating Rink, or, to speak correctly, a "palais de patinage." The setting is highly attractive itself, being brilliantly lighted, and without, the streets of Paris can be seen in moonlight gleams. "The Parisian Model" is the cleverest musical play seen on Broadway in years. Regular matinees are given at the Broadway theatre on Saturdays only during the Anna Held engagement with additional matinees on Christmas and New Year's Day.

The New York Tribune Almanac.

Of course, it is possible to worry through life without keeping a Tribune Almanac at your elbow, but it is worth while—does it pay? For 25 cents a year this publication supplies you with a really marvellous amount of information, and the man who has it is an authority in his neighborhood. He doesn't have to be "guessing" or "supposing" about election pluralities, the names of Cabinet Ministers, Senators, Congressmen, Governors or Judges. He doesn't have to depend upon his memory when anything somes up about the big events of the preceding year or in relation to our army or navy, or sporting records, or, in fact, almost anything else of record worth knowing. If you have never examined The Tribune Almanac just invest a quarter for one, and see how well pleased you'll be. The 1907 one will be on sale January 1, and may be had from your newsdealer, through your local paper or direct from The Tribune office, New York.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON, AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1905 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

Late in June they reached the South Pass. For many hundred miles they had been climbing the backbone of the continent. Now they had reached the summit, the dividing ridge between streams that flowed to the Atlantic and streams that flowed to the Pacific. From the level prairies they had toiled up into the fearsome Rockies where bleak, grim crags lowered upon them from afar, and distant summits glistening with snow warned them of the perils ahead.

Through all this time of marching the place where they should pitch the tent of Israel was not fixed upon. When Brigham was questioned around the camp-fire at night, his only reply was that he would know the site of their new home when he saw it. And it came to be told among the men that he had beheld in vision a tent settling down from heaven and resting over a certain spot; and that a voice had said to him, "Here is the place where my people Israel shall pitch their tents and spread wide the curtains of Zion!" It was enough. He would recognize the spot when they reached it.

From the trappers, scouts, and guides encountered along the road they had received much advice as to eligible locations; and while this was various as to sites recommended, the opinion had been unanimous that the Salt Lake valley was impossible. It was, they were told, sandy, barren, rainless, destitute of timber and vegetation, infested with hordes of hungry crickets, and roamed over by bands of most savage Indians. In short, no colony could endure there.

They dared not, indeed, go to a fertile land, for there the Gentiles would be tempted to follow them—with the old bloody end. Only in a desert such as these men had described the Salt Lake valley to be could they hope for peace. From Fort Bridger, then, their route bent to the southwest along the rocky spurs of the Uintah mountains, whose snow-clad tops gleamed a bluish white in the July sun.

By the middle of July the vanguard of the company began the descent of Echo canyon,—a narrow slit cut straight down a thousand feet into the red sandstone,—the pass which a handful of them was to hold a few years later against a whole army of the hated Gentiles.

The hardest part of their journey was still before them. Their road had now to be made as they went, lying wholly among the mountains. Lofty hills, deep ravines with jagged sides, forbidding canyons, all but impassable streams, rock-bound and brush-choked,—up and down, through or over all these obstacles they had now to force a passage, cutting here, digging there; now double-locking the wheels of their wagons to prevent their crashing down some steep incline; now putting five teams to one load to haul it up the rock-strewn side of some waterway.

From Echo canyon they went down the Weber, then toward East canyon, a dozen of the bearded host going forward with spades and axes as sappers. Sometimes they made a mile in five hours; sometimes they were less lucky. But at length they were fighting their way up the choked East canyon, starting fierce gray wolves from their lairs in the rocks and hearing at every rod of their hardfought way the swift and unnerving song of the coiled rattlesnake.

Eight fearful miles they toiled through this gash in the mountain; then over another summit—Big mountain; down this dangerous slide, all wheels double-locked, on to the summit of another lofty hill,—Little mountain; and abruptly down again into the rock gorge afterwards to become historic as Immigration canyon.

Following down this gorge, never doubting they should come at last to their haven, they found its mouth to be impassable. Rocks, brush, and timber choked the way. Crossing to the south side, they went sheerly up the steep hill—so steep that it was all but impossible for the straining animals to drag up the heavy wagons, and so narrow that a false step might have dashed wagon and team half a thousand feet on to the rocks below.

But at last they stood on the summit,—and broke into shouts of rapture as they looked. For the wilderness home of Israel had been found. Far and wide below them stretched their promised land—a broad, open valley hemmed in by high mountains that lay cold and far and still in the blue haze. Some of these had slept since the world began under their canopies of snow, and these flashed a sunlit glory into the eager eyes of the pilgrims. Others reared bare, scathed peaks above slopes that were shaggy with timber. And out in front lay the wondrous lake—a shield of deepest glittering turquois held to the dull, gray breast of the valley.

Again and again they cried out: "Hosanna to God and the Lamb!" and many of the bearded host shed tears, for the hardships of the way had weakened them.

Then Brigham came, lying pale and wasted in his wagon, and when they saw him gaze long, and heard him finally say: "Enough—drive on!" they knew that on this morning of July 24, 1847, they had found the spot where in vision he had seen the tent of the Lord come down to earth.

There on the summit they knelt to entreat the mercy of God upon the land. The next day, by their leader's direction, they consecrated the valley to the Lord, and planted six acres of potatoes.

CHAPTER XI.

Another Miracle and a Temptation in the Wilderness.

The floor of the valley was an arid waste, flat and treeless, a far sweep of gray and gold, of sage-brush spangled with sunflowers, patched here and there with glistening beds of salt and soda, or pools of the deadly alkali. Here crawled the lizard and the rattlesnake; and there was no music to the desolation save the petulant chirp of the cricket. At the sides an occasional stream tumbled out of the mountains to be all but drunk away at once by the thirsty sands. Along the banks of these was the only green to be found, sparse fringes of willow and wild rose. On the borders of the valley, where the steeps arose, were little patches of purple and dusty brown, oak-bush, squaw-berry, a few dwarfed cedars, and other scant growths. At long intervals could be found a marsh of wire-grass, or a few acres of withered bunch-grass. But these served only to emphasize the prevailing desert tones.

The sun-baked earth was so hard that it broke their plows when they tried to turn it. Not until they had spread water upon it from the river they had named Jordan could the plows be used. Such was the new Canaan, the land held in reserve by the Lord for His chosen people since the foundations of the world were laid.

Dreary though it was, they were elated. Had not a Moses led them out of bondage up into this chamber of the mountains against the day of wrath that was to consume the Gentile world? And would he not smite the rocks for water? Would he not also be a Joshua to sit in judgment and divide to Israel his inheritance?

They waited not nor demurred, but fell to work. Within a week they had explored the valley and its canons, made a road to the timber eight miles away, built a saw-pit, sawed lumber for a skiff, plowed, planted, and irrigated half a hundred acres of the parched soil, and begun the erection of many dwellings, some of logs, some of adobes. Ground had also been chosen and consecrated by Brigham, whereon, in due time, they would build up their temple to the God of Jacob.

Julien Gordon (Mrs. Van Rensselaer Cruger) contributes the leading story to the January Smart Set, and the year 1907 begins auspiciously for that brilliant periodical. Mrs. Cruger calls her novelette "Broken Statues," and no finer piece of work has come from her pen. She knows the world thoroughly, and her people are real human beings. The greater part of the scenes are laid on shipboard, and the author finds opportunity to enrich her story with many touches of exquisite humor. Few writers of the day have such a wide audience as Jack London, and in his story, "When God Laughs," in this number of The Smart Set, he tells what is perhaps his most powerful tale. The story is remarkable in many ways.

Receration for December. The second instalment of Ernest Russell's forceful series, "The Sons of the Settlers," running in this well edited magazine, is a remarkably good essay on the genesis of the pioneer spirit. Mr. Russell ably delineates how the New England pioneers "built upon piles of their own driving," to quote Thoreau, and succeeds admirably in convincing the reader that the poverty of the settlers had its compensations, both in their own lives and in shaping the national character. "The Christmas Dance at Jimmy Friday's," by Sid Howard, a story of the lumber woods, is sure to touch the heart of every one possessed of the Santa Claus spirit. In "Dutch Corners Days," by Roscoe Brumbaugh, this able writer tells in a quaintly humorous manner the story of a smash-up at a love-feast, which is an event in a little Pennsylvania community.

The beautiful cover of the December Good Housekeeping, in red, gold, yellow and blue, by Cuhman Parker, strikes the keynote of the richness within. The number lows with color and Christmas warmth and sympathy, from the frontpiece in colors by Blanche Ostertag, and opening poem, In the Children's Room, by Arthur Stringer, with its colored drawings by Clyde O. Deland, to the Christmas festivities, gifts, dinners and candies at the close. A novel feature is the story with photographs, of "The Mistletoe Bough," the old English poem. A little Christmas Service for the Home, with carol (words and music), is contributed by Florence Morse Kingsley, the novelist. A series of drawings in color, by Maud Tousey, portray us Americans "As We Celebrate" the supreme holiday of the year. Martha McCulloch-Williams writes interestingly, and with the aid of photographs, of "Tea Rooms as Conducted in New York," and Miss Claire M. Coburn of "The Art of the Silversmith," charming pictures showing arts and crafts silver.

Keith & Proctor's.

Holiday amusement seekers look more particularly to the vaudeville houses for their theatrical recreation and entertainment. They do this for the especial reason that the prices are always at an extremely popular figure, and then, indeed, the programmes at the vaudeville theatres are uncommonly generous in length and admittedly superior in quality. At all events, there is characteristic of the shows offered week in and week out every year by Keith & Proctor. The recent innovations introduced at the Fifth Avenue and the Harlem Opera House, to wit: the privilege of smoking in the balcony and the sale of reserved seats at the unusually low prices of 25 and 50 cents at the Fifth Avenue and 15, 25 and 50 at the Harlem Opera House, have brought about the most gratifying results and enormous audiences crowd these houses at both performances, matinee and night.

Metallic Sympathy.

On the death of the Duke of Wellington the bells of Trim, near Dangan castle, his father's seat in Ireland, for which when a young man Wellington had sat in the Irish parliament, rang a muffled peal, when the tenor, a beautifully toned bell, suddenly broke. It was found by a curious coincidence to have been cast in 1769, the year of the duke's birth.

BISHOP BLAMES MASONRY

Diocesan Head Declares Trouble in France Was Caused by Secret Order.

DEFENDS THE POPE

Bishop O'Connor Says Freemasons Have Worked For Years For Separation of Church and State.

Bishop J. J. O'Connor, of the Newark Catholic diocese, gave out yesterday an interview in which he declared that Freemasonry was the cause of the troubles through which the Catholics in France are passing today.

"Inspired by hatred for the Catholic church, French Freemasonry is wholly responsible, I believe, for the crisis which France and the church must face," said Bishop O'Connor. "Freemasons in that country have worked for separation of church and State for several years, aiming at the destruction of Christianity. They made no secret of the fact, but took oaths to use all influence to bring about separation, not neglecting in the meanwhile to maintain the rights of supremacy of the State over the church.

"The Vatican and French clergy would be entirely satisfied to have church and State separated as it is in this country, but the French Government had a hidden motive. Liberty was not to be given, but, instead, strangulation. The government said: 'You may go on independently, but you cannot do this and that,' and the limitations as to what they could do were so closely defined that Freemasons could, as trustees of the church associations, prescribe even the form of services in the church if they saw fit.

"It is, therefore, apparent that the American people have been misled in entertaining the thought that separation in France would provide the admirable conditions existing here.

"The government, to bring about the separation, steals the church property, and tells the people they may use the buildings if a sort of 'board of trustees' is organized to take over the buildings. Full power is given the board to engage pastors, agree upon the form of service, and practically dictate how the church shall be run. This, on the face of it, is in direct opposition to the established rule of the Catholic church, whose services are always the same in all parts of the world. Therefore, the objection of the Holy Father to the so-called association law is based upon the laws of the church, which would not allow him to act otherwise.
